

For the Farmer.

The Farm.

Farming is a profession, not to say a science. If any one doubts this statement, let him leave his city home—for no one bred in the country will doubt it—and undertake to cultivate even a garden of half an acre for the summer.

It is true that agriculture has been the last to receive the impetus of modern science. It is true that many agriculturists are content to go on in the way of their fathers, because experiments are costly. But it is also true that they are unable to compete with those who understand the use of new instruments, methods and fertilizers.

CULTIVATE YOUR APPLE TREES.—A correspondent in Montgomery county, Pa., informs us that he can succeed with his apple orchard in obtaining a crop as well as any other field upon his farm.

SURFACE MANURING.—The best English farmers concede that in very few cases manure acts better for being plowed in. In cases of long, that is, strawy manure, it must be covered, that it may decay; and when yard manure has not been composted, as it should be, the ammonia will escape, unless it is covered with earth.

FEVER IN ANIMALS.—When your animal has a fever all stimulating articles are to be avoided. Bleeding to reduce the circulation; purging for removing irritating substances from the bowels; cooling drinks to allay thirst and supply decreased secretions; rest and quiet to tone down the system, are what common sense would seem to dictate, and what nature would seem to require.

A correspondent of the rural world says: None but the plowman knows the advantage of having a bright plow. The writer has tried a great many articles to prevent plows and other agricultural implements from rusting. There is nothing so good and handy as patent axle grease.

To be a model farmer implies the best of faculties, because in agriculture one has the greatest number of competitors and the fewest number of well settled, trustworthy maxims.

ATTENTION!—PRESERVE THE FRUIT TREES. Curculio, wood-borer, and all other insects so destructive to fruit trees, successfully prevented from committing their ravages on orchards. The tender vine and ornamental tree alike preserved in root, body, branch, and bud, from the attack of any kind of vermin or insect by Fisher's new and useful process for preventing the bore or other insects from injuring fruit trees, shade and ornamental trees, shrubs and vines. Patented September 12th, 1866. This remarkable invention has been tested in the most thorough manner, and has in every instance given the most conclusive proofs of its merits. In no case has it failed to prove itself a perfect and complete protection against the various kinds of insects that for years past have been preying upon all kinds of fruit and fruit trees. Testimonials furnished if desired. Individual and company rights can be had upon application to D. HENSHAW, at Rockton, Clearfield county, Pa., who is agent for Clearfield county.
