

RAFTSMAN'S JOURNAL.

CLEARFIELD, PA., JAN. 8, 1868.

THE MILE STONE.

Along a road two Irish lads. One summer's day were walking. And all the while with laugh and shout, In lively strain were talking.

About the fair, about the girls. And who were best at dancing; While at each pretty face they met, Their eyes were brightly glancing.

And as they walked for many a mile, They grew in time quite frisky; And now and then, from lip to lip, They passed the darning whisky.

At length before them in the hedge, The roadside view commanding, They saw, its white side lettered o'er, A mile stone lonely standing.

They read, and quickly doffed their hats, With sorrow in their faces; They turned with reverential awe, And stepped back several paces.

"Speak low, we're near the dead," said one, "His grave we'll not be troubling; An old man, sure! 100, and His name is Miles from Dublin!"

Closed for repairs. Judge of Baltimore, is an able judge and a pious man. He knows for what the Island of Jamaica is chiefly celebrated, and thinks with Lord Byron, that "the two things most consolatory to fallen men are rum and true religion."

Disdaining to imitate perpendicularly in bar-rooms, he keeps a demijohn of conceded Otard in his office, and there slakes his thirst as inclination prompts. The Judge has a son who knows his father's habits, and emulates them with filial assiduity. On a Sunday morning the Judge would say, "Well, Rufus, going to the First Presbyterian with me this morning?"

"No, father, I reckon I'll go down to the Second Methodist." But on his way to that edifice, Rufus uniformly stopped at the office, unlocked the old gentleman's private closet, and indulged himself with pleasant fluid.

Every Sunday morning the Judge repeated his laudable inquiry, but Rufus preferred the Second Methodist. The Judge soon began to notice a marked diminution in the contents of the demijohn, and rightly suspected who was the culprit. The Judge emptied the remaining liquid into another vessel and placed it in a secluded place. Next Sunday morning came the usual inter-rogatory:

"Going with me this morning, Rufus?" "No, father, I reckon I'll stick to the Second Methodist." On reaching the office and taking hold of the demijohn, he not only saw with disgust the empty jug, but noticed a small piece of white paper attached to the handle, on which was legibly inscribed these words: "Second Methodist closed for repairs!"

After church father and son met, and looking curiously at each other, smiled a little smile, but said nothing. The "repairs" on that building have not yet been completed. So Rufus says.

AN EXPLOSION.—"These are soup-perficious Lairs, ain't they?"—drawled Joe M—, at the dinner table of his boarding house, yesterday, meanwhile picking out a couple of the color of those of the landlady's false curls, out of his plate of beef broth. The "gentle" boarders were horrified. A tremendous silence, awful from its intensity, followed, and the landlady, speechless and nearly bursting with indignation, left the room and beckoned for Joe to follow her. He went, like a lamb to the slaughter. Of the awful oburgations he received, rumor gives no particulars, but their tenor may be inferred from a remark of Joe, after he had got his "duds" together, and was safely landed out side the house, that he "would swallow a whole 'waterfall' rather than to get another such a tongue lashing."

A juror having applied to the judge to be excused from serving on account of deafness, the judge said, "Could you hear my charge to the jury, sir?" "Yes, I heard your honor's charge," said the juror, "but I couldn't make any sense out of it." He was excused.

The Washington monument has reached the height of one hundred and seventy-four feet, at a cost of two hundred and forty thousand dollars. It is proposed to further elevate it three hundred and seventy-four feet.

The Charleston (S. C.) Courier, in a recent article, said: "However objectionable the Bureau may appear, General Howard has administered its affairs with justice and impartiality among all classes."

The nine hours' labor system went into operation in the different shops of the Reading Railroad Company on Monday, 9th Dec. with a corresponding reduction in the wages of the employes.

The most profitable whaling voyage ever made from New Bedford has just been completed by the Commodore Morris, which brought 2,650 barrels of sperm and 100 of right whale oil.

Q.—What is the distance from the surface of the sea, to the deepest part thereof? A.—Only a stone's throw.
