THE STORM.

The air is chill, the rain falls fast, And dark and wintry is the night ; Keen is the bleak and stormy blast And not a star affords its light. How can I ungrateful be, Who have a house to cover me?

How many poor around me roam ; Not knowing where to lay their head; Without a friend, without a home. Except it be a mud wall'd shed, How can I then ungrateful be. Who have a house to cover me?

How can I then, while thus I live, Be discontented with my lot? The Lord doth countless mercies give, Yet who so often is forgot; Oh may I ever grateful be For all the Lord has given to me !

ONLY A FARMER'S WIFE.

Two women sat together at sunset in the porch door of a white cottage that stood under its "ancestral tree," and among the fields of wheat and corn, like a poet's vision of a quict resting place of some weary, suffering soul.

And one of these two women had eyes to see, ears to hear, and a heart to feel and appreciate it all. She was a tail and state ly lady, apparently some thirty years of age -not exactly handsome but with a grace of air and manner peculiarly her own. The careful toilet, the nameless air, elegance and luxury, the city dame. While the weary glance in her large, dark eyes, which even the pleasant quiet of that sunset hour could not quite drive away, showed that time had not dealt gently with her and her heart's idols, but had thrown them, shattered and ruined, at her feet.

Her companion was some five years her junior, and many times prettier-a little round faced, apple cheeked woman with dark blue eyes and dark brown hair, and a rounded figure was set off to the best advantage by the afternoon dress of the tinted muslin that she wors.

At present the pretty face was almost spoiled by a queralous discontented expression. She was contrasting her own hand, plump and small, but certainly rather brown with the sleuder white fingers of her city triend, all glittering with rings. "Just look at the two?" she exclaimed. "That comes of making butter and cheese, and husband might change as mine has done,

Jenny was silent. Here was the dark side of the bright picture which she had never seen or dreamed of before. "You love your husband, Jenny ?" said her friend, after a time. Jenny opened her eyes widely. "Love him! Why, isn't he my husband," was her naive reply.

FIT. S. D. P. KIND

Mrs. Van Howth laughed. "Some women 'in society' might think that a reason why you should not love him." she said drily. "And he loves you, also?" "I should die to morrow if I thought he did not !"

when God wills it, not before. I dare say the unseen. things."

"Don't talk of it, Margaret! I could not bear it! Why, his love is all the world to me! How could I bear to lose it !"

"Then don't wish him to be a city mer chant, my dear. I dare say there are a great many good men in the city,-men who love their wives ; but on the other hand there are so many temptations, especially in society, that I sometimes wonder not that so many go estray, but that so many remain true to themselves and their duty." She spoke absently, and her eyes had a thiags.

Jenny ven ured a question. "Margaret, is yours a happy marriage? Do you love your husband? And does he ove you ?"

Mrs. Van Howth impulsively started, and turned erimson.

"Jenny, I would have loved him-I would have been a good wife to him; but he never loved me. He brought to place me at the head of his house, because he thought me lady like and interesting ; that was all. He told me so once, though not quite so plainly as this. And since then we have each taken our own way, independent of each other. I seldom see him at our house in town. I have my carriage, my diamonds, my opera box. In the season, I go to Saratoga, or Newport, while he favors Long Branch with his presence. We are perfectly polite to each other; we never quartel; and I suppose were I to die tomorrow, he'd be the most inconsolable of widowers-for a week! Jenny you will not wish to change places with me again. Your pleading, Dear boys, come back !

Dear Boys, Come Back. Thus read a quaint and charming advertisement for the re-opening of a boy's school, and as it met our eye, the thought came, how many hearts might echo that entreaty-Dear boys, come back. How many a le: ely household where there are no longer pattering footsteps and merry voices, where all is silent save the memory of the little ones who have been called away to their angel home; or have grown up and gone forth into the busy, bustling world and are thus as far removed from the familiar scenes of their childhood as if they had in-"Tut, child ! -Dear boys, come back. Alas ! the longing can never be fulfilledthe boys are no more ! Some, with the dew of the morning still shining on their sunny hair, were years ago committed to the keeping of mother earth, 'ashes to ashes--dust to dust." And the others are tall and stalwart.strong and active men. with bearded faces and careworn brows. They turn aside, at long in tervals it may be, from their own family circles, to gather under the old roof tree; to far-away glance, as if they dwelt on other | talk of the past, the present and the future; but it is with divided interests, with new plans and purposes; the new home has besome dearer to them than the old, and other boys are clustering around their fire-ides, who, in turn, shall go forth to build nests for themselves.

Thus goes on the continual progression. and therefore, while time shall last will the old cry be heard, Dear boys, come back.

O, ye mothers, who are careful and troub ed over the countless tasks devolving upon maternity, do not murmur; grow not impatient at the constant demands on your time and attention : do not complain, though the little feet are restless, and the little hands mischevious, and the wills stubborn and wayward. Strive to fill your home with joy and gladness; make it a fair and pleasant spot to your children. Do not look on your toil as unrequited or irksome. Gather all the roses, and let not the thorns rankle on your pillow. Garner up happy memories for yourself and your little ones, for the day will surely come when yo i, too, will reiterate the

The Kidneys are two in number, situated at the apper part of the loin, surrounded by fat and consisting of three parts. vis : the Anterior, the Interior, and the Exterior.

The anterior absorbs Interior consists of tis sues or veins, which serve as a deposit for the urine and convey it to the exterior. The extetior is a conductor also, terminating in a single tube, and called the lireter. The preters are consected with the bladder.

The bladder is composed of various coverings or tissues, divided into parts, viz : the Upper, th

Lower, the Nervous and the Macous. The upper expels, the lower retains. Many have a desire to arinate without the ability, others urinate without the ability to retain. This frequently occurs in children.

Tax GRAVEL .- The gravel ensues from neglect or improper treatment of the kidneys These or gans being weak, the water is not expelled from the bladder, but allowed to remain; it becomes fererish, and sediment forms. It is from this deposit that the stone is formed, and gravel ensues. DROPSY is a collection of water in some parts of the body, and bears'different names, according to he parts affected, viz: when generally diffused over the body, it is called Anasarca ; when of the

That man Heaven that you have him as he is, a good told the truth that said woman's work is true man who loves you; and never mind never done. I know mine never is. Oh. the butter and cheese, Jenny, so long as dear, dear ! to think that you. Margaret. your own happiness and his is made up with should have married a city merchant, and them." be as rich as a princes in a fairy tale; and here I am planted for life, plain Mrs. Hiram Parke, and nothing in the world to compare with you I am sick of being only a farmer's wife."

"Jenny, it seems to me as we sit here in this quiet place and look out over all these no longer now. To be the wife of a man pleasant field that are your own-it seems who has no love for you! What "lower to me that you are almost wicked to talk like that.

"I dare say." replied Mrs. Jenny, "but yon would not like it. Margaret. You would never wish to change places with me." Perhaps not. Would you like to change with me?" Yes.

"And be Mrs. Van Howth, instead of Mrs. Hiram Parke ?"

handsome busband.

"Well, I don't mean to give up Hiram," she said at last. "I only mean that I wish as he flung himself on the porch seat, and he was a city merchant, instead of a farmer, and as rich as your husband is ; that is all." "Acd that is a great deal," said Mrs. happy, while he enjoyed his rest. Poor Van Howth coldly. "Jenny, if your wish Margaret! Happy Jenny! Never again could be granted, do you know what your life would be ?"

What yours is, I suppose. What any isly's is in your position."

Exactly. But what is that life? Do you know ?" "How should I?"

"It is a weary one, Jenny, with more senuine hard work in itethan all your making butter and cheese can bring."

"Oh. Margaret !"

"And ob, Jenny ! Believe me, my dear, there are no people on earth who work harder than the fashionable who only have their own annusement to provide for. A long life of mere amusement is a dog's life, Jenny at the best."

"I should like to be convinced of it by actual experience," said Jenny, doubtingly. So I said and thought once. I have been convinced. And it is all vanity and veration of spirit, my dear." "But how?" persisted Jenny.

"How! In ten thousand ways. If you live in the fashionable world, you must do as the fashionable world does. You must rise and dress and shop and lunch, and dress again and drive, and dress again and appear at certain balls, parties, concerts, exactly as your friends do, or be voted BI-ZARRE, and out of the world altogether. You, my poor Jenny, who are by no means foud of dress, what would you do at a fashionable watering place in the hottest days of August, with five changes of toilet from morning to night, and a French lady's maid to tyranize over you all the time into the bargain ?** "Horrors !" ejaculated Jenny.

"Balls that you must go to in spite of fatigue, parties that you must grace in spite of heat, calls that you must make on people whom you detest ! Oh, Jenny, I should far rather be at home with the butter and clouse it I were you."

exposed to the same templations. Thank blessed !"

She arose from her seat as she spoke, and strolled down the garden path alone.

Jenny did not follow her. She sat on the step, lost in thought. The riddle of her friend's life was at last made clear to her. She had often wondered why Margaret in the midst of her wealth and luxury, should seem so sad and ill at ease. She wondered deep 'can there be for a proud and sensitive woman than this? Jenny turned with tears in her eves to come from the field. "Well, little woman," and then she got the rough embrace and the hearty kiss for which she was looking. Yes, Margaret was right. The butter and cheese were of very little consequence, Jenny hesitated. She dearly loved her while love like this made her tasks easy to endure. And the rosy cheeked little woman bent foudly down over her "Hiram," prove populous a certain valley. The following questions and answers passed in the process : "Do you mean to tell the committee,' said the counsel for the opponents of the new line, "that you never saw an inhabited house in that valley?' "Yes, I do," replied the witness.

"Did you ever see a vehicle there in your life ?" "Yes."

"Very good.

Some other questions were put, which led to nothing particular, but just as the witness was leaving the box the learned gentleman put one more questian : "I am instructed to ask you if the vehicle was not the hearse of the last inhabitant ?"

"It was. A Virginian asserted the belief that a man who has a stomach that can always digest cabbage has physical force enough to lay stone wall all day without fatigue.

"No SECRET, DOCTOR !"-"I noticed." said Benjamin Franklin, "a mechanic, amone a number of others at work on a house erecting but a little way from my office, who always appeared to be in a merry humor-who had a kind and cheerful smile far every one he met. Let the day be ever so cold, gloomy. or sunless, a happy smile danced like a sun beam on his cheerful countenance. Meeting him one morning. I asked him to tell me the secret of his constant happy flow of spirits. 'No secret, doctor,' he replied. 'I have got one of the best of wives, and when I go 'o work she has always a kind word of encour agement for me; and when I go home she meets me with a smile and a kiss ; and then meet her handsome stalwart husband, as he tea is sure to be ready, and she has done so many little things to please me, that I can not find it in my heart to speak an unkind > word to anybody."" What influence, then, has woman over the heart of man to soften it, and make it the foundation of cheerful and pure emotions Speak gently, then; a kind greeting, after the toils of the day are over, costs nothing. and goes far towards making home happy and peaceful. Young wives and girls, can didates for wives, should keep this in mind as to older wives, experience may already have taught them this important lesson. And what we say to wives, we say also to husbands-a loving word and kiss go very far with a woman.

SICK HEADACHE -A recent medical writer thus accounts for sick headache, from which so many persons suffer. He attributes it to a weak stomach and imperfect digestion, and that the attacks are usually preceded by a greater than ordinary appetite. The stomach is naturally weak, and so long as it is not crowded it works kindly. By and by ly occupied by Dr. Kline more food is put into it -ol more irratating kinds-than it can digest. It ferments, an acid state is produced, the acid acts as an irritant upon the coats of the stomach, and this irritation is taken as a call for lood, to satisfy which, more is taken, and all to no purpose; the poor stomach revolts, but with the rest during the headache, and the relief from the vomiting, it recovers its wonted tone. If this be correct, the remedy is a very superb one, abstinence from food for a meal or two, or a denial of the unnatural eravings of the appetite, would seem to be all that is required. Sufferers from this disease should test the value of this advice.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Feb. 25, 1867. H. T. BELNBOLD, Druggist:

DEAR SIR :- I have been a sufferer, for upward of twenty years, with gravel, bladder and kidney affections, during which time I have used various medicinal preparations and been under the treat ment of the most eminent Physicians, experiencing but little relief Having seen your preparations extensively ad vertised. I consulted with my family physician in regard to using your Extract Buchu.

I did this because I had used all kinds of ad vertised remedies, and had found them worthless. and some quite injurious; in fact, I despaired of ever getting well, and determined to use no remedies hereafter unless I knew of the ingredients It was this that prompted me to use your remedy As you advertised that it was composed of buchu. ubebs and juniper berries, it occurred to me and my physician as an excellent combination, and with his advice, after an examination of the article, and consulting again with the druggist, I concluded to try it. I commenced its use about eight months ago, at which time I was confined to my room From the first bottle I was astoniabed and gratified at the beneficial effect and after using it three weeks was able to walk out. I felt much like writing you a full statement of my case at that time, but thought my improvement might only be temporary, and therefore concluded to defer and see if it would effect a perfect cure knowing then it would be of greater value to you and more satisfactory to me. I am now able to report that a cure is effected after using the remedy for five months. I have not used any now for three months, and feel as well in all respects as I ever did.

MILLINERY GOOD Your Buchu being devoid of any uppleasant taste and odor. a nice tonia and invigorator of the system. I do not mean to be without it whenever eccasion may require its use in such affections. M McCOnMICK Millinery and Coat Making
