How to Use a Grindstone.

After the grindstone is rigged ready for use, some little skill in its management is necessary in order to sharpen tools properly and keep the stone itself in order. Each kind of tool requires a manipulation peculiar thereto in grinding down to an edge, and the nature of the edge itself is so different in different cases as to involve the use of stones of very various grit. One of finer texture, but still clear and sharp in the grain, will be found best for common carpenter, millwright, and workshop implements, and, when possible, should be run steadily, rather slow than fast, and should have just enough water supplied upon its face to keep it wet without rippling over the edge of the tool—this having a tendency to hide the edge from the keen eye which the grinder must have upon the progress of the sharpening, if he would bring the tool to the condition by which those of a good workman are always known.

As a general rule, the stone should turn toward the operator, as this tends to prevent the thin burr or feather edge which results when the stone moves in the opposite direction. It is very common to hold the tool, especially when the edge is upon the end, near the top of the stone; but it is better in most cases to hold it lower down, for example, about midway between the top of the stone and a horizontal line passing through its axis. In grinding such a tool, for example a plane iron, the iron should be grasped by the right hand in such a way as to guide the tool, while the fingers of the left hand are laid upon the back of the same to keep it in contact with the face of the stone, at the pressure required to provide the requisite abrasion. The harder the pressure, the more rapid the work, but beyond a certain limit this will render the hand unsteady and the bevel will be badly formed. This angle of the bevel should be about thirty-five degrees, in other words, this should be the inclination of the chamfer with reference to the flat surface of the blade. Even more important than this, getting of the exact chamfer, is the holding of the tool so that the line presented by its edge shall always be kept parallel with the axis of the stone. This done, if the face of the stone is true, the edge will not be ground down at the corners, as is frequently experienced when this precaution is neglected. Unless the grinder has acquired skill by much practice, it is a good plan in sharpening plane irons to leave the top iron on during the grinding—care being previously taken to set it back about an eighth of an inch from the edge of the iron. The end of the top-iron will constitute a kind of guide line by which the operator can see whether the edge is being made straight and exactly at right angles to the length of the tool.

There is a great deal in the manner of holding a tool to the grindstone. If we take it at arm's length, it has a kind of leverage upon the muscles, and consequently wobbles and the work is not well done. It is best to press the arms, as far as the elbows, closely against the sides, and in moving the tool across the face of the stone to do so by a slight lateral swaying of the body, without changing the position of the arms with reference to the tool which by this means is held steadily in place. This plan of grinding plane irons is also applicable to chisels and the like, only that with narrow chisels there is more liability of making the edge oblique, and, of course, even more care is needed in the grinding. Gongs are ugly things to grind. They are held in the same manner as chisels, except that the fingers of the left hand, pressing them against the stone, are so held as to permit an alternating semi-rotary movement of the tool, say within the limits of one-third of a circle. This movement is similar to that given a bradawl in boring a hole. With these tools the stone is turned toward the operator, but with gongs used for wood turning, and which have elliptical edges, the reverse is the case. The last-named variety of gong is turned back and forth on a half circle, as in grinding a carpenter's gong, but simultaneously with this should be made to traverse across the stone—"not," says Byrne, "in a straight line, as in most rectilinear tools, but in a semi-circular path, like an inverted arch, the sides of the gong being applied nearer the top of the stone than the middle of the gong." Although this is not the most clear upon paper, it will be perfectly intelligible to any one who will try to follow it in practice, and a few trials will make the operation easy to the eye. These directions for grinding wood cutting tools are so simple that it is a wonder that they should not be universally followed, but that such is not the case may be seen in almost any workshop. The angles to which, ultimately, the bevels of different tools are brought, varies much according to the hardness of the wood or other material that they are intended for cutting. According to Byrne's "Hand-book," the smallest is twenty-five degrees, but it is often somewhat less than this. Plane irons, as we have seen, have about ten degrees more. Chisels and gongs should be ground to about thirty degrees, or between those of a spokeshave and plane iron. Turning chisels may sometimes run to an angle of forty-five. Molding tools, such as are used for ivory and for very hard wood, are made at from fifty to sixty degrees. Tools for working iron and steel are beveled at an inclination to the edge of from sixty to seventy degrees, and for cutting gun and similar metal range from eighty to ninety.

OFFICE OF FISK & HATCH.
BANKERS AND DEALERS IN GOVERNMENT
SECURITIES,
No. 5 NASSAU STREET, NEW YORK,
FEBRUARY 15th, 1870.

The remarkable success which attended our negotiation of the Loans of the Central Pacific Railroad Company and the Western Pacific Railroad Company, and the popularity and credit which Loans have maintained in the market, both in this country and Europe, have shown that the First Mortgage Bonds of wisely located and honorably managed Railroads are promptly recognized and readily taken as the most available, safe, and advantageous form of investment, yielding a more liberal income than can hereafter be derived from Government Bonds, and available to take their place.

Assured that, in the selection and negotiation of superior Railroad Loans, we are meeting a great public want, and rendering a valuable service—to both the holders of Capital and to those whose intrinsic merit and substantial character entitle them to the use of Capital and the confidence of investors—we now offer with special confidence and satisfaction the

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS
OF THE
Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, connecting the Atlantic coast and the magnificent harbor of the Chesapeake Bay with the Ohio River at a point of reliable navigation, and thus, with the entire Railroad system and water transportation of the great West and Southwest, forms the additional East and West Trunk Line, so imperatively demanded for the accommodation of the immense and rapidly growing transportation between the Atlantic seaboard and Europe on the one hand and the great producing regions of the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys on the other.

The importance of this Road as a new outlet from the West to the sea magnifies it into one of national consequence, and insures to it an extensive and profitable traffic from the day of its completion; while, in the development of the extensive agricultural and mineral resources of Virginia and West Virginia, it possesses, along its own line, the elements of a large and profitable local business.

Thus the great interests, both general and local, which demand the completion of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad to the Ohio River, afford the surest guarantee of its success and value, and render it the most important and substantial railroad enterprise now in progress in this country.

Its superiority as an East and West route, and the promise of an immense and profitable trade awaiting its completion, have drawn to it the attention and co-operation of prominent capitalists and railroad men of this City, of sound judgment and known integrity, whose connection with it, together with that of eminent citizens and business men of Virginia and West Virginia, insures an energetic, honorable, and successful management.

The Road is completed and in operation from Richmond to the celebrated White Sulphur Springs of West Virginia, 227 miles and there remain but 200 miles, (now partially constructed) to be completed, to carry it to the proposed terminus on the Ohio River, or near the mouth of the big Sandy River, 100 miles above Cincinnati, and 350 miles below Pittsburgh.

Lines are now projected or in progress through Ohio and Kentucky to this point, which will connect the Chesapeake and Ohio with the entire railroad systems of the West and Southwest, and with the Pacific Railroad.

Its valuable franchises and superior advantages will place the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company among the richest and most powerful and trustworthy corporations of the country; and there exists a present value, in completed road and work done, equal to the entire amount of the mortgage.

The details of the Loan have been arranged with special reference to the wants of all classes of investors, and combine the various features of convenience, safety, and protection against loss or fraud.

The Bonds are in denominations of $1000, $500 and $100.

They will be issued as Coupon Bonds, payable to Bearer, and may be held in that form; or the Bond may be registered in the name of the owner, with the coupons remaining payable to bearer attached, the principal being then transferable only on the books of the Company, unless re-assigned to bearer; or the coupons may be detached and cancelled, the Bond made a permanent Registered Bond, transferable only on the books of the Company, and the interest made payable only to the registered owner or his attorney.

The three classes will be known respectively as:
1. "Coupon Bonds payable to Bearer."
2. "Registered Bonds with Coupons attached."
3. "Registered Bonds with Coupons detached," and should be so designated by correspondents in specifying the class of Bonds desired.

They have Thirty years to run from January 15, 1870, with interest at six per cent. per annum from November 1, 1869. Principal and interest payable in gold in the city of New York.

The interest is payable in May and November, that it may take the place of that of the earlier issues of Five-Twenties, and suit the convenience of our friends who already hold Central and Western Pacific Bonds, with interest payable in January and July and who may desire in making additional investments, to have their interest receivable at different seasons of the year.

The Loan is secured by a mortgage upon the entire line of Road from Richmond to the Ohio River, with the equipment and all other property and appurtenances connected therewith.

A Sinking Fund of $100,000 per annum is provided for the redemption of the Bonds, to take effect one year after the completion of the road. The mortgage is for $10,000,000, of which $2,000,000 will be reserved and held in trust for the redemption of outstanding Bonds of the Virginia Central Railroad Company, now merged in the Chesapeake and Ohio.

Of the remaining $8,000,000 a sufficient amount will be held to complete the road to the Ohio River, perfect and improve the portion now in operation and thoroughly equip the whole for a large and active traffic.

The present price is 90 and accrued interest.

A Loan so simply secured, so carefully guarded, and so certain hereafter to command a prominent place among the favorite securities in the market, both of this country and Europe, will be at once appreciated and quickly absorbed.

Very respectfully,
FISK & HATCH, Bankers.

P. S.—We have issued pamphlets containing full particulars, statistical data, maps, etc., which will be furnished upon application.

A GOOD FARM FOR SALE

Persons desirous of purchasing a farm, are directed to examine the valuable property in Lawrence township, and situate at the mouth of Clearfield creek—two miles East of the Borough of Clearfield, and convenient to schools and churches.

The property contains ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY ACRES, part of which is improved and under a high state of cultivation—the whole being well fenced. Coal, iron ore, and other minerals are found on the same.

The buildings consist of a good TWO-STORY DWELLING HOUSE, 25 by 40 feet—a GOOD BARN, and other convenient outbuildings. And there is growing on the premises a young bearing orchard of choice fruit trees.

This property is very pleasantly situated and being at the confluence of the creek and the river, it is a very desirable and inviting residence for a private family. Its position on the creek and river also render it a good situation for a boarding house during the raising season.

The west and north sides of this property being bounded by the creek and river, makes it one of the best farming grounds in this section, and as such yields a handsome revenue yearly.

The owner, Mr. M. A. Frank, having permanently settled in the west, is the reason for disposing of this valuable property. For terms, etc., apply to
