FAITH.

Have confidence, dear friend, in love, And let thy doubts depart; 'Tis born in the bright realms above,

Close keep it to thy heart. 'Twill soothe thee. when distressed with pai To know loved ones are near.
'Twill drive pale sorrow from the brain,
And dry the falling tear.

Oh, trust in friendship's storied might, It hath strange healing powers; Its flow of sympathy e'er bright Will soften life's glad hours.

Cast not the precious pearl aside, Friends are not easy won-But follow her, whate'er betide, Her light's a radiant sun

Center thy faith in the Divine, Look t'ward a home on high, Where joy and peace serenely reign, Where friendships never die.

In Heaven's ark of safety rest Till summoned hence away.

Then mayst thou dwell among the blest,
And bask in endless day

A Funny but Sensible Speech.

The Wisconsin Legislature had formally considered a proposition to abolish all laws for the collection of debts. The mover of the bill, Mr. Elmyre, is a great wag. as evinced by the following extract from his speech on that subject :

The speaker proceeded to review the preshumbug and a cheat, a matter of technicalities and legal shuffling. Lawyers gave advice in order to obtain fees and encourage litigation. Judges made blunders and mistakes. He had a little experience in law and that was rich. [Laughter.] He would related how he had purchased a yoke of oxen about fifteen years ago-paid fifty dollars insisted on having pay over again, and com-menced a suit before a justice. The jury didn't agree. Finally, through the Bass-wood Justice of the Peace, the case went against him. He appealed it to the Circuit Court in Milwaukee. There I lost again, and said to my lawyer: I will give you ten dollars to quote Pennsylvania law to Judge Miller; and get a new trial ordered. [Great laughter.] He took the ten dollars and performed his duty. A new trial was then granted, and the venue changed to Walworth county. Judge Irwin was then on the bench. Any man who wanted to gain a cause in his court had either to go hunting with him and let the Judge claim all the game that was shot, or else pat his dog. I patted his dog. [Laughter.] I fed that dog crackers. [Renewed laughter.] The case was decided in my favor. When I heard the decision I thought the dog had followed me long enough-I turned round and gave him a kick. [Laugh-The yelp of the dog had hardly sub-"Mr. sided ere I heard the Judge say: Clerk, this judgment is set aside and a new trial granted." [Great laughter.] Speaker, that kick cost me $200! have no doubt seen a suit in a justice's court in the country? There is time spent by jurors and hangers on, besides other costs, at least $50, besides the ill feeling and dissentions caused by it. It is all a cheat. The litigants had better sit down and play a game of old sledge to decide the case. It would be more sure to settle the dispute justly.

A Lesson for Fast Young Men.

A short time ago a man named Doctor John W. Hughes, was hanged at Cleveland, Ohio, whose fate teaches a salutary lesson. He was a man of good family, well educated, had an honorable profession, and, at one time, a good social position. But he seems to have ruined himself by liquor and bad dear, retorted the wife, "you know it is had an honorable profession, and, at one company. Under these influences he be-came thoroughly demoralized. He was held by no conscience whatever. Having a good wife and a child, he married another woman almost in the presence of his family. For this crime he was tried, convicted, and sent to penitentiary. His injured wife procured him a pardon for this, but instead of being grateful to her, he abused her in the most false and heartless manner, and went off to seek the woman he had injured. Having found her, he deliberately shot her through the heart because she refused to live with him. For this he was tried and hanged. On the scaffold he alluded to his advantages in life, his education, the wealth and position of his family; but all these, he said, he had allowed to be overcome by indulgence in drink and bad company. What a lesson!

LET THE CHILDREN SLEEP. - We earnestly advise that all who think a great deal, who have to work hard, to take all the sleep they can get without medical means.

We caution parents, particularly, not to allow their children to be waked up of mornings-let nature wake them up, she will not do it prematurely; but have a care that they go to bed at an early hour; let it be early, until it be found that they wake up themselves in full time to dress for break-

Being waked up early, and allowed to enage in difficult or any studies late and just before retiring, has given many a promis-ing and beautiful child the brain fever, or determined ordinary ailments to the production of water on the brain.

House & lots, Hugh Gallagher, 2 22 House & lot, John Irvin's estate, 11 00 Let parents make every possible effort to have their children go to sleep in a pleasant humor. Never scold or give lectures or any way wound a child's feelings as it goes to bed. Let all banish business and every worldly care at bed-time, and let sleep come to a mind at peace with God and all the world.

Making the Most of a Wife.

In one of the western towns there is a character known as "Joe Backstock," although that is not his baptismal name. The other night a crowd met in the tavern as usual, and from war and the hard times the conversation turned upon railroad disasters, and what had been realized from them. A hundred of examples were cited of per-sons who had laid the foundation of a fortune by money received from railroad companies as the price of broken limbs and lacerated bodies. After a while Joe, opened:

"Well gentlemen," said he, "I got a thousand dollars out of a railroad company out West-about twenty years ago-and didn't receive no danger from the smashing up, neither.'

'How was that, Joe?" inquired the landlord: "I don't see how you can make that out.

"Well," returned Joe, "I had just about one of the laziest and most or nary wives a poor fellow ever got stuck on. She wasn't wuth shucks, She would work till she shivered, and eat till she sweated. Hows'ever the poor criter's gone under now, and I don't know as I oughter say any thing agin her. Well about twenty years ago her and me was traveling in a train out West. I was dreffuly down in the mouth. Jest as I was tryin' to fix on to some method of raising the wind, suddintly the train was brought up all standin" and the splinters was flying in every direction. In two minutes passengers was laying around loose, ent system of collecting debts. It was all a groamn' and hollerin' for help, and there was an orful time generally. As luck would have it, neither me nor the old woman was hurt a mite, but as I looked at her, the idea suddintly occurred to me there was a chance to make something off of her, So says 1, 'Deb, you've never bin no count to me, give a little history of it. The speaker then | and I think it is high time yer was. I have got a chance to make something onto yer now, and a'm goin' to do it, and hope yer for them—a few days after, the son of the wan't make no fuss about it, but stand up man of whom he had purchased the oxen to the rack and take your fodder like a woto the rack and take your fodder like a wocame to him and said they were his. He man. Here goes!" and as I spoke I fetched her an old socker plum on the nose and squashed it as flat as if a cartwheel bad passed over it. "Now," sez I, "howl, Deb! But remember, you 'ceived year damages from a flying splinter, and not from my fist!" She tuck my advice, and that lick fotched us a thousand dollars damages."

"But," he said, heaving a deep sigh,
"wot was the use of all?" The money's all gone now, and I'm as dry as ever. Who's going to licker?'

ANECDOTE OF DR. EMMONS.-A Pantheist minister met him one day and abruptly asked:
"Mr. Emmons, how old are you?"

"Sixty, sir, and how old are you?" "As old as the creation," was the answer in a triumphant tone.

"Then you are the same age with Adam and Eve?" "Certainly; I was in the garden when they were. "I have always heard that there was a third person in the garden with them, but I never knew before that it was you.'

A dubious landlord, at Cobleskill, a short time since, was complaining that his sugar drawer was overrun with ants. A "setter" ever present proposed that if Boniface would treat that he would inform him how to get rid of the ants in a very short time. The landlord accepted the proposition, when the "setter" cooly advised Boniface to "kill an ant every time he took a drink.'

UNLAWFUL MARRIAGE, -"Is there any person you would particularly wish me to marry?" said a widow expectant to her dying spouse, who had been somewhat of a not lawful to marry two brothers.'

MIND YOUR STOPS. - A clergyman was depicting before a deeply interested audience the alarming increase of intemperance, when he astonished his hearers by exclaiming: "A young woman in my neighbor-hood died very suddenly last Sabbath while I was preaching the Gospel in a state of beastly intoxication!'

A western soldier, who has been through all the campaigns, and shared in many of the fiercest battles of the war, writes from his home that he never realized the horrors of war till he got home to Indiana and found his girl married to a stay at-home dry goods clerk.

A seven year old was recently reproved for playing out of doors with boys; she was "too big for that now." But with the greatest innocence she replied: "Why, grandma, the bigger we grow the better we like 'em! Grandma took time to think.

SINCERITY. -No man who has been consistently true and sincere has failed to win the confidence and favor of other men. No man in whom truth and sincerity have been wanting, has ever long possessed their confidence and favor.

A land speculator, in describing a lake on an estate in Cumberland, says it is so clear and so deep that by looking into it you can see them making tea in China.
