for the farmer.

Norice Your Fowls. - A somewhat noted English writer says: "The more notice there is taken of fowls, we believe, the better they will be. In a natural state they would, no doubt, lay a batch or two of eggs in a season, hatch them, and consider the end of egg production fulfilled. In a domesticated state, we wish them to rear the advisable number of broods, and, in addition, to continue to lay eggs as many months in the year as is commensurate with their welldoing; therefore, the further we remove our fowls from the wild state to perfect domestication-that is the tamer we can make them, the better for ourselves and their happiness Notice, therefore, the young broods and the old fowls, and let the children notice them too (not handle them, for chickens should never be caught unnecessa rily), and your fowls will repay good feeding by doing good service."

· CUTTING CORN. - Farmers have began cutting corn in Berks county. The old mode of "topping" it has been generally abandoned for the reason that by cutting the fodder is all saved, and the fields are at once cleared and ready for a new crop. If corn is cut and stacked in good season, the cuttle will eat all but the but of the stalk; and the labor of cutting as well as husking is lessened. The season for cutting is when the kernels, two-thirds the distance up the ear, are well seared or hardened, and the top of each ear well advanced into the dough. If it is allowed to stand later than this, the stalks die, and are thus very much injured for fodder, if not entirely worthless, and the corn loses something of the sweetness that belongs to it if left to harden (in the rain) after the stalk is severed from the root .-Reading Journal.

LABOR. - There is much truth in the statement that none so little enjoy life, and are such burden to themselves, as those who have nothing to do. The active only have the true relish of life. He who knows not what it is to labor, knows not what it is to enjoy. Recreation is only enjoyable as it unbends us. The idle know nothing of it. It is exertion that renders rest delightful, and sleep sweet and undisturbed. That the happiness of life depends on the regular prosecution of some laudable purpose, or lawful calling, which engages, helps and enlivens all of our powers, let those bear witness who, after spending years in active usefulness, retire to enjoy themselves; they leisure a burden rather than pleasure.

A citizen of Fair Haven, Connecticut, after an experience of some years, has concluded that it pays a profit of about 100 per cent- to raise chickens. He keeps a book and writes down a daily account of the eggs, and commencing in July, 1868, to August, 1869, he obtained from a start of fifty hens 5,752 eggs, the yield being divided among the months as follows: July 521, August 596, September 320, October 128, November 239, December 359, January 313, February 562, March 665, April 963, May 601, June 525. The yield this year is rather better than that of last year during the same period, and he has now 33 hens which lay from 12 to 18 eggs daily.

DRYING FRUIT. - A correspondent of the Rural World finds an ordinary hot bed a capital place for drying fruit. A floor is laid inside on which to place the fruit. Then put on the sash, raising both ends about two inches, to admit a free circulation of air, or the fruit will bake as in an oven. Here the fruit will not be wet in a shower, nor troubled by insects, which will be kept away by the covering and the intense heat. Parboiled green corn has been sufficiently dried in one

An individual of much practical experience says that green elder, deposited in and about mows of hay or grain, will prove an effectual preventive against the depredations of rats and mice. These animals are frequently very destructive in their rayages, and if a remedy so simple and easy of attainment be efficacious, it deserves to be known and remembered by all. We have long known that the stalks of the common mullen will drive rats from their haunts.

THE IONA GRAPE.—The editor of the Germantown Telegraph says he has a vine of this much lauded grape, planted six years ago, which though it contained a bunch or two last year, has an abundant crop at the present time-of green fruit that will never come to maturity. Our friend says that the Iona may do in certain latitudes, but in this it is comparatively worthless.

It is stated that if kerosene lamp wicks Who first brought goods down to the Highest market price paid for are soaked in strong yinegar for twenty four hours and thoroughly dried before used, all smoke will be avoided, the wick will last twice as long, and an increased brilliancy will be obtained.

If poultry is infested with lice, damp the ekin under the teathers with water, then sprinkle a little sulphur on the skin. Let the bird be covered with insects or parasites, they will disappear in the course of twelve hours.
