

For the Farmer.

WAGONS.—The larger the wheels of a vehicle are, lighter will be the draft, and besides larger wheels produce less friction, because their velocity is less.

It has often been asked whether spring or fall planting is the best, for my part I would prefer spring planting for fruit trees or plants, but if intended to order from a distance, I would advise you to order in the fall, and have them in your winter, in a dry sheltered spot; in this way they will be ready to plant as soon as the ground is in a good condition, but if intended to procure them of a home nursery, you may save that trouble, as you can order them in the spring, and plant them as soon as the ground is in good condition.

Feed the sound leaves of cabbages and plants that fail to head, and also the tops of the root crops. Those calving at this time should have succulent corn, pumpkins and roots, with oil-cake. This will give them plenty of milk, and the flow may easily be maintained. They should have warm stables and a sunny yard. Cows in full milk can not eat too much of proper food. If they grow fat upon it, it is pretty sure evidence that they are better fit for the stables than for the dairy.

How to save your shoe soles. It consists merely in melting together tallow and common resin, in the proportion of two parts of the former to one part of the latter, and applying the mixture (hot) to the soles of the boots or shoes—as much of it as the leather will absorb. One farmer declares that this little recipe alone has been worth more than five years subscription to the newspaper publishing it.

Careful observation of the habits of the robin in an ornithologist in Massachusetts, has proved that he is beneficial one hundred and forty-two days, injurious sixty days, and harmless one hundred and thirty-three days. If there is one reason for killing him, there are three for sparing him.

Never use had hay on account of its cheapness. Because there is not proper nourishment in it.
