

For the Farmer.

Hints to Fruit Growers.
 The Gardener's Monthly contains a query from one of its readers, as follows: Is there any way to prevent apple blossoms being destroyed by early spring frosts? to which the editor of the Monthly makes this reply: "Plant late blooming varieties is the surest remedy. In this vicinity, Raule's Jannet often bears when others do not, because its late flowers escape."
 The evil for which a remedy is asked is a very wide-spread one, and if there is any remedy, whoever discovers it will be a great benefactor to the fruit-growing public. We have had in our mind for many years a remedy, which, it seems to us, will prove efficacious. It was suggested by the following facts: Many years ago a very severe frost occurred on the night of June 4th, killing the wheat, corn and fruit over a large extent of our Western country. On that night, in an orchard, a cow happened to be lying under a large apple tree. The fruit on that tree was saved, while on all the others in the orchard it was killed. The warmth from the cow's body and breath, rising into the tree and spreading among the leaves and branches, kept the temperature elevated above the freezing point. A hog lying under a pear tree saved the fruit on it. Now from these facts we draw this conclusion: The heat generated from this cow was not more than would be generated in open air by the burning of a few pounds of hay, or a small amount of grain. The only point is, to so plan it that the heat shall be formed in the right quantity and distributed evenly during the night. A little experimenting showed that by placing under each tree at the time required burning kerosene lamps, boxed up so as to be safe from wind or accident. We give the hint, hoping that it will be tested thoroughly.

EXAMINE YOUR OUTHOUSES.—Every farmer should so arrange his work that he can spare time enough once a week to go all through his barns and outbuildings, and see if anything is out of order. The best time is at the beginning of the week, for then he has no unfinished jobs on hand that must be completed before the Sabbath. In one place he will find a door with a broken hinge; in another a sleigh standing on damp earth; and again he will find a tub with a hoop falling off, etc. "It will take much time?" Then take it—it will be the best spent hour, or half day, if necessary, that the owner spends.

CURE FOR CHAPPED HANDS.—Take three drachms of gum camphor, three drachms of white beeswax, three of spermaceti, and three tablespoons of olive oil. Melt in a cup upon the stove, slowly, stirring it carefully; and in a few minutes it will form a nice white ointment. If the hands are very bad, take an old pair of gloves, sew up all the rips, turn inside out, and rub all over with the ointment, then turn back and wear them every night. This makes the hands beautifully white and soft and prevents all chapping.

BEEF, DRIED.—Take one pound of chipped beef, pour cold water over it in a frying pan, parboil it for five minutes, then drain the water from the beef, place it on the fire, add a large lump of butter and dredge flour until covered; then pour on a pint of rich milk, stirring with a spoon until it thickens; bring to the table hot.

PUMPS.—Pumps exposed to freezing are now usually made with contrivances to let off the water—one mode being to make a small hole in the pipe a few feet below the exposed part, so that the water will always run off before freezing. This hole may be stopped at other times of the year.

OYSTERS, FRIED.—Have a hot griddle, cover it with butter, have a dish of grated crackers, dip the oysters in the crackers one by one and place them singly on the griddle, fry until brown on both sides and serve white hot. Many prefer them cooked in this way to any other.

TO COOK TURNIPS.—Take a slice off the top end and cut off the tap root close, leaving the other part of the paring on. It boils soft, is short grain-ed, and helps the flavor of the turnips.

Suel Foster says a whitewash of lime and tobacco will protect trees from rabbits; and a small amount of earth is an effectual barricade against mice.

Practical analysis, in one instance, showed that the last cup of milk from a cow's udder contains sixteen times as much cream as the first cup.

When chickens roost above the snow, it spoils the hay for horse or cow.
