The rumored resignation of Secretary Cox, of the Interior Department, is current. Mr. Delano will probably succeed Mr. Cox.

A boiler explosion on the 11th, in Lowell, Mass., resulted in the death of five persons. Five or six others will probably die from injuries received.

West Virginia claims the first snow of the season, an indefinite quantity having fallen at Kingwood, as the local paper says, on the 4th of October.

Mr. Ludwig Kurtz, a venerable editor, died at his home in Aaronsburg, on September 22d, aged 87 years. He was prob ity of one. ably the oldest editor in the United States.

Robert E. Lee, the commander of the late rebel army, of Northern Virginia, died at Lexington, in that State, on Wednesday his age.

The Altoona post office was broken into, last week, and robied of $1,500 in stamps and registered letters. No blame is attached to the postmaster. The thieves are still at large.

He was also twice elected a member of Congress, where he served with distinction. Mr. K. was highly respected by all who intimately knew him.

Certain Democratic journal sneer at the return of "conscience money" to the Treasury. Such a thing was never heard of during the old regime; not because there was not plenty of money that ought to have been returned, but because those old Demcratic officials preferred cash to a calm and quiet conscience. They were hardened sinners.

An exchange says: "Ward Beecher, according to old-school orthodoxy, has gone and apostatised by giving up the brimstone theory in respect to future punishments. We care not whether the fuel be brimstone or benzine. It must be one or the other, or Democracy never will get justice. One of the two is a political necessity. Nitro glycerine might do. if it dida't go off so quick."

Upon hearing of the death of R. E. Lee, a custom house officer at Savannah lowered the U. S. flag to half mast. When the collector of the port learned the fact, he ordered the flag at full mast again, which created some excitement. Secretary Boutwell being notified of the state of affairs, approved the action of the collector.
