AN incident in connection with the mild weather that has prevailed in Clearfield county thus far, this season, is the fact, as we are informed, that one of our citizens on Friday last, plucked a Dandelion bloom from a stock growing on the hillside, back of town.

Local Correspondence.

BURNSIDE, Dec. 1, 1870.

MR. EDITOR: John Randolph, of Roanoke, once sarcastically remarked to a western Senator that the Ohio river was dry six months of the year, and frozen over 'tother six. The western man by way of retort told the crusty old North Carolinian that the Mississippi was a little too thick for swimming and not quite thick enough to walk upon. Now if "old Johnny" had only known of Burnside he could have given the Buck Eye a "cutter" on the mud bridge. From the hotel to the lower bridge the walking is outrageous; mud almost knee deep. And woe to the pedestrian who undertakes to navigate it without top boots. Mine host of the "Slab" brought down a barrel of flour on his one boss sled last Saturday and when he passed between K. & C's and Daniel's nothing was visible except an old slouch hat, a horse tail and a pair of ears. The business men are beginning to think seriously of board walks, and it is well they should.

Do you remember that in one of my letters I spoke of "Sweet Auburn"? A worthy namesake of Goldsmith's famous deserted village. The abiding place of Jolly old N. B. Well, our Auburn, like its predecessor, is literally a deserted village, its former occupants having gathered up their household goods and departed toward sundown. Billy's goods had been advertised and his sale came off a few days before the "fitting." After the vendue he announced to his many friends that he had purchased a store box full of prize packages, and on the morning the "fitting" departed he would present to each of them a box containing a prize. Accordingly on the morning selected a large concourse of our principal citizens assembled at Sweet Auburn for the double purpose of bidding good bye to Uncle Billy and drawing the promised prize. After the compliments of the day had been exchanged the interesting ceremony of drawing began without further delay. N. B. and Kd served out the boxes, and it was interesting to notice how well each prize suited the wants of the lucky drawer. S. C. drew a Shelbena wagon, painted green (typical), D. F. drew a pair of large ear rings and a gilet, E. H. W. drew the piece down on coal 6 cents, the schoolmaster drew a lantern and umbrella, the post-master drew a head of cabbage and a peck of beans, Esquire R. drew a looking glass and a bottle of Hall's Hair Renewer, J. H. received a blank package which so exasperated him that he drew a piece of charcoal from his pocket and drew a plan of a church steeple on the hall door. J. H. B. drew a little pamphlet, entitled, "How to tell the truth." He tried to draw off the Burnside bridge wall but struck it five logs deep and knocked his raft all to ginger smash. J. A. drew a barrel of petrified whale oil, the only sample ever seen in this country. "Jacob" drew a pair of N. 14 boots (a leetle tight across the toes), and H. P., who had been on the ground since long before daylight, drew a large sized dinner horn. This ended the interesting ceremony, and all being ready the wagons drew up to the gate to receive the passengers.

"Now everything's ready you'd better be moving" said P with a wave of his big dinner horn. "It's time to be getting away with this ditto" for daylight is coming as sure as you're born."

The caravan moved slowly off amid the cheers of the multitude.

"Requiescat in pace!" shouted the schoolmaster, as the train wound slowly up the hill. "Never mind the cats," yelled Billy, "the old woman give 'em a piece just before we started."

"This hair renewer may be a good article but it don't effect my bald pate a particle," replied the "Squire," and, he continued, "I wouldn't care, you know, only I have so much face to wash and would like to reduce the surface some if possible."

J. H. B. Truth is mighty and must prevail. J. A. A petrified whale oil here for sale. P. M. Cabbage and beans a very good fish. H. P. Blow your horn if you don't feel a fish.

At twilight I sauntered down toward the deserted village. As I came in sight of the dwelling, something in the back yard attracted my attention. From my point of observation it looked exactly like a new-found land dog house erected on a telegraph pole. I bravely entered the yard and found friend Kit trying on a pair of B's old boots.

Lucky OLD BEN.

WESTOVER, Nov. 30, 1870.

S. J. ROW, Esq.: I told you in a former letter that Westover was a small village, situate on the head waters of Chest Creek, Chest Township. Since that time it has improved very much. Hurd & McKee have put up a spacious store room, 24x40 feet. The second story is a fine hall, occupied by the Temple of Honor, which institution is, I think, in a flourishing condition. James McEwen has repaired his house, and made other improvements, which adds much to the appearance of our village. Our streets are without sidewalks yet, but some of the citizens think sidewalks would be better than tramping through mud, and so we live in hopes. W. N., a prominent mechanic of our village, has put up a new and comfortable house, moved his old one to front the street, and made other improvements, so that he has now a solid block of about 150 feet front. So much for improvements. We also have a shoemaker who is doing a wholesale business, while Mr. S. L. P. puts new faces on our old clocks, so that we can tell at a glance what time it is in New York, and when they eat breakfast in California. The logmen are doing a thriving business in Chest Creek; or rather they are doing the pulling business now, and expect to do the driving by and by.

A little incident happened a few evenings ago, which is worthy of note. A young chap was seeing the village after dark, and his nearest way being through the grave yard, the entrance of which is a gate. A block of wood about twelve inches long by 3 inches in diameter is suspended to a rope to swing the gate to—the block of wood being near the fence. When the gate opened the block gradually rises up and, in the dark, presents the appearance of something crawling up the fence. Our young hero, on opening the gate saw this, when he jumped back exclaiming, "By jolly, a coon!" Closing the gate, cautiously, he retreated a few paces, and after rallying his excited nerves and arming himself with a stout cudgel resumed the attack, when, lo! and behold, he discovered it was only a block of wood.

The citizens of Westover have organized a Literary Society; if any thing of interest occurs, I will let you know.

The Evangelicals are having quite a revival at their church, about a mile from this place. MORE ANON.

Recommended by the medical Faculty and many thousands of our best citizens. Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis; send for Rosadalis gratis to Health Book or Almanac for this year, which we will blank for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information. Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore, says: "I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alternative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in a case of secondary syphilis in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of alternative ingredients." Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrofula and secondary syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleanser of the Blood I know no better remedy. Samuel G. McFadden, Manufacturing Chemist, says: "I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis and an entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, 1 wish it for my brother, who has rheumatic eyes." He claims in British Medical of Edin., Ohio, writes: "I have suffered for twenty years with an intractable eruption over my whole body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.
