only, the can, glass cover and rubber to use. Fruit can be kept just as well without, as with, sugar, and those sealed up for pies are better without any, as they will retain their flavor far better. Tin cans or kettles lined with porcelain, so as to preserve the most perfect flavor of the fruit, are the best. While my fruit is being sealed I put a gill of cold water in each can, and fill up with hot water, putting the covers and rubber also into hot water. The fruit need not be Desires to inform his old friends and enstemen cooked-only heated to the boiling point unless in preparing pears or quinces, or some other hard fruits, that may require more cooking, and then only just so that a straw a varied assortment of furniture, among which is may be passed through always being careful to have juice enough to cover the fruit. As soon as boiling hot, empty a can and fill; then another, or as many as can well be attended to. Let the cans stand open until you can comfortably bear the hands upon them. Meanwhile more fruit may be heated.

Get thick writing paper in round pieces the size of the top of each can, and when the contents of the cans are cooled, slip a piece over the top of the fruit in each can, and at once fill up on the top of the paper with boiling juice saved for the purpose, and put on the covers as soon as filled, according to the directions given.

I often seal up cherries and tomatoes, only for winter use, in one gallon stone jars that are small at the top, prepared just the same as for glass. Leave off the covers, seal with melted rosin, adding a little tallow. Try it on a piece of cloth, if too brittle, add more tallow, and viceversa. Cut a paper also for the top of the jar, just so it will come over the edge, and dip a piece of thick cloth into the resin, only upon one side, spread over the jar and tie down ; now, with a spoon, dip and spread on the hot resin, until entirely covered, pressing down the sides with the hands dipped in cold water. When cold, if the jar is air tight, the cover will be depressed a quarter of an inch or more. But if it is level, then you must seal it over again. Those who can common sour cherries will find them greatly improved by first draining off all the juice, and then covering them with water scald and drain off, and cover over again for sealing, canning, preserving, or drying .- Farm and Fireside.

COUGH IN HORSES. - A cough is rather a symptom than a disease. It is often caused by the irritability of the air passages, occasioned by indiscretion in treatment of in fluenza, distemper, and disease of the respiratory apparatus. It is also one of the effects of liver disease, and sometimes of worms. Too much dry fodder, especially chaff, often aggravates a cough. Carrots and other roots and green feed may be ad vantageously used. Give your horse a warm stall, with bedding a foot deep, with moist cut feed, a little laxative medicine and not much hard work.

A correspondent of the Rural New Yorker says he can make fifty pounds more butter from a cow, during the season, by churning the milk than by churning the cream only.
