CORRESPONDENCE OF THE "JOURNAL."

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 14, 1862. FRIEND Row: In my last I endeavored to give the readers of the Journal some idea of the different kinds of guns in use in the army. The next thing in order are the projectiles, and as your readers often meet the terms "canister," "grape," &c., I will give them a definition of each : A canister shot is a cylinder of tin, (of the same diameter as the bore of the gun), filled with small balls, called grape. Scrapnel shot are thin shells filled, in addition to the bursting charge, with musket balls-the number in a 24-pound shot being 225 balls-they like other shells, have a fuze attached by which they are bursted at the proper time.

The Artillery regiment raised by Colonel Charles Campbell has lost its identity as a regiment, it having been found impracticable to keep it together. The different batteries composing it have been assigned to different commands, and the field officers discharged, for the reason that artillery cannot act unsupported by infantry, and the field officers of the intantry would necessarily have command for t he time being.

Having so far given you what information I could get from the obliging officers and men ef the different batteries, and from personal observation, of their cannon, balls, etc., I will now speak of some other things, being fearful that too much of dry detail will not be palitable to your readers, but, at the same time reserving "some of the same sort" for my

During my travels among the Reserve I found, besides the two companies from our own county, two from Centre county-one in the 5th, Capt. Larimer's; and one in the 1st cavalry, Capt. Lipton's. I also found one Centre county company in the 49th Pennsylvania Vol., in Hancock's brigade-Capt. Miles Green. I believe that Captains Lipton and Green are both from Milesburg, and being so near to us when at home, they appear like acquaintances here. Capt. Brady of Brookville, with his company belongs to the 11th regiment. He like many others of his profession, has dropped the composing stick to take up the sword; and, I have no doubt, if a favorable opportunity offers, will make a good .- impression," and bring some accesh to a "period." This regiment like most others, has built winter quarters. The style of the buts are according to the peculiar fancy of the builders. \ Some are quite neat, and display a refined taste; whilst others are rather rough. However, all are said to be warm and comfortable-the great object aimed at. In the 12th regiment the houses are all built after one style, and look quite neat. I observed that but few efficers of the Bucktail regiment had built winter quarters, for the reason that the weather has been pleasant so far, and they have not felt uncomfortable; besides they have had no orders to remain here for the winter, and therefore they anticipate the storming of some stronghold of the enemy before long. By the use of small sheet iron stoves the men are able to keep their quatrers warm and comparatively comfortable. Yours, &c., TRAVELER.

Battle at Somerset, Kentucky-Victory com-plete-Zollicoffer killed and his troops dis-persed, with a heavy loss Louisville, Ky., Jan. 20 .- General Thomas telegraphs to head-quarters that on Friday night Gen. Zollicoffer came up to his encampment and attacked him at six o'clock on Saturday morning, near Webb's cross-roads, in the vicinity of Somerset. At half-past three o'clock on Saturday afternoon Zollicoffer and Bailie Peyton had been killed and the rebels were in full retreat to their entreachments at Mill Springs. Generals Scheepff and Thomas attacked the rebels in their entrenchments, and after a severe fight repulsed them, and the result is a complete victory. Our forces captured all the enemies camp equipage, cannon, etc. Gen. Zollicoffer's dead body is in federal hands. The stars and stripe float over the rebel entrenchments. The loss is said to be heavy on both sides. Two hundred and fifty dead rebels were left on the field, but what their loss is has not been ascertained. Our loss in one of the Indiana regiments is seventy in killed and wounded.

Gov. Curtin, it is said, has asked permission of the War Department to send eight full regiments of infantry and one of cavalry, now in the State and ready for service, upon an expedition to the Southern coast. Well done for the Keystone after furnishing more than her full quota of troops. Capts. M'Henry and Chapman of the 63d Pennsylvania regiment, while drunk at Alexandria, on Saturday night, quarreled. Gen. Montgomery tried to quell the disturbence, when M'Henry drew a revolver and fired two shots at him. The offense is punishable with

COOLNESS OF THE BUCKTAILS .- A correspondent writes from one of the northern counties in this State, where the Bucktails were recruited, as follows ; "I want to hear something of the Pennsylvanians. I know the boys who fought at Drainsville and fleshed their maiden swords under Gen. Ord, and I well knew when they met the foe somebody would die. I must give you an incident or two of that fight; Charles Yahn, a young man from this vicinity, was shot through the face, shattering the jaw and knocking out teeth, making a very ugly and paintul wound. Spitting the blood from his month, he handed a cartridge to his next neighbor, saying, 'I can fight yet, if I can't bite.' And thus he fought it out, getting his comrade to bite off the cartridges, and he is now recovering under the hands of the surgeon. Another was struck over the eye by a spent ball, cutting the skin but not entering the skull. He coolly picked up the bullet, remarking, there is the Secession lead that struck me,' and put the little memento into his pecket. This is the sort of men Pennsylvania has in the national army, and I want to Penusylvania Hoapital.

(FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL ENPORTS)
MAY 19, 1860.—Ellen S., set. 28, single, never was very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute rheumatism, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks, and subsequently from a relapse for four more. She has been well since then till last Saturday; while engaged in house cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her back, felt cold, but had no decided chill. Two days later her ankles began to swell which was followed by swelling of the knee joints and of the hands. She has dull pain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very tender, red and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is the most so. This, then, is a case of acute rheumatism. or, as it is now fashionably called, rheumatic fever. It is a well marked typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you now is to call your attention to a remedy which has re-cently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. I mean propulatione. Dr. Awenarius of St. Petersburg, recommends it in the highest terms having derived great benefit from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose giving it another trial. I must confess 1 am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specifies; but this comes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER! May 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the pa-tient for whom I preshribed Propylamine, and who was then laboring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in doses of three grains, every two hours. (intermitting it at night). The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attack. (The patient now walked into the room.) The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot fail to notice a marked change in the appearance of her joints, which are now nearly of their natural size. Thus far our experiment would have seemed very successful; but gentlemen we must wait a little while before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result.

THREE DAYS LATER !! May 26, 1860 .- This is the case of acute rhenmatism treated with propylamine, the first of those to which I called your attention at our last clinic. She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains thrice daily.

In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory results. The second case to which your attention was called at our last lecture, has also continued to do well. I will now bring be-fore you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and if the result b esatisfactory, I think as good jurymen, we shall justly render our verdict in favor of propylamine.

He is a seaman, æt. 26, who was admitted a few days ago. Has had occasional rheumatic pains, but not so as to keep his bed, until eight days ago. The pains began in his right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and later the joints of the upper extremities. These joints are all swollen, tense and tender. His tongue is furred; his skin at present, dry, though there has been much sweating. His pulse is full and strong, and about 90. He has now used propylamine twenty-four hours. This gentlemen is what may be called a strictly typical case of acute rheumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this exposure is followed by a feeling of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower oints There is fever and the profuse sweating, o generally attendant on acute rheumatism. I did not bring this patient before you with the intention of giving you a lecture on all the points connected with rheumatism, but to again give a trial to the new remedy we are testing, and to exhibit to you this typical case, as I have called it, than which there could not be a fairer opportunity for testing the medicine in question. therefore, avoiding the use of all other medicines, even anodynes, that there may be no misgivings as to which was the efficient remedy. You shall see the case in a future clinic.

THE RESULT .- A FAVORABLE VERDICT. JUNE 9, 1860 .- The next of our canvalescents is the case of acute rheumatism before you at our cline of May 26th, which I then called a typical case, and which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doses every two hours for four days. The patient has got along very nicely, and is now able to walk about as you see. I do not hesitate to say that I have never seen as severe a case of actte rheumatism so soon restored to health as this man has been, and without be ing prepared to decide positively as to the value of the remedy we have used. I feel bound to state that in the cases in which we have tried the chloride of Propylamine, the patients have gained their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily pursued. I wish, gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results.

For a full report of which the above is a cen-
