

RAFTSMAN'S JOURNAL.

CLEARFIELD, PA., JUNE 10, 1868.

GONE.

Place on the pillow The dear little head, Gone! speak it softly— The spirit has fled.

Press the lids lightly— So waxen and cold— Smooth the curls gently, The tiny hands fold.

Take up the playthings, Hide them away In the darkest closet, Ever to stay.

Scatter white rosebuds, Covered with dew— Emblems of pure love, Tender and true.

Is there a sorrow Seems greater than this? Knowing to-morrow We press the last kiss.

Close the white casket, Lock it with care; Never was angel More lovely and fair.

Bear away gently Our idol—to dust, Father in Heaven, To thee we intrust.

Gone far from evil, All is now well; Taken from sufferings, In glory to dwell.

Irish citizen in grief is asked by his friend what is the matter? "Matter, indeed. Why here, I insured my brother's life only two weeks ago, and yesterday he got killed with a derick. And when I came to tell those insurers they'd been after making some mistake, the black-guards try to bribe me off with five hundred dollars—as if I was a haythen to sell my brother's blood."

A Boston Democrat has recently gained possession of a pair of boots upon which the boots of John Hancock were made for twenty years preceding his death. Upon the bottom of each is his original signature. Those who intend to walk in the foot steps of this illustrious man will now doubtless embrace the opportunity of having their boots made upon his lasts.

Men work for money, fight for it, beg for it, steal for it, die for it—and all the while, from the cradle to the grave, nature and God are thundering in our ears the solemn question: "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

A young lady being requested by an old bachelor to take a seat upon his knee, in a crowded sleigh, made the following reply: "No, thank you, I'm afraid such an old seat would break down with me."

A singular freak of nature was seen in an Arkansas town, recently, in the shape of a man with three ears, one on each side of his head, and a third—which belonged to another fellow—between his teeth.

It is reported that a manufacturer in New York has an order for two hundred thousand thimbles, at eighteen cents a dozen, for a gift enterprise, fifty cents, and no blanks.

"What are you doing?" said a father to his son, who was tinkering at an old watch. "Improving my time," was the witty reply.

CLOTHING—full suits, coat, pants and vest for $5—black cloth dress coats—silk mixed outer suits—blue cassimer coats—brown sack business coats—black doekin cassimer pants—light summer pants—black alpaca—linen dusters—short linen coats—boys coats, pants, vests and jackets—overall—linen shirts—cassimer shirts—gun coats—at J. P. KRATZER'S.
