

For the Farmer.

The Foot of a Horse. The Auburn News, of recent date contained a communication from R. C. Farzason, mechanism of the foot of a horse. He says: 'The external covering of the foot is divided into four parts, namely:—the walls, bars, sole and frog. The external wall serves to defend the sensitive tissues within the wall or hoof and is composed of small filaments or hollow tubes, consolidated in such a manner as to preserve the canal distinct. These canals constitute the excretions, outlets of the hoof, from which morbid material finds an outlet, and in these are found vessels by which horn is secreted or produced. The bars are a continuation of the external wall just described; they form an angle at the heels, which terminates towards the toe; they thus serve to give strength and durability to the hoof, and also to prevent contraction at the heels.

When these bars are cut away or demolished by means of the buttress then the foot often goes to rack and ruin. The sole is much more elastic than the crust, and is a medium of the sensitive faculty, through which, together with its power of elasticity the percussion of the foot against the ground is regulated. The frog is much more elastic than either of the parts just described, and any unnecessary paring thereof is a monstrous evil. On the internal posterior of the above named parts we find a set of beautiful leaves, resembling those found in the under surface of a mushroom. Their number is five hundred. These articulate with a like number given off from the sensitive tissues of the foot proper, each leaf having two sides and an edge, and form a series of articulations numbering three thousand. The whole surface of these articulations measures four square feet, hence the horse having four feet, his body rests on sixteen square feet of surface, all contained within his hoofs.'

BRAN FOR MILK COWS.—Plain bran or shipstuf, is one of the very best kinds of food to increase milk. Why we do not know. It is not fattening. A steer could not be fattened on bran alone, and a cow, if fed on the best of bran and alone, might fall off in her yield, unless her strength and condition were kept up by Indian meal or other strong food. If there is anything in which there would seem to be no strength, it is bran—the mere hull of wheat. It is not stimulating, like brewer's grain, and can certainly do no harm, if it does no good; and yet any farmer who will make the experiment will find—at least we have found—that a cow being otherwise kept in proper condition, her yield of milk will be very considerably increased by giving her, twice a day, a feed of pure bran. The fact is patent, although we are not able to explain it. If there is any one article, which, while keeping up the health and strength of the cow, will also increase the supply of rich, healthy milk, in our experience it is cottonseed cake meal. We have found this to have a great effect on the milk secreting organs. The cows, at first, do not seem to relish it, and it should be mixed with some other feed, but they soon come to like it, and we have never seen any bad effects in any way.

THE VIRTUES OF BORAX.—The washerwoman of Holland and Belgium, so proverbially clean, and who get their linens so beautiful white, use refined borax as washing powder, instead of soda, in the proportion of a large handful of borax powder to about ten gallons of boiling water; they save in soap nearly half. All the large washing establishments adopt the exact same mode. For laces, cambrics, &c., an extra quantity of powder is used, and for crinolines, (requiring to be made stiff,) a strong solution is necessary. Borax being a neutral salt, does not in the slightest injure the texture of the linen; its effect is to soften the hardest water, therefore it should be kept on the toilet table. To the taste it is rather sweet, is used for cleaning the hair is an excellent dentrifice, and in hot countries is used in combination with tartaric acid and bi-carbonate of soda as a cooling beverage.

For a young man who is thoroughly in earnest, farming offers a grand field for effort; but the man who is only half in earnest, who thinks that costly barns, and imported stock, and a nicely rolled lawn are the great objects of attainments, may accomplish pretty results, but they will be very small ones.

A correspondent of the Journal of Agricultural 'says he finds his clay loam ground increased more in productiveness by the use of eight bushels of salt to one bushel of plaster to the acre, than from the application of animal manure. Others have been equally benefited by the application.

Setting hens can be cured by putting water in a vessel to the depth of one inch, putting the hen into it, and covering the top of the vessel for about twenty-four hours. The vessel should be deep enough to allow the fowl to stand up. This is the best remedy I have ever tried.

TO CURE A FELON.—When indications of a felon appear, take a piece of ruffet and soak it in warm milk until it becomes soft; then apply it to the part affected, renewing it occasionally, and keeping on till a cure is effected.
