Butter for Winter use.

It is indispensable that butter should come hard in the churn. If it does not no subsequent manipulation can make a good article of it. This is secured in warm weather by ice pounded fine in a bag and thrown in the KEYSTONE STORE churn exactly at the proper time. This mixes through the freshly granulated particles of butter, compacting and hardening them. Butter may be worked too much, and enough to spoil it. The smallest amount of handling or working, so as to extract the water and buttermilk, is desirable when only for immediate marketing or use. When butter is to be kept for two weeks, it should be salted at the rate of one pound of salt to twenty-two pounds of butter, which requires working well in the butter.

In regard to putting down butter for winter use, and to have it kept sweet, it is im portant to apply salt to the butter at the rate of one ounce to every pound of butter, or one pound of salt to sixteen pounds of butter. After the salt has been worked in. the butter should be allowed to stand twenty-four hours, and then be worked over again. By this second working it is not only rendered more solid and compact, but salt is more thoroughly incorporated, and the butter will keep sweet a longer time.

It is then ready to be put in clean jars-I prefer stone jars-and cover it with a strong brine of pure soft water. This will keep butter a year fresh and sweet, as we have &c., &c., &c. tried it and know from experience. The brine, in the case of a jar, acts as a heading, keeping the air out. This is equivalent to canning fruit.

GREASING WAGONS .- Few people fully appreciate the importance of theroughly lubricating the axles, of wagons, and carriages, and fewer know what are the best materials and the best methods of applying them. A well made wheel will endure common wear from ten to twenty-five years, if care is taken to use the right kind and proper amount of grease; but if this matter is not attended to, they will be used up in five or Counterpanes, a large assortment of Ladies' an six years. Lard should never be used on a Children's Wool Hoods, Nubias, Shawls, &c. wagon, for it will penetrate the hub, and work its way out around the tenons of the spokes and spoil the wheel. Tallow is the best lubricator for wooden axles, and castor oil for iron. Just grease enough should be applied to the spindle of a wagon to give it a light coating; this is better than more, for the surplus put on will work out at the ends and be forced by the shoulder bands and nut Varnishes of all kinds; Gold leaf in books, and Oilers, Tallow Cups, Oil Cups, Gauge Cocks, washers into the hub around the outside of the boxes. To oil an axle-tree, first wipe the spindle clean with a cloth wet with spirits of turpentine, and then apply a few drops of castor oil near the shoulders and end One teaspoonful is sufficient for the whole.

GIRDLED TREES .- It may be a matter of interest to some of our readers to state that girdled fruit trees can be saved; and we see no good reason why the same treatment will not have the same effect upon all trees. The WEST BRANCH BITTERS experiment has been tried with satisfactory results. The method is as follows: To graft five or six scions, as large around as a pipe stem, and long enough to reach over the girdled place into the tree. First notch the live bark above and below the girdle, then spring the shoots or scions into these notches and fasten the ends with wax. The principle is, that the scions grow rapidly and spread over the girdled surface. We have been told by a gentleman who gave this method a trial that he saved some very fine fruit trees in this way, after they had been apparently ruined by the gnawing of mice.

We presume every farmer understands the usual method of making cut nails flexible by heating them, but if instead of allowing them to cool in the air, they are thrown when red-hot into linseed oil, it will prevent their rusting almost as long as though they were galvanized. Those who have occasion to use cut nails in place of wrought should not forget this simle method of preventing rust.

The kitchen is more important than the parlor. It should be kept perfectly clean well lighted, properly ventilated, and supplied with necessary conveniences. Dry wood and a brisk fire.and an abundant supply of soft water, will greatly facilitate the labor of housewife or servant.

J. J. Thomas says that fortunes are lost by farming in three ways-in badly wintering stock, in want of proper attention to rotation of crop, and in raising weeds. He calculates that it is easy for a farmer to lose $20,000 in forty years by raising weeds.
