

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

become necessary for this government to receive aid in the solution of the political and social problems which are continually kept before the world by the two republics of the Island of St. Domingo, and which are now disclosing themselves more distinctly than ever before in the Island Cuba. The subject is one of the most important consideration with all the more earnestness because I am satisfied that the time has arrived when even so direct a proceeding as a proposition for annexation of the two republics of the Island of St. Domingo would not only receive the assent of the people interested, but would also give satisfaction to all other foreign nations. I am aware that upon the question of further extending our possessions it is apprehended by some that our political system cannot be successfully applied to an area more extended than our continent, but the conviction is rapidly gaining ground in the American mind that with the increased facilities for intercommunication between all portions of the earth, the political system of the United States is in our constitution, if faithfully maintained and carried out, would prove of sufficient strength and breadth to comprehend within its sphere and influence the civilized nations of the world.
