

Gen. Lander's division. The kind and character of the military service to which the most of this division of 20,000 men were subject. was followed with its inevitable consequences. The General himself tell a victim, and many of his command shared his fate-and many will follow yet.

hospital accommodations in Cumberland, such as court house, academy, halls, saloons, engine houses, commission warehouses, lecture rooms, and vacated hotels, seventeen hundred or more sick. An additional hospital was fitted up for the accummodation of two hundred and thirty more, in a spacions hotel building near Frostburg, some six or seven miles from here. In all these receptacles, disease was doing its fell work. Pneumonia, catarri., measles, typhoid and inflammatory fevers, chennestiam, diarthosa and dysentary, were breaking down the strong and infirm alike. Notwittistanding the skill and industry of the corps of medical men in attendance-for in ddition to the town physicians, the Medical Army Director, called to his aid physicians from the adjacent towns, and even from Wheeling and Cincinnati and other far off places-the men perished eight, nine and ten a day, still they were sending up from the Railing G Every forced and night march, at the oupcluous order, and often under the daring ead of the General himself, despite all weather, all winds, sent its sufferers hither. Men of iron nerve and brazen muscle might have withstood, but ordinary flesh and fibre, even the best of our hardy backwoodsmen it crippled and laid upon their backs. Many a strong duewy man I have seen broken down and helpless and feeble as a child-others wild and raving in the dellrium of fever, or trembling and quivering in Typhoid-the cough, so distressing and exhausting, of pneumonia-but it was not the degree or extremily of one suffering, or of many ; these sights and sounds met you at every turn-out of one hospital into another the suffering was there, and perhaps of a worse type.

Last week owing to the march of the divis. ion down to Martinsburg, and the new allotnent of Cumberland, as a locality, to General Resenceanz's command, the influx of the sick has been arrested. There are now about 1400 cases in the town hospitals, and nowards of 220 in Frostburg wards. I visited two dying men to-day. Every second day I go to the dead-house, where the corpses are laid out and coffined, ready for burrial. There I find constantly from six to eight or ten dead. I invariably attend to the burial of the dead of our own Regiment, but not only of them, for I take my torn with the seven or eight other chaplains, in following the ambalance of deputed Indiana, Ohio, filinois, Michigan and firginia soldiers-a prayer, a brief burial service, three vollies discharged from the muskets of the 12 or 18 men always detailed to march to the grave.

Should spring be early and mild very many of the sick will recover. A new Medical Didock of medicines is enlarged and improved, and all the details of ward masters and nurses, alipped into the hand or under the pillow of a ministration. poor sufferer. Yours, ALEX. M'LEOD.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12, 1862.

great amount of clothing and other stores fell into our hands, and huts sufficient to shelter one hundred thousand men, and several thousand horses. Later reports state, that the rebels could not have had more than 50,000 men at Manassas and Centreville for the last two or three weeks; and that nearly all the guns mounted at Centreville were of the same kind of those at Munson's Hill-wooden blocks painted to resemble cannon. There are about 1500 dead horses at Centreville on account of the scarcity of forage-so the place is untenable. If all these statements are correct, and there appears to be but little doubt of it, there will be considerable censure resting somewhere, for keeping an army lying idle here and permitting the rebel army to escape to the cotton States (for it is not probable that they can make much of a stand in Virginia) where sickness in summer is likely to do more for their cause than they have been able to accomplish with all their Generals and army. Be this as it may-at all events a committee are going to Manassas to investigate the circumstances.

It is also said, that Monday was the last day Gen. McClellan had given him to make an advance; and, if he had not, President Lincoln, by virtue of his office as Commander-in-chief, would have ordered an advance himself.

It will be difficult to make much futher advance overland, on account of all the bridges and railroads having been-torn up by the rebels-hence a difficulty of forwarding supplies after the army. It is probable that a part of the army will be sent by vessels southward. instead of marching overland.

Some of the cavalry regiments that were not mounted have been taken to occupy the fortifications as artiflery, so that the infantry who occupied them can be brought into more active service. There are still quite a number of troops on this side of the Potomac.

Mr. Lincoln is very popular in the army, among all former parties. Men who operated against his election, would now use as much effort in his favor, if he were a candidate for Yours, UNION. re-election.

CAMP CHASE, PAW-PAW, VA,, March 4, 1862.

FRIEND Row :--- As we have been troubled of late with quite a number of offensive letters from Luthersburg and vicinity, disparaging the present administration and insulting Union rector ordered here, has inaugurated a better soldiers in this place by sneeringly referring sanitary regimen and there is now an efficient, to their hardships, and as it would consume able corps of post and ward surgeons. The quite too much time to answer them in detail, permit me to say through your paper to those Secesh sympathisers, that we have not regrethale and female, ventilation and scrubbing | ted the step we have taken, but are as much and sweeping are ridgidly enforced. CAMP ROUSSAU KY., Feb. 15, 1862. FRIEND NANNIE :- I embrace this my earliest opporturity to reply to your very welcome letter. I know of no better way of apologizing for my delay than by giving a brief history of what has been transpiring in this part of 'Kane an' turkey." . . . We remained at Camp Hambright five days. It was a very pleasant place and we enjoyed ourselves 'amazingly.' Most of the water used by the brigade was obtained from the "Dripping Cave," one of the numerous caverns for which this country is remarkable. I examined it as far as I could penetrate for water. I also visited the "Hundred Dome Cave." I was highly delighted with it. The first room of this cave is fitted up for a ball room. It is floored and has tables, closets, and staging for the band, and all complete. I did not admire this room as much as those in which Nature was the only architect. The long avenues, the spacious rooms, the deep chasms, the high domes, the huge columns, the formations which encrust the rocks, the myriads of dormant bats which hang in ponderous (and almost numberless) bevies from the ceiling, all presented to me a new and interesting seene. We had no guide, and no light only that which our parraffine candles produced. We clambered down ladders and stairways, across bridges and around ledges. sometimes walking and sometimes crawling. We could not see the bottom of many of the chasms by the dim light of our candles, neither could we see the ceiling of some of the highset domes. We continued our explorations until our curiosity was entirely satisfied, and then returned to camp with a number of specimens of quartz, gypsnm, lime formations, petrifactions, etc., etc. I forgot to state that we had a torch-light procession and a general jollification upon the reception of the news from Fort Henry. It is a novel sight to see a whole regiment marching with torches on a dark night, zigzaging from point to point. We paid our respects to the General, and then proceeded to the camps of the regiments of our brigade. We left camp
