for the farmer.

Does Farming Pay? We often hear it said there is no longer any money in farming. In the course of our experience we have heard similar statements concerning other occupations. A printer, adhering in these days to the old fash ioned hand-press, might make the same complaint, and with as much justice as the present farmer, who carries on operations in the old style, or a carpenter who makes his moldings by hand and planes boards. The improvements in machinery of all kinds have so quickened the demand for labor in every branch of industry, that the farmer as well as the mechanic must abandon hand labor and use machinery, or his profits must be eaten up in expenses. Hay may be made and put in the barn by machinery now at the rate of one dollar per acre. By hand the cost would be four dollars. The old style crop is half a ton per acre; now three times that is a fair crop. The difference is just that between eight dollars per ton and sixtysix cents. The wide awake farmer has this difference for his profit, eight dollars being about the market price for hay in many places. The same is true of most other crops, grain and roots especially. In feeding stock and making and using manure, equally large differences result. So of breeding stock; the old-style rooter, and the modern Berkshire, are not more unlike than are their several values when made into pork. The same of the ill fed, rough-coated native heiler or steer, and the sleek, well fed grade Jersey or Ayrshire. The same is true of many farming communities in respect to roads, fences, and schools. All these must be fitted up with modern improvements, or farming as a business must suffer. We know whereof we speak, when we emphatically deny that farming is an unprofitable business. The capital invested will, if right ly used, return in this branch of industry as good an interest as any other, besides having the invaluable merit of indestructibility. A work-shop or factory may burn up, but land remains not only intact, but | a. L. REED. from uncontrollable circumstances is ever J.F.WEAVER advancing in value. So the labor of the farmer is sure of some remuneration if properly directed. Poor farms and poor farmers are the ones whose crops fail through drouth or excessive wet. On a properly conducted farm these may damage the crop, but will never destroy it. The divine promise of seed-time and harvest is for the especial benefit of the farmer; but it rests with him-with the best and latest improved APPLES. -Pick before fully ripe, pare all over, slice from each side to the core-the thinner the slices the quicker they will dry, and the higher price they will bring. All pared and sliced fruits should be dried in their line of business, such as the shade and out of the wind, to preserve a light color, on which very much depend self in a great measure whether the folfil-

more enterprising neighbor secures it. $-A_{g}$

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Missouri. Illinois, Tennessee, Alabama. Savannah, Roanoke, James and many others with their vast tributaries, during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkable to darring seasons of unusual heat and draness, are invariably accommanied by extensive derangements.

Skeleion and Glove Fitting Corsets, Hoop Skirts. many others with their vast tributaries, during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkable so during seasons of unusual heat and drames, are invariably accompanied by extensive devargements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. There are always more ar less obstructions of the liver, a weakness and irritable state of the stomach, and great terpor of the horels, being clogged up with viliated accommutations. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, as they speedily remove the dark colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secreticus of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs. The universal populary of this valuable remedy in regions subject to missimatic influences, is sufficient evidence of its power as a remedy in such cases.
