Zaftsman's Journal.

CLEARFIELD, PA., NOV. 20, 1867.

I'VE BEEN THINKING.

I've been thinking, I've been thinking, What a glorious world were this, Did folks mind their business more, And mind their neighbor's less. For instance, you and I my friend, Are sadly prone to talk Of matters that concerns us not, And others' follies mock.

I've been thinking, I've been thinking, To mind our own affairs That positively our neighbors might Contrive to manage theirs. We've fault enough at home to mend-It may be so with others; It would seem strange if it were not, Since all mankind were brothers.

Oh! would that we had charity, For every man and woman, Forgiveness is the mark of those To know "to err is human." Then let us banish jealousy— Let's lift our fallen brother. And as we journey down life's road,

"Do good to one another."

A FAMINE IN SWEDEN. - An appeal is made to the London Times on behalf of the starving; population of Norland, a wide stretch of country in the northeast of Sweden. A communication says: Here, at the best of times, a thrifty and industrious people gain a scanty subsistence from an unwilling soil, and it is a rarely fine summer that enables them to lay by anything against their dreary Arctic weather. For seven years past the crops in that country have been extremely poor. Last winter was one of the longest and severest ever known even in the north of Europe, and before the fitful summer sun and rain had time to ripen them an early frost blighted and entirely ruined the corn crops on which the inhabitants were depending for subsistence during the coming winter. The population is estimated at 70,000 to 100,000, and already the most pitiable reports come of their condition-how bread is not to be had for money, and people are living on roots and the bark of trees. The wealthier classes in Sweden have already done much to help their unfortunate neighbors, but Sweden is not a wealthy country and much more is required than she can do.
