for the farmer.

The Economy of Extra Labor on Farms. We have on several occasions directed our reader's attention to the great evil of American agriculture-too much land with too FRANKLIN HOUSE little labor. There is no greater mistake than that it does not pay to hire; yet we hear this remark continually by really sensible farmers. It does not pay so well where farmers have to board their hands. It is too much for the women, with the modern difficulty of getting female help. But farmers must be satisfied that it will first pay to have the men-then, that it will pay to build houses for them to live in.

We are pleased to see our agricultural cotemporaries touch on this vital question. In the December number of that excellent paper, the American Agricultrrist, there is a very sensible editorial on the subject. In the course of its argument it says:

"A thriving farmer, to whom we put the question-What kind of expenditure pays best in your operations? answered: 'Labor.' He had then in the field six men, and kept them constantly at work for nine months in the year. He had but sixty acres of land, yet the gross products were about fitteen thousand dollars a year. A single item in in this year's crop was six thousand bushels of seed potatoes. His rough farm was rapidly rounding into form under his plastic touch. Old stone walls had been removed, and the small fields opened into large ones. Rocks had been blasted and sunk and the rough places made smooth. The wet places had been made dry by deep drains. He subsoiled, and guarded every crop against drought. He kept at work upon improvements, and made the crops pay for them. He said he regretted nothing so much as that he had not employed more help. This clear-headed farmer is unquestionably right. Nothing pays so well as labor, even at the present high prices. Almost all farm products have advanced more than labor in the last eight years."

Our own experience confirms this. We added to our property last spring a contiguous tract of about thirty-five acres of rather poor land, for which we had to buy about six hundred dollars' worth of manure. For this additional land we have employed regularly three extra hands. Whenever it has been too wet to work at other matters, the hands have been set to work to clearing ditches, digging sod from the swamp, or gathering old vegetable matter anywhere; and with some manure from the barnyard. lime and salt, mixing the whole together. We keep a simple farm account against all the principal farm crops and occupations, and find this heap of compost has cost us about three hundred dollars. The immense heap is certainly worth much more than of one hundred per cent, on the men by this manure matter alone, besides having the men on hand in strong force to "put through" a job just at the very moment when it ought done. The profit on this alone is often so great, that it will almost pay to have the men at hand to do nothing; so that the six hundred dollars of manure is nearly clear gain. -Press.

Ploughing up Raw Soil.

We sometimes hear farmers remark, that ploughing deep, they get less grain; that bringing up the new yellow soil, their crops suffer. It would be strange if this were not the case; for this soil, even if mellow, is raw, just like manure when it is "green," or "long." It is not yet converted or chan ged into plant food. It needs just what the long manure needs-to be changed by the heat and the air-that is, decomposed or

When the top soil is less fertile than it used to be when the land was first tilled, you may rest assured that this under is always better than the upper soil, because the up per has deitorated while the under has not, but rather improved.

It is, therefore, unadvisable, nay, suldi cal in some soils, to turn up deeply the underg ound in the spring or in the fall at sowing time. The cold, cheerless ground will not help the grain, and were it not for the other soil mixed with it, an almost total failure would be the result.

But turn it up in the fall, and let the frost and the elements take hold of it, and you will have another soil; it is turned into manure, a good part of it. A little lime mixed with it, scattered, and harrowed in, or manure, or both, would facilitate the process. In the string sow, either with or without another ploughing, and you will find no more occasion to complain. We have great fertility to draw upon from below, but it requires managing .- Evening Post, Rib ron's antidote to the poison of a rattlesnake -R. Iodide Potassii 4 grains; Hydrarg. Chlor. Corris. 2 grains (corrosive sublimate) Bromine 5 drachms. Ten drops of this mixture diluted with a tablespoonful or two of brandy, or wine, or whisky, constitute a dose, to be repeated if necessary. It must be kept in glass-stoppered vials, well secured, as the air will affect it. This is an invaluable remedy.

KEEP A WRENCH AND USE IT. -Those who wish to keep their wagons and carriages in good order, should place a wrench on every nut at least once a month. This will save nuts, save bolts and prevent rattling and wear and tear. There is a great deal depending upon looking after the running gear of vehicles as well as the harness. For want of a little attention accidents have happened and damage been sustained
