"I WILL BE YOUR MOSES."

"As for this Moses, we we . not what has become of him." [Ex. xxxii: 1.]

Andrew, we're in the valley, Our leader lost to sight, The shadows gather round us, Foretelling darker night We know not where to wander Without thy helping hand. For thou didst promise guidance Through all this weary land.

Audrew! where art thou staying ? The night is coming fast. The storm-cloud gathers o'er us, And fiercer howls the blast. Hast thou forgotten. strangely, The promise thou didst give, To be to us a Moses As long as we should live ?

We hear thy voice oh ! Andrew, But not in tones of cheer, Thy flattering words to traitors, Fall on the listening ear. In tents of the Egyptian Thou hast at ease sat crown : Thon givest him thy sceptre, And takest off thy down.

Oh, Andrew! hope of nations! We freely gave our blood Te stay the tide of battle That rolled in like a flood. And now you clasp in greeting That murderous traitor hand, As d spurn the loyal soldiers Who died to save the land.

Andrew ! the God of justice Will punish guilt and crime. Though through your partial screening They flourish for a time: While ghosts of famished herces And blood-stained martyr brows, Recall with fearful warning Your worthless broken vows! BAVENBILL, N. H. JUSTITIA

THE NEW ORLEANS FRAUD.

The Way the Government was Swindled.

The heavy swindles on the Government perpetrated by Jacob Loewenthal, a claim agent of New York, were communicated to the Government authorities by a gentleman in the same profession now practising there. Mr. Loewenthal's frauds and forgeries were detected and traced up to an abundance of legal proof, any portion of which is suffieient to convict him of lorgery, fraud and subclaim agent of that city. It appears that Johnson. about the beginning of September ample evidence of the fraudulent practices of . Mr. Loewenthal was submitted to the Secretary of War, and by him referred to the Paymaster General, who on the 2d of October returned the paper to the Adjutant General, from whose office it was immediately Sheridan at New Orleans, who is now eugaged in ferreting out this stupendous piece of rascality, which has plundered the United States Government of about one million of dollars. Last spring Mr. Loewenthal sent two men to New Orleans-Mr. J. Lovejoy, formerly a claim agent in Washington, and Mr. G. Blair who advertised that they were government agents, duly authorized by the government to collect the discharges of colored troops for the purpose of procuring and paying to them the bounties due them. These confederates were provided with a spurious stamp, which they used in their transactions with the colored troops, and which they informed the negroes was a lawful government stamp. When a large number of these discharges were thus collected they were sent on to Washington. Mr. Loewenthal furnished great quantities of blanks to the New Orleans confederates, who made out applications, with the exception of names and amounts, filled up the public in this complete condition, and sent them on to Washington in huge bundles. Here Mr. Loewenthal filled up the blanks with the names and amounts due the soldiers, whose discharges he had previously received, made out the necessary vouchers for pay, forged the signature of the claimant and signed it in a manner representing that the claimant had made his mark having the soldiers' discharge as proof, and presented the claims for payment. Mr. Loewenthai, after becoming possessed of a large sum of money in this manner, started for New Ortice to all claimants that their presence was required at the office in New Orleans to recive their money. Arrived there he was sure to find an immense concourse of colorored claimants in the midst of which, with all the noise and confusion usual on such occasions, he called each claimant up in succession, and by an ingenious and rapid method of payment, which not a little mys- proposed renewal of the war on the Canafied the recipients, who where hurried expression in words, he contrived to force these remonstrances are being listened to from this branch of the service a very graticovered to recover from Mr. Loewenthal all of a portion of the money thus fraudulently obtained the government must be loser, inasmuch as the claims which Loewenthal colected were real, while for their settlement the Government has nothing but forged re-calpts to show. Most of the men whom Loewenthal professed to pay received but a portion of what was due them, and thereore have still a claim against the Governnt. What he said about the "Nigger." Gen. Steedman was a little more than a year ago another man from the Steedman who did his best to break down the Freedmen's Bureau, and show that the Southern States were only joking when they rebelled, and were all the while loyal to the Union. In a speech made by him at Toledo, in May, 1865, he said:

"There is one point which strikes me as necessary to be well understood and recognized as a preliminary to reconstructionand that is the right of the gallant colored heroes of the war to have a voice and a vote in the work. The plans of the President thing that paws gravel, now found his courand his Cabinet on the subject are not yet fully developed to the public, but if I know anything of Andrew Johnson, he will never consent that the man who has borne arms in defense of the Government-though as black as black can be-shall be degraded by a refusal of civil rights. He used yet stronger language in speak in of the right of the Government to fix the terms upon which the Rebel States should be admitted :

"I want the Government never to let go its grasp until it can take the whole monster into its own hands beyond all doubt-and when our authority becomes establishedwhen State Governments are reorganizedwhen representatives are sent to Congress and to the Senate under the advice of loyal and good men, do not forget to give the black man the right of pronouncing an opinion as to how far the electice franchise should be given to those who have borne arms against the Government."

Commodore Vanderbilt and John Morrissey. |

The New York correspondent of the Rochester, N. The sudden expansion of a mere may result in serious if not fatal consequenprize fighter of the truly blackguard order into the owner of a first class gambling house, is a transition so marvelous that it seems like romance. Gossip explains it thus: Morrissey owned a fast horse whose speed annoyed the fancy drivers of the Avenue, and among others the Commodore. thing that paws gravel, now found his cour-sers outstripped. His mortification at this circumstance was great, but not so great as his surprise one day to find the wonderful horse in his stable with a ticket labeled "with the compliments of John Morrissey." The Commodore was overjoyed at being once more leader on the turf. The reply pugilist only asked friendship and patronage. The Commodore cannot deny so open a request, and the two friends join in a dore is an old Wall street operator, and his tance of strict observance of those rules protege now proposes that they bring Wall which will meet the approval of our fellow Street to Saratoga. Words of Wisdom.

The mornings and evenings are just at this time decidedly cool. During the day the sun is warm, and hence, persons who have regard for their health, should be careful about their clothing. Sudden chills or severe colds caught through carelessness, ces. The ripening corn and yellow fruit herald the rapid approach of autumn, and in a little time the summer will be ended, "the time for the singing of birds will be passed, and the voice of the turtle heard no more in the land." Thus our days and years glide rapidly away, mature manhood with its cares and anxieties is upon us, and old age and its infirmities, and finally the night of death, will come in their order. It is a sad and solemn reflection, yet nevertheless true, that of the great mass of living and moving humanity about us, but little will be left a quarter of a century hence. The green earth and the golden sky with the changing seasons, will be greeted by other eyes; other hands will pluck flowers from the wayside, and other voices tune their notes of praise and rejoicing. We should make all we can of the brief period allotted to us here, always having in view the impor-

CENSUS STATISTICS .- A valuable statictical table, exhibiting the rate of increase in the population of the different States in the Union since the census of 1860, is now in affidavits and had them stamped by a notary the course of preparation at the Department of the Interior. The census of 1865 has been received by the Department from seven States, and the increase of population, even during the existence of the war, in which the mortality was usually large, was as follows; Minnesota, forty per cent.; Illinois, twenty-six per cent.; Michigan, seven and a half per cent.; Rhode Island, tour per cent. Another mysterious disappearance has occurred in Chicago. Edgar Tisdale, a wealthy merchant of Dubuque, Iowa, came to Chicago on the 24th of last month, and stopped at the Sherman House. The last seen of him was on Tuesday, the 25th. He had then about $2,000 in his possession. A Texan occupied the same room at the Sherman House with Mr. Tisdale, and left the hotel on Tuesday.
