AUTUMN SUNSHINE.

Soft as the kisses of first born love.

Soft as the kisses of first born love.

Some through the hase of the Autumn skies

Comes the giad sunshine from the realms above eautiful pictures it sketches now. Touched with the glowing hues of old, Painting the valley and mountain's brow With purple and opal and red and gold.

A whisper of beauty the spirit fills,
Tales of a land that fadeth never.
Smahine that gildeth the beautiful hills,
Over the bank of the shadow river. Reautiful rest for the weary soul,

Earth bath no beauty skin to this! Anthems of gladuess forever roll
Over these haleyon plains of bliss. Down steeps of the life's western hill. Beautiful sunshine of hopes and light. Every shadow and hope dispel Lift my spirit from realms of night.

Hoft as the beams of the autumn sun. Sweet as the death of the Summer's flowers Gather the jewels one by one, Taxe my soul to those fadeless bowers.

On a High Key.

In the Seventh District of Georgia there is to be a special election for member of Congress, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of W. T. Wolford. Dr. J. P. Hambleton, of Atlanta, has announced himself as a candidate, in a card which is pitched decidedly in a high key. He sets out with the somewhat startling declaration -"I think the crisis of the great North American Republic is near at hand." The Octor evidently thinks he is evidently just he man for the "crisis." Hear him :

Let us, therefore, keep the faith, but express no regret for the past, only the failre to establish Southern Independence. 'If chosen to represent the 7th District Georgia in the Congress of the United States, I can only subscribe to an oath to faithfully support the Constitution."

The following paragraphs constitute the meat of his card, and we present them with the remark, that it will be a good while beore the writer obtains a seat in the U ited States House of Representatives:

Nashington City, on the first Monday of try into revolution and anarchy, or else, in toat threatened event, the fear of timencial ruin may induce the North to consent that the Southern States be permitted to enjoy their ancient rights under the Constitution.

"The policy of the present Radical Congress mears war, ruin, and degradation to every cherished right and interest of the

"Andrew Johnson. President of the United States, has alone shown a disposition to rive back to the South the forms of Constitional liberty, and so long as at is manifest that he is willing to treat the late Southern Confederacy as co-equal sovereign States, it is the duty of the whole South to award him cordial support. But as the South has no roice in the Legislative department of the Government, let us remain true to the terms of the surrender, true to the Constitution. true to ourselves, and true to our traditionary fame. Truculency and subserviency never yet, in the history of the world, won back lost rights. Submission will secure for us only the pity of our friends and the contempt of our enemies. Let us, then, be calm, but firm, for there is no party in the North strong enough to help the South acquire full measure of her rights under the

"Let us then claim nothing but what the Constitution gives us! Let us make no conresion but what is clearly warranted by the Constitution! And by all means, let us spurn all efforts to amend or change the Constitution! Let us obey the laws, pay the taxes; but under no circumstances apologise for the many thrashings given the representatives of 'the best government the world ever saw,' at Bull Run and other places too numerous to think of! Let us never acknowledge ourselves traitors or infe-

Let us maintain, boldly, fearlessly and defiantly, if we choose, that the South in her effort to establish a Southern Confederacy, was guilty of no crime, and although failing, was simply in the exercise of an inalienable right, the underlying princi-ples and cause of which was the noblest, the grandest, the most righteous and glorious for which any people ever battled! Cringing, crawling, fawning and apologizing has done the South no good. Nothing but blood and plunder will satisfy the radical

"THEM THERE'S GEETH."-They tell a good story on the early appearance of Dr. Bethune in a church then located in the outskirts of the city of Rochester. The edifice was placed in the centre of a large square or park, and, it being summer time, the open doors made the green aisle carpets appear like a continuation of the grassy lawn outside. At least so the matter appeared to a half dozen geese, who quietly walked into the church just as the preacher was closing a splendid passage of eloquence, and was quoting the lines: "Who are those country boy, who supposed the question so eloquently propounded required an answer, at once replied in a bashful lisp: "Them them there's geeth." The wings of the young minister were thus abruptly clipped while he was aflight, and the ones "arrayed in white" were the only dignified individuals in the audience.

So live with man, as if God saw you.

Astonishing Career of a Criminal.

A man named William Tompkins was recently arrested at Detroit on a charge of stealing a horse and buggy in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, for which offence he was convicted at the late session of the Municipal Court in the last named place. When Tom; kins was brought up for sentence, District-Attorney Cottrell sa d that the man had made a tull exposition of the case, and had given information where the property could be found, and a letter to the man who held it, which letter, upon being prensented by Lieut. Kendricks of the Police force, to the man in Illinois, brought the articles. Tompkins had also given valuable information to the authorities here, and in view of this, the District-Attorney asked the Court to impose as light a sentence as possible. The Court stated that under the circumstances it was disposed to deal lenientry with Tompkins, and should sentence him to five years in the Penitentiary, the first day in solitary confinement.

Tompkins is a young man, scarcely 27 years of age. He is small in stature, with a sharp black eye, and is a shrewd and calculating man, who has led a checkered life. His real name is William Henry Harrison Tompkins, although he has followed his career as William Tompkins, Charles Deane Hildebrand, Charles Serville and Charles Melville. He was born in Farmington, Monroe county, Mich. Early in life he exhibited great precocity as a jig-dancer, equestrian performer &c., and in 1848, when scarcely more than eight years of age, he was picked up by Howe's Circus, and adopted by that Company. His parents were respectable people, and he has a mother and other relatives now living in Michigan. In 1848 he went to England with the circus company, but shortly after his arrival there, made the acquaintance of a company of thieves who did business on a large scale on the English and French coasts, and left the circus to join tham. Shrewdness and youth made him a valuable addition to the band. Their first attempt at robbery was on the French coast, where a portion of them were and he was sentenced to one year in the Cliquot prison. His youth elicited the "The Congress which is to assemble at was again nabbed. The parties were sen- feet, sir! No, 'tis not a bug, my friend.' pardoned, although banished forever from adventurer then shook English dust from his feet and came to New York. Crime had obtained such a hold upon him, that he could not resist the temptation, and he committed a robbery, and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. He managed to obtain a new trial, and on this was cleared. a bold and audacious robbery, was convicted and sentenced to ten years at Sing Sing, and in this case also obtained a new trial and was cleared. American soil was getting a little warm for him, and he went to Montreal; was engaged in a robbery, tried, convicted and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary, but managed to make his escape after serving a few months. We rext hear of him in Pittsburg, Penn., where in 1854, he assisted in the robbery of a man one dark night on Allegheny bridge. For this he was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. One of his associates, engaged in the same affair, was sentenced to 23 years, and Tompkins says he has just learned of his death in prison, upon having served 12 years. Tompkins served three years, but at the end of that time made his escape. He says he made several unsuccessful attempts before success followed, in which he was detected and punished. He was in the shower-bath until nearly dead several times, and was ironed to the floor of his cell by the hands, neck and legs for weeks at a time, but persisted in his efforts until he got away. Tompkins says he suffered in those three years enough to kill a common man. After his escape he came to Chicago, where he went again into crime. He was detected and three times was sentenced to periods of one year each in State prison. The last term expired in February

In Illinois he assisted in getting up a revolt and one of the convicts was shot, the rest captured. Some time since he came to Milwaukee, hired a horse and buggy of Burnham & Post and run it into Illinois. He was captured in Detroit, but made no effort to escape, as he might have done. He says he expected his comrades would re-lease him on the train, and after his confinement in jail, he expected they would come to his assistance. They did not do so. He then concluded to lead a new life, gave up to the keeper of the jail a file which he had smuggled in, and told the story of his life. He says he shall serve his time out in Waupun, and if he lives, turn his capability to a good instead of bad account. He says his associates through life have always been of the worst description, and among these mentioned are Fleming and Carbett, who were hung in Chicago. and Crown and Williams, who were hung in Peoria, Illinois. Although only 27 years of age, Tompkins has had upon him sentences amounting in arrayed in white?" &c. A green half grown the aggregate to 56 years of confinement,

Mammoth Planks.

The San Francisco Bulletin gives the following description of mammoth planks made from the big tree of California:-"Visitors at the late fair of the Mechanics' Institute may remember seing two mam-moth redwood planks, which were sawed at Noyo River, up the coast. These planks are the largest ever made, and at great expense and trouble were got out by the exhibitors, Messrs. McPherson & Wetherbee, who desired to attract attention to the great lumber resources along the northern coast line of the State. They are seven feet five inches wide and twelve feet long, and are free from sap or knots. For the purpose of getting them out orders were sent on to New York, to Messrs. Spear & Jackson, for a 12 feet sash saw. As the largeat saw ever made of this description was only 10 feet long, the firm in New York thought there must be some error in the order, and wrote to that effect to the parties here. The order being repeated, the steel plate was made in Sheffield, England, and sent to California. Some persons who desire to exhibit the big planks at the world's fair to be held at Paris n 1867, have offered to purchase them, but the owners have determined that it would be more appropriate and valuable to the State to have our lumber interests represented at Washington. With this view they intend doneting one of the planks to either the agricultural department or the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, where hundreds of thousands of visitors can see it every year; and the other may be exhibited at the world's fair in 1867, to be afterward donated to the British museum in London.

Cat Parody on Poe's Ravens.

The local editor of the Montezuma (Iowa) Republican appears to have a great horror of cats and admiration for the style of Poe's 'Raven." Witness the following poetic effusion: The other night while we lay musing and our weary brain confusing o'er the topics of the day, suddenly we heard a rattling, as of French coast, where a portion of them were captured. HARRINGTON & SHAFFER.

REVOLUTION IN THE MANUFACTURE OF LEATHER -In November last, Sanford A. Hickei, Esq, of West Virginia, secured a patent for the most important discovery of this century. The manufacture of leather has been and is now an exceedingly expensive business, owing great ly to the growing scarcity of the all-important material bark. It has therefore, for years past, been the great object of our chemists and tan-ners to discover a substitute for bark or an assis-tant tanning agent which, in a measure would possess the important "tanning acids" and which would thus lessen the use of the expensive bark. Through the great discovery of Mr Hickel, this important tanning agent has been found, in the shape of a simple vegetable matter," by nature all eady | repared as it would seem, for the pur-pose for which it is now, and hereafter to be freely used. The importance of the discovery con-sists in the abundance of this agent at all times and at all places, of its inexpensive nature, and containing equal if not more tanning acid than the expensive bark, and being used with bark, saving one-half of that expensive material, and making a firmer, strenger, more pliable and heavier article of Leather than can be manufac-tured with bark alone

But this agent possesses additional virtues, as it opens the pores of the hides, and therefore gives immediate access to the acid, and in consequence taus with much more rapidity than bark, thereby saving fremene to two thirds of the time

The discovery of this tanning material willperer at one half its present expense, and the great saving of time in its manufacture will enable the capitalist to make three returns to his former one. It will likewise enable men of limited means to establish themselves in a lucrative business, which heretofore was barred to small be ginners on account of its expensiveness and its slow realization. A great reduction in the price of this staple must eccur when this system comes into general use, and those who first introduce it will be largely the gainers for it is destined soon to cause a revolution in the Leather market. Those who manufacture under the old process cannot possibly compete with those who manufacture under the cheap and rapid process of Mr Hickel. as no change in the construction of a yard is re quired, it is expected that the System will soon ome into general use Some specimens of Leather tanned under this process, at the yard of Mr. George Stadtmiller, at Indiana. Pa, can be inspected at his Saddlery. Mr. S. is owner by purchase, of the right of Indiana county and agent of the American Tanning Company for the State of Pennsylvania, Special information respecting the system. sales or trans-fer can be obtained by addressing Mr. Stadtmiller at Indiana. Pa We refer the reader to the above advertisement. where certificates of the admirable working of the system can be found. Oct. 24th, '66.-41.
