MORE BARBARISM .- The "barbarians" of Delaware, on Saturday a week, "cracked their whip in the face of civilization," at New Castle. The new whipping-post and pillory were duly inaugurated. Three petty offenders were successively exposed in the latter, and several others, whose grade of offense was higher, received respectively from ten to thirty lashes at the former ; and all this barbarity was exhibited in the presence of "a gaping crowd of men, women and children." What manner of people are those Delawarians? Surrounded by civilization, having constant intersourse with civilized and Christian people, how comes it that they are neither civilized nor Christians? Such an infamous exhibition is a blur upon our free institutions, and outside the State which tolerates it, it is universally execrated. Let us hope that the custom which neither a sense of decency nor respect for Christianity seems able to overthrow, will soon fall before the might of public opinion, never to be revived, and to be remembered only with shame and regret. The Harrisburg Patriot, the organ of the Democracy of this State, on the 18th, came up gallantly to the defense of this barbarous practice of the Democracy in Delaware. Perhaps, the leaders of that party in Pennsylvania intend to put a "whipping-post and pillory" plank in their platform this fall, which will account for the Patriot's admiration of that "peculiar institution" of the "Democratic State" of Delaware.

IRELAND.-Disturbances, particularly in the counties of Tipperary and Westmeath, continue to be the order of the day in Ireland. There is no occasion to believe that these are connected with or resulting from Fenianism, though, undoubtedly, the Fen ian feeling is very prevalent through the greater part of Ireland The trouble has arisen out of the miserable landlord-andtenant system in that country-out of absenteeism, which takes away capital, in the shape of rent, to be expended in foreign parts-out of the insecurity of tenure and the enormous rate of rent for land-out of anger, poverty, oppression, neglect, misgovernment, and hopelessness. Mr. Gladstone must deal, speedily and stringently, with this tenant-right question, which is real and pressing and not a sentimental grievance. Never had statesmen a better field for doing good, nor a more difficult game to play for a nations benefit.

2. If the "enormous and grinding taxation" we are now paying to "monopolists," or, in plainer terms, the customs now raised the on foreign imports, is "grinding" our people into "poverty and want," why is it that a constant streams of immigrants will come from nations enjoying Free Trade to our languishing, tariff-cursed country?

3. If Free Trade were declared to-morrow, and foreign manufacturers were permitted to compete in our markets with our own, would not fabrics made by European workmen at fifty cents a day drive those made by American workmen at two dollars and fifty cents a day out of the market?

4. When the American manufacturer findhimself undersold at home, by those engaged in the same business in Leeds, or Manchester, or Cornwall, in England, must he not either discharge his hands and close his mills, furnaces, &c., or reduce the wages he is now paying to his employees?

5. Must not the mechanics, under this state of affairs, either stop work or submit to the reduction, or find something else to do? 6. Do the Free Traders want the workmen of America to work for lower wages than they now get? Or, if not, do they want them to give up skilled labor (and so lose the years spent in learning a trade,) and work at agricultural pursuits? 7. Will not our country under Free Trade which must inevitably destroy her manufac tures, become absolutely enslaved to the countries which furnish us with everything we need from a fork to a steam engine; and will we not, when declaring war against England-for instance-or she against us, experience some difficulty in the way of cannon
