BENDING THE TWIGS .- The Indians are undeniably on the war path again. Daily records of their cruel outrages come to usly telegraph, and, doubtless, not the half is told. We fear that they need another sound thrashing before they will take kindly to "thee" and "thou," wear broad-brimmed hats over their scalp locks, and evince a dis position to raise bread sinstead of begging and stealing it. The only fear is that they will never do so. Be this as it may, there i much sense in the suggestion of a veteran Indian fighter, who thinks that the popoosor should be secured and reared and educated in the usages of eivilization. He thinks the adults are hopeless cases. But is sanguine regarding the feasibility of reclaiming the young savages. The force of this suggestion must be felt by all. When we would tame a lion or a tiger, a rabbit or a partridge, we never take the old ones. We secure the tender young, and our efforts are often attended with success. Why not apply the principle to the taming of wild men? Let us do the best we can with the red adults, which we confess seems more likely to be SHEBIDAN'S best than the Quaker' best-but let us make sure of the red childs rea, by educating them up to a better life. Perhaps we may find that SOLOMON'S wisdom is as applicable to Sioux human nature as to any other variety of that article, and that if we train up an Indian child in the way he should go, when he is old he will not depart from the reservations we have placed him on, to murder emigrants and steal their horses.

The public debt statement, just published, is a flattering exibit, and will prove exceedingly grateful to he people. It shows that under faithful management the debt has decreased during the month of May, nearly fourteen millions Mr. Boutwell's term there has been a derease of over twenty millions.

At this rate we may safely count upon an xtinguishment of debt equal to eighty mil. was being unloaded. Three of the cars beions annually, for during this period the gan to sink rapidly, in a few mnutes after Treasury mot the coin interest upon the May five twenties, a drain almost as severe as it will be compelled to withstand at any other period. But a greater annual decrease than this may be anticipated, since each month f Mr. Boutwell's occupancy shows a largeincreasing surplus. During the chaos of they were about twelve feet below the sur- ing desc. hange in March the exhibit was nothing ore than hopeful; in April a surplus of nearly six millions was recorded, and now we have the magnificent figures above set forth. The ponderous and complicated machine is daily and hourly becoming more controllable. When the battle which the Secretary has been waging with speculators is settled, and he enters into the enjoyment of that confidence which his victory entitles him to, the great work will be completely in hand, and the decrease of last month may secome a fair monthly average.

An attempt was made to draw the other two on the track, but it failed, and during Sunday afternoon and yesterday the cars continued to sink, and at last accounts face. About two hundred and twenty-five laborers were at work yester day on the track. but the relaying of it has been found to be more difficult than was at first supposed. The bog is quite large ; and where the track crosses it is about one hundred yards bread. It was sounded in several places yesterday and found to be about thirty-eight feet deep.
