for the farmer.

A Few Present Garden Hints.

Tomatoes can now be set out with tolerable safety. Should there be cool nights, likely to bring frost, the plants should be covered with old paper, boxes or flower-pots. Little is gained by early transplanting. A single night may retard the growth for two weeks, and put them behind those set out a week or ten days later.

Egg plants do generally better by not being set out before June. If the season is very favorable the last week in May can be ventured on. There is no plant so sensitive of cool nights as this. As soon as the weather becomes hot, both the egg and the tomate plants should be well mulched. The latter especially requires a strong soil-it cannot be too rich.

The Yellow Radish for summer use can now be planted. This variety seems to do better than any other for the very warm | WOOD AND

Now is the time to destroy the steel-colored bugs. The surest way is to go over HATS & CAPS the vines every morning for a week or ten days and pinch them to death. They can now be easily seen. One must be expert Also, Flour, Bacon, Salt, Fish, Grain, &c., &c., all in catching them, as sometimes they fly, but generally leap away if the branch is shaken.

of which will be sold on the most reasonable terms, and the highest market price paid for Grain Wool and all kinds of lumber and country They eat, in their present form, the fruit buds, destroying them sometimes entirely; while their progeny, in the shape of a small dark worm, feed upon the leaves, and if let alone will in some seasons seriously damage the crop. They select the older vines. We have never seen any upon vines under five Radishes sown around canteloupe hills will frequently protect the young plant from the depredations of the striped bug. The insect prefers the radish leaf to the canteloupe. A sprinkling of whale oil soap and water will quickly destroy them.

Violets should be transplanted in shady places as soon as the weather sets in. Evergreen trees, and young fruit trees should be earefully forked around and grass removed. Trees set out this spring should be well mulched. They, of course, have been well staked.

Curled Lettuce stands summer weather much better than the Cabbage Lettue, which is the best for hotbeds and early outdoor planting.

To PREVENT HORSES KICKING, -A correspondent says: "Having a horse that would kick everything to pieces in the sta ble, that he could reach, and having found FLOUR, a remedy for it, after trying many things, such as fettering, whipping, hanging chains, behind for him to kick against, &c., I send it to you. It is simply fastening a short trace chain, about two feet long, by a strap to each hind foot, and let him do his own whipping if he cannot stand still without it, and he will not need to have boards nailed to his stall every day,"
