UNION REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR: Maj. Gen. JOHN W. GEARY, of Onmb. Co.

General Geary.

A correspondent of the Bedford Inquirer, writing from Leocompton, Kansas, says: "The Union party of Pennsylvania may well be proud of their standard-bearer, the honest man, tried patriot, General Geary. He made an enviable record during the war in battling for his country's rights, while his opponents did all they could to overthrow the best political government among men. Living in Leocompton where Gen. Geary acted as Governor during part of the exciting times of the Kansas troubles, I have made considerable effort to inform myself as to how Geary was liked during his stay in Kansas, and find that while he made himself obnoxious to every old pro-slavery demagogue and his partisans, he won the confidence of every Union man, Republican or Democrat. If the people of Kansas had the verdict to render on the 2d Tuesday of October next, Clymer would be willing to join his friends in Mexico."

European War.

The intelligence from Europe goes far to strengthen the opinion that war is inevitable. In Austria, Prussia and Italy over one million of soldiers are ready to "cry havoc and let slip the dogs of war," on the word of command. Throughout Germany, generally, the various powers are putting their available military force upon a war footing. If there be war, it will chiefly be between Prussia and Austria. There is little doubt that a secret understanding exists between Prussia and Italy, out of which may come the restoration of Venetia to the Italian Kingdom. France is prepared for an armed neutrality or for such participation in the war as may enable him to round off her territory by the addition of the Rhine Provinces. England is inactive—"peace at all risks" being her rule of inaction.

The Gallant Dead.

From a table showing the number of soldiers who were killed in action or died from disease or wounds while in service, we give the following aggregates:

Killed or died of wounds,	96,089
Died of disease,	194,331
Total,	289,420

The aggregate number of men furnished under all calls reduced to the three years' standard was 2,154,311—of which Pennsylvania furnished 267,558. The total number of deaths of Pennsylvania soldiers was 21,374. These figures comprise only officers and men who died in the service, and not the tens of thousands who were discharged for disability, from the effect of which they subsequently died in private life.

On the 13th of June the corner stone of an imposing monument will be erected over the grave of Stephen A. Douglas. Governor Oglesby, of Illinois, has been selected as the orator of the occasion, and as few men in our country are better able to deliver an address worthy of the occasion, the virtuous and eminent public services of the illustrious dead will be eloquently commemorated.

The loss by the destruction of the Academy of Music and several contiguous properties, together with the Lutheran church in Fifteenth street, New York, by fire on Tuesday morning May 23d, is estimated at one million of dollars. Some of the parties suffering loss were inadequately insured, others were fully secured by insurance.

The question of the Constitutionality of the law desfranchising deserters was argued before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court on May 23d—Attorney General Meredith appearing for the Commonwealth. The decision of the Court has not yet been rendered.

A despatch from Fortress Monroe says that Gen. Miles had received instructions to give Jeff. Davis, on his parole, the freedom of the fort, he retiring to his own room in Carroll Hall at night.

The Democratic State Convention which met at Columbus, Ohio, on May 24th, adopted a series of resolutions in which they promise active support to the President.

It is reported from Washington that, by consent of all parties, the trial of Jeff. Davis will be postponed until autumn.

The gold market was much excited on Friday, in New York—selling as high as 141 1/2 and closing at 140.

A twenty-inch cannon, weighing fifty tons, is to be sent from Pittsburg to the Paris exhibition.

Gen. Geary in History.

We have before us, says the Reading Journal, the second and recently published volume of "The Great Rebellion, a History of the Civil War in the United States," by J. T. Headley, the well-known author of "Napoleon and his Marshals," and Washington and his Generals." From many expressions to be found in this book, we judge the writer to be a Democrat, somewhat, but slightly, inclined to Copperheadism, and opposed to the "Radicals," but in the main patriotic in his sentiments. Happening to light upon a couple of passages of this volume, relating to Gen. John W. Geary, now the Union candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, we concluded to publish them for the benefit of such of our readers as have not seen the book.

In the author's account of the battle of Wauhatchie, near Chattanooga, he says, on page 261:

"All this time heavy and incessant volleys of musketry arose from the spot where Geary was struggling against overwhelming numbers. The fighting here was desperate, and several times he was nearly overborne; but with that tenacity which has always distinguished him, he still clung to his position, and at length hurled the enemy back, compelling him to take refuge on Lookout mountain. The Valley was now ours. Geary gained new honors in this hard fought battle; but they were dearly won, for his son, a Captain, was killed."

And on page 264, when describing the battle of Lookout Mountain, the writer says again:

"At this juncture, the scene became one of most exciting interest. The thick fog, which had heretofore rested in dense folds upon the sides of the mountain, concealing the combatants from view, suddenly lifted to the summit of the lofty ridge, revealing to the anxious gaze of thousands in the valleys and on the plains below, a scene such as is witnessed but once in a century. Gen. Geary's columns, flushed with victory, grappled with the foe upon the rocky ledges, and drove him back with slaughter from his works. While the result was uncertain, the attention was breathless and painful; but when victory perched upon our standards, shout upon shout rent the air. The whole army, with one accord, broke out into joyous acclamations. Men were frantic with joy, and even Gen. Thomas himself, who seldom exhibits his emotions, said involuntarily, 'I did not think it possible for men to accomplish so much.'"

So much, for the present, as to the written history of Gen. Geary.

And while all this glorious struggle was on, where was Mr. Heister Clymer? On this or any other battle-field risking his life in the service of his country? Not at all. But, some one may say, perhaps he was, while at home, sustaining the National Administration in its efforts to crush the rebellion which was threatening the life of the Nation. Perhaps he was endeavoring to reconcile the people to the heavy but necessary burdens which the war imposed upon them. Perhaps he was cheering on new recruits who might be marching forward to fill up the ranks of our diminished armies; doing all he could to promote the comfort of the Soldiers and making the service as pleasant and honorable as possible. Had he been engaged in any of these praiseworthy objects, he should have due honor for his conduct; even if it did not suit him to risk his comfort and life on the field of battle. But his neighbors and acquaintances know that he "cared for none of these things." On the contrary, he acted with the faction that was doing all in its power to embarrass the Government in its efforts to raise recruits and pay them; the faction that was endeavoring to promote discontent and sedition in the loyal States, and to take from Soldiers in the field the privilege of voting; in short, doing all politically that was calculated to please Vallandigham and other traitors in the North and rebels in the South.

Gen. Geary—Clymer. What a contrast! And yet the Copperheads pretend to think that the latter has some chance of an election. We think that Geary's record in the war, and Clymer's record in the Senate and elsewhere, must be blotted from the pages of history before any such disaster can occur.

THE LUMBER BUSINESS.—The Star published at Wrightsville, opposite Columbia, on the Susquehanna, states there has not been as much lumber floated down the river this Spring as in former years, and that the article is scarce. The Star says: "Timber has been selling along at from 15 to 25 cents per cubic foot, as in quality and length. This is the price for it in the raft, in the water. When sawed into mill stuff, it commands at our mills from $32.50 to $60 per thousand feet for white pine and oak; the highest figure being for the latter. Hemlock sells at $25.00 a thousand at the mills."

Maximilian has a fit of retrenchment on him. He has given orders to reduce the expenses of his household, and has at the same time voluntarily cut down his personal expenses to half a million of dollars. As the salary of the President of the United States is only $25,000, payable in greenbacks at that, the severe economy of the Mexican Emperor does not strike us with astonishment.

MOST IMPORTANT!—Suppose you were to die to-morrow, would you leave your family, or those dependent on you, provided for? Are your circumstances such that you can calmly look death in the face, feeling conscious that you have done your duty to those you leave behind? That you have not left them dependent on the charities of the world? Have you obeyed the injunction of the Apostle—"If a man provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel?" Is it not your duty as a man, to see that your exertions are not terminated by death, before you have provided for those who have depend on you during life. How then are you to provide for them? Life Insurance gives you the only chance. By it you can accumulate in one hour after your first premium is paid, what it would take many years of hard toil to lay up for them in any other way. Therefore, you are told to insure your life, and feel that you can die without a feeling of anxiety as to the fate of those you leave behind. And not only do you rid yourself of all anxiety on that score when you are momentarily expecting to die, but during your daily life you feel the happy consciousness that you have done your duty. "You have provided for those of your own house," and all anxiety for their future welfare is at rest. Call on H. B. Swoope, agent of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, and effect an insurance immediately.

THE "NIGGER."—The copperheads still adhere to the "nigger" as the most important plank in the platform of their party. They have a card for electioneering purposes in Alt Berks which is sufficient to disgust every intelligent man with a party so sunk as to resort to such measures to promote its cause. The Clymer platform is represented on the card by a white man, and the Geary platform by the likeness of a negro. The Lebanon Courier suggests that it would be a more striking representation of the principles of the two parties, by dressing Clymer, whose votes and sympathies have always been with the rebels, in a suit of Confederate grey, and placing in his hand the rebel colors with the "stars and bars," while Geary would wear his old suit of blue, and float the glorious old flag of the free, which he bore triumphantly against the enemies of liberty in so many deadly conflicts. This picture would convey volumes of truth at sight, and we would recommend that the Copperheads embody it in their next edition of electioneering pictures.

Congressional. Mr. Row.—As the time is rapidly approaching when a candidate for Congress is to be nominated, permit me, at the urgent solicitation of many Republicans in all parts of Clearfield county, through your columns, to urge the re-nomination of Hon. G. W. Scofield, our present worthy and efficient representative. Mr. Scofield has represented his constituents fairly and faithfully, attended to all the personal wants of members of all parties, and, although he supported the Congressional plan of reconstruction, has made no personal assault upon the President, and hence stands in a position likely to unite all parties in his support. I trust these suggestions will be favorably received throughout the entire district, and that Mr. Scofield will be re-nominated and re-elected to Congress by an overwhelming majority.

To Boys.—A boy with a moderate English education, of sober and industrious habits, from fifteen to seventeen years of age, and who can come well recommended, can obtain a situation to learn the printing business by applying at the Journal office, soon. A boy from the country preferred.
