

For the Farmer.

Points of a Good Cow.

If you desire to select a good cow, you should choose one with the following points, viz: Head of medium size, with a strong, well-marked, long structure, broad between and high above the eyes, and wider between the roots of the horns; with a capacious but not clumsy muzzle, full nostrils, an eye full and mild, not too large and prominent, jaws slightly turned upwards—and with a calm and at the same time strong and resolute expression; neck long, well muscled, slender, tapering toward the head, with little loose skin hanging below, and not dropping too much forward of the shoulders; shoulders thick and sharp at the top, and lying close to the chine; somewhat prominent, strong muscled and loose jointed at the base, long from the elbow to the point in front of the base, fore quarters light, comparatively, with a straight, slender fore leg, especially below the knee—broad knee, and broad, fat, capacious foot, carcase deep, round and full about the heart, and increasing largely toward the hind quarters; back straight and loosely jointed, pelvis wide over the hips, long and supplied with strong muscles; hind quarters broad, strong on the outside, and well cut out on the inside, with strong hock and long tapered hind foot; tail long and slender, strong at the roots, and set on in a line with the back, not too high or too low, udder evenly divided into four quarters, extending well forward, filling the cavity between the thighs behind, not being low and with a long, easy and crooked milk vein; teats set far apart, and of medium size and length; hide loose and elastic, but not too thin, hair soft silky, and of lively appearance and abundant in quantity; ribs broad and flat surface, with thin edges, and especially the two last widely separated.

"Every cow should fatten one pig," is an old rule and a good one. That is, the daily product of a good cow should be in butter-milk or whey enough to feed one pig, after the cream and cheese are extracted. With regard to the size best suited to dairy purposes, I think on our ordinary New England pastures, a cow that will dress in good condition, six hundred pounds is the best.

HOW TO MARKET BUTTER.—The Boston Cultivator tells how the best farmers near Philadelphia get so high a price for their butter: "First, they always make a first-class article, so their customers, sure of getting the best there is, will not desert them on account of a raise in the price. Second, they bring in their butter in a showy and attractive condition. No pot of delf ware, no tub or pail of oak or hemlock, no vulgar firkin is used to emboss those noble balls, golden-brown with the aroma of white clover and Paoprauteuse lining in the firm grain. A large tin vessel, designed expressly for the business, has chambers at each end, into which ice is put. Thin wooden shelves, about three inches apart, rest on little projections from the sides. A layer of balls is then placed on the bottom and covered with its shell, but not so as to touch or mar the handsome print of a sheaf of grain which stands out on the top of each ball; on the shelf another layer of prints, and so on till the vessel is full, they containing forty or fifty pounds of prints. The tin, with ice in each end, is then set in a wooden tub which has been cooled with ice or spring water. Over this is drawn a cover of padded carpet, with oil-cloth on top. Thus hot air and dust is wholly excluded and the butter rises to the city and opens in the market house in as fine condition as when packed in the spring house. In just this way, with this degree of care and skill, is the best Philadelphia butter made, marked and marketed. No wonder the Philadelphians would rather pay seventy-five cents than go back from such manna to the leeks and onions of the common firkin.

TO KEEP A STOVE BRIGHT.—Make a weak alum water and mix your "British Luster" with it; put two spoonfuls to a gill of alum water; let the stove be cold and brush it with the mixture; then take a dry brush and luster and rub the stove until it is dry. Should any parts, before polishing, become so dry as to look grey, moisten with a wet brush and proceed as before. By two applications a year it can be kept as bright as a coach body.

LEMON DUMPLINGS.—Add the juice of one lemon to the rind, which must be chopped fine; mix half a pound suet, also chopped, with half a pound of bread crumbs, one egg, enough milk (or water) to make a stiff paste; add the lemon, sweeten to taste, divide into five or six equal parts, and boil in separate cloths for three-quarters of an hour, and serve up with wine sauce.

CORNS.—One teaspoonful of tar, one of coarse brown sugar, and one of saltpetre. The whole of them warmed together. Spread it on kid leather the size of the corns, and in two days they will be drawn out.

Some farmers commence business in the morning in such a hurry that they determine what to do first.

A Virginia farmer says that with sheep and clover he can make any land productive, unless it has the barrenness of the sands of Sahara.
