

For the Farmer.

OCTOBER.

Shake the last dead blossom From the thorny bough; Royal rose or thistle— Which is fairer now? Worst of weeds and queen of flowers, Pride and mock of summer hours; Dry and shriveled, old and brown— In the wet grass tread them down. Poppies, with the morning's Burning beauty flushed; Little-cared-for daisies, Used to being crushed; Loveless, scentless, side by side— Which has now most cause for pride? Dry and shriveled, old and brown— In the wet grass tread them down. Rankly growing night-shade, Child of gloom and death; Lilies, white and saintly, With celestial breath; Useless now to bless or harm. Vain their poison, vain their balm; Dry and shriveled, old and brown— In the wet grass tread them down. Amaranths, we fancied Flowers that could not die; Morning-glories, fading Ere their dew was dry— Which has now the nobler claim? Which has now the prouder name? Dry and shriveled, old and brown— In the wet grass tread them down. Acorn and nettle, Myrtle-wreath and rose, All, all fall together When the north wind blows. Summer hours will not last After summer-time has passed; Dry and shriveled, old and brown— In the wet grass tread them down.

Burying Potatoes. When a farmer has a dry piece of land near his house, a small knoll or hill, and has a large crop of potatoes, which he desires to keep till spring, it is better to bury them than to store them in his cellar, besides being cheaper and easier in most cases. They will keep pretty well when buried in any manner, provided they be not exposed to dampness and frost; but the following is a good one.

First dig the pit on soil that no rains will settle in and wet the potatoes. Four or five feet deep will do, in an oblong shape. Then as soon as the potatoes are thoroughly dried, take the longest and best straw you have, and line the sides. Then fill in with potatoes and raise the heap as high as the potatoes will lie, without spreading beyond the limits of the pit, which will be in the centre some two feet above the level of the soil in a common sized pit. Then cover with straw, the butts resting on the ground, not in a manner that would shed rain if not covered, when they should be covered with earth, firmly packed, and in a roof-like shape, at least eighteen inches or two feet deep on all sides. On the top of the earth, then place a couple of wide boards, nailed together in the form of a roof, and we will warrant your potatoes to come out in the following spring in the best condition.

Mrs. J. Smith, of Saugerties, N. Y., writes the following: "If any of your lady readers should wish for something for a dessert when they have company unexpectedly and are not prepared, the following recipe will be found excellent, and the dish wholesome and very quickly made: One pint of milk and one pint of flour, two eggs, a pinch of salt, flavor with nutmeg bake in square tin pans in a hot oven about half an hour, as it is quickly made, and can be put in the oven just before sitting down to the table, and be just ready when wanted. Serve hot with butter and sugar."—Ec.

Live stock of all kinds require good feeding, for they lay on flesh and fat much more readily in mildy warm weather better than in cold, and when severe weather comes, it is almost impossible to make cattle and hogs hold their own unless warmly sheltered. Animals in good condition are easily maintained so, unless exposed to great cold, for they are already as if well blanketed. Horses and sheep bear vicissitudes of weather better than other stock if they have enough to eat, but if either is allowed to run down, it is hard to get them up again.

TOMATO CATSUP.—Boil one bushel of tomatoes until soft, then squeeze them thro' a fine wire sieve; add a half gallon of vinegar, a pint and a half of salt, two ounces of cloves, one-quarter pound of allspice, one ounce and a half of cayenne pepper, and five heads of garlic, skinned and separated; mix and boil three hours, or until reduced one-half; and bottle without straining. We have eaten excellent catsup made from the above recipe. The garlic may be omitted by those who do not desire its flavor, without injury.

APPLE JELLY.—Fall pippin apples are decidedly the best for jelly. To one peck of apples, after they are pared and quartered, take three pints of water and the juice of one lemon, with a very little lemon peel, stew until soft, then pour into a jelly bag and let drain; set it on the fire; take off any scum that rises; let it boil twenty or thirty minutes, trying occasionally with a spoon to see if it jellies. If ready to put in glasses the syrup will drop thick.

Why is the best letter for a dairymaid? Because it makes better butter.
