Pennsylvania Hospital.
(FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS)
MAY 19, 1860.—Ellen S., et. 25, single, was very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute rheumatism, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks, and subsequently from a relapse for four more. She has been well since then till last Saturday, while engaged in house cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her feet cold but had no decided chill. On the 18th, later her ankles began to swell, which was followed by swelling of the knee joints and of the hands. She has dull pain in her shoulders and her knees are affected, red and painful, both hands are affected, but the right is the most so. This is a case of acute rheumatism, or, as it is fashionably called, rheumatic fever. It is a well marked typical case. We will carefully watch the case from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you was to call your attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. I mean propylamine. Dr. A. W. Stewart of St. Peterburg, recommended it in the highest terms, having derived great benefit from its use in several cases which came under his care. Various complimentary testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose giving it a medical trial. It is a certain remedy, which has been used as a specific; but this comes to us recommended as highly, that we are bound to give it a trial.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER.
MAY 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and who was then laboring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She has been taking it in the dose of three grains, every two hours, intermitting it at night. The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for three or four days. She has had no other attack. The patient now walks like a normal person. The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot fail to notice a marked change in the appearance of her joints, which are now nearly their natural size. Thus far our experiment would have been very successful, but gentlemen, you must wait a little while before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result.

THREE DAYS LATER.
MAY 26, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism treated with propylamine, the first of those which I called your attention to our last lecture. She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains three daily.

In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory results. The second case to which your attention was called at our last lecture, has also continued to do well. I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and it is the result is satisfactory, as good judgment, we shall justify under our name in the future.

THE RESULT.—A FAVORABLE VERDICT.
JUNE 9, 1860.—The next of our cases is the case of acute rheumatism before you at our lecture of May 26th, which I then called typical, and of which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the efficacy of propylamine. It is now therefore steadily given in three grain doses every two hours for four days. The patient has done very nicely, and is now able to walk about as usual. I do not hesitate to say that I have never seen a more favorable result in acute rheumatism, and would not to hesitate to decide propylamine as a certain remedy prepared to decide positively as to the value of the remedy we have used. I feel bound to state that in the cases in which we have tried the chloride of Propylamine, the patients have gained their health much more rapidly than when they were treated with propylamine. I wish, gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results.

For a full report of which the above is a condensed extract, see the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reporter. It is a report as far as I am aware by the best medical authority in this country, and makes it unnecessary to give numerous certificates from distinguished doctors and rejecting patients.

A SURE CURE, AN EFFICIENT CURE, THE SAME RESULT IN EVERY CASE, WHENEVER TRIED, WHEREVER TRIED. WHAT IT HAS DONE, IT WILL DO AGAIN.
Bullock & Crenshaw a firm well known to the medical man, by whom the Elixir of Propylamine has been introduced, have sold to us the exclusive right to manufacture it according to the original recipe, and we have made arrangements of consequence to enable us to secure it broadcast amongst suffering humanity.

A WORD TO DOCTORS.
If you prefer to use the same remedy in another form, we have the Elixir of Propylamine, Purified Propylamine, Pure Propylamine, Purified Propylamine, Concentrated Pure Propylamine, of which we are the sole manufacturers.

WE claim no other virtue for the Elixir of Propylamine than is contained in Pure Crystallized Chloride of Propylamine.
THE ELIXIR IS MORE CONVENIENT AND ALWAYS READY FOR IMMEDIATE USE, AND MAY BE TAKEN ACCORDING TO DIRECTIONS, IN ANY ONE OF EVERY ONE, WHO HAS RHEUMATISM OF ANY KIND.

SOLD AT 75 CTS. A BOTTLE.
Orders may be addressed to Propylamine Manufacturing Co., Office, Room No. 2, W. Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.
