I LIKE AN OPEN, HONEST HEART.
Where frankness loves to dwell,
Which has no place for base deceit,

I scorn that one whose empty acts,
And homed words of art,
Betray the feelings of the soul,

Contempt is but a gentle word,
A feeling far to mild,
For one who confidence betrays,

Then give me one with a heart as free,
And gentler as the air,
Whose ready hand and greeting kind,

Pastor of the Church.

Agriiculture.
To whom has God given so many broad and fertile acres? Where, under the same government is to be found such a variety

Agriiculture.
We hear the din of their quarrels,
The shock of their contending armies,
But have no motive whatever to join in the commotion.

Manufactures.
Their growth is absolutely astonishing.
Seventy years ago, and what were we in this respect? Almost every manufactured article came to us from foreign countries

Manufactures.
Our mountains have begun to pour out, at the call of the laborious miner, their ex-haustless treasures of iron and coal, is the second commercial country in the world, and bids fair to become, very soon the first. Our canvases whitens every sea,

There is a struggle for the mastery of the seas, and it is not doubtful who will soon be victor. Europe cannot, much longer, be Empress of the Ocean.

A sagacious observer, looking, some years ago, upon the condition of Europe used in regard to it this remarkable language—"The state of all Europe is in the highest degree critical and uncertain."
