

THE FAIR AND THE BRAVE. A Tale of the Soa. BY CAPTAIN ROBERT BARNACLER

offi-

10 0.

areasa bave ellec-red 19

e 145

5

ly, thui at Lie uf

R

Ware,

Boote

and

and

ther.

100.00

id luin

er.

his of

NTE

ecns

ING,

Hard-Capa

e and

hoes

stern

stuffa

Sad-

TON

Æ.

escelles

d county

Y acres of

hd proteor

ants are 4

AME

BARN.

ARD. ats rater. reas-nade premises.

CHAIR

jiha pakta

hes by strict

oive a chale

of

nary,

CHAPTER I.

"Watche, his nir, his gesture, and his face, And thanks she never saw such manify graces It was at a late hour one dark evening that a young couple issued from the door lotte, when I had not seen since we were timent, she blushed and looked down for a vet substantial; enthusiastic, yet cautious, at Saratoga, in June; that the hours flew moment. Again she scanned, with a and with a depth of thought far beyond is quite cold." "Yes, it is quite cwold; besides, Miss Gweyson, it is dangerous-it is, vewy," c, all mustachios, looking around with an alarmed air. "Dangerous? what, Charles, you don't slightest nossible tone of ironv. "Aw, I hear-I'm twold-hem-that , I've no dwoubt there, is many dwevlish wespewadoes in this ewity." At this instant, the sound of a number

"Givood gwacious! I hope we shan't as you are pleased to term them," replied usually retiring from the controversy by them. When the sun arose they were up, upon the lady. can we do?" continued mustachios.

" Haste Charles: let us hasten and pass the street," said the lady slightly alarmed. not permit you to go unrewarded, there-The next moment a party of half intox- fore, you must promise me ere I go, that Nine.

from ?--- knock a nigger down."

they would have been sewerely chastwis- too well, to force me to marry. Charles must-it, would be cruel, unnatural not to the knowledge served to detract from the understood each other instantly, and ared by me; I was detwermined—but who Randolph, the fop, against my will, mere-is this fivellow ? one of the would ed interest only that she would admit to thur Burton who was missing from the ty because his estates join ours.' erwise,' and the laughing girl ran, away was interest only that she was Emily and Alice Greyson were daugh- to join her father and relate to him the cutected, kindly came to my rescue," repli- ters of Col. Greyson, a branch of one of rious incident. The fair Emily replied As was said at the commencement of the oldest and most aristocratic families of not to the thoughtless bantering of her sis-South Carolina. They had been enjoying ter, but walked slowly into the cabin with expecting soon to catch a glimpse of the clouded with deeper anxiety. ed the lady, emphasizing the word gen-

"Vewy kwind, here fwellow, here's a the season at Saratoga, Niagara and New- burning check and throbbing heart to land. The sea-afflicted passengers, intleman.

 $t_{i}$  the lady turned, and as the result of partice larges in the lock is in the lady turned, and as the met the glance in thick of stavior so of a varie of metric of the lady turned, and as the met the glance in thick of stavior so of a varie of metric of the lady turned, and as the met the glance in thick of stavior so of a varie of metric of the lady turned, and as the met the glance in the lady turned, and as the complexion in the lady turned, and as the complexion in the lady turned, and as the complexion in the lady turned in the lady turned, and as the complexion in the lady turned in the lady turned in the lady turned in the lady turned in the lad

"I really did not think of staying so of a pair of beautiful and eloquent blue tifully with her complexion. In mind she sons throbbed through her veins. ate, but I had so much to say to Char- eyes that seemed to speak every noble sen- was no less lovely than in figure; brilliant, unawares. I wish now, that I had told glance are she could speak, the youthful her years or sex. Springing from a fam-John to come for us with the carriago; it yet manly beauty before her, the soft, sun- ily proud of their name and ancestry, she browned skin, the rounded check, the line-inner or pride, but from many accidental whiles had water the sinplation her watering in authus as they sailed by. V ly formed mouth and chin, the pearly circumstances combined, working upon a course. Hatteras had been left astern, "See, see-is not that a beautiful inan teeth, the proud forehead and curling youthful enthusiastic and reasonable mind, the rough waters of the Frying Pan' had o' war" cried Emily, with enthusiasm, as locks, the agilo yet beautifully moulded form, clad in the neatest, lace-trimmed of birth and riches with distrust. She saw that a false feeling, termed pride, boasblue suit.

"I cannot express myself satisfactorily ted of by many, very frequently hid be-I can present my thanks in a more satisfactory manner."

approaching from another street leading gentleman would do in a similar position, cussions, in all of which she was sure to furling and setting of the sails, the braato Broadway, somewhat in advance of and were it otherwise, your kind glance conquer. Her father would frequently be cing of the yards, the merry sailors' 'yo has amply repaid me for all my services, forced to yield her the field in argument, heave ho, were all objects of interest to and calling her his 'hittle democrat.'

"Oh, sir, you are very kind, but I canfore, you must promise me ere I go, that ship was hauling out of the slip at the foot threw crunibs with a childish glee to little you will call; 1—my father would rejoice of Pine street. The ship was to sail in an flocks of 'mother Careys' following in the issued from the street near thom, singing in seeing one who has thus nobly assisted hour bound for Charleston, and the cap. wake, and should at the gambols of the rom?—knock a nigger down." inc, ne would be grieved to miss thank- lath, mates and crew were bushing about porpoises under the bow. But Emily's in the hurry usual at the sailing hour of a thoughts frequently wandered far from ing you suitably—or stay," continued she, in the hurry usual at the sailing hour of a thoughts frequently wandered far from ing blushing deeply as she again met his large ship. In the midst of this bustle a those little amusements. She threw mane-fun alive;" said one of the row- glance, and presenting him at the same splendid carriage drove rapidly down the ny anxious glances towards the young lated in the first part of this chapter, a large look as he sank beneath the west; they in maudlin accents, "What did you come me; he would be grieved to miss thank- tain, mates and crew were bustling about porpoises under the bow. But Emily's half dwollar for your swervices," said mus- port, and were now spending a few weeks calm her excited feelings. 'Good heav- spired with courage as they approached Burton turned his eyes instantly towards tachios, at the same moment offering his in New York, previous to taking their de- ens! how strange that I should meet him terra firma, had left their state-rooms and the spot where he had last seen Emily, The lady, who was very beautiful, gath-arm to the lady. The sailor drew himself parture, homeward for the winter. Emily and her father's pet, on account of her hands,' communed Emily with herself.— Charles Randolph managed to sit up while and while all others ran to the leeward, was her father's pet, on account of her hands,' communed Emily with herself. p, usualling an answer. Shall not allow you to resemblance to her deceased mother, and 'If I was the least superstitious or believed his valet made his toilet and the weakly the spot where Emily fell, he leaped into swept the dust from the streets in whirling reward this gentleman who so kindly pro- well worthy was this pure daughter of the in the affinity of spirits, I should be temp-"Why Miss Gweyson," said Randolph, pausing a moment, for her appearance, he

There's a sweet little cherub sits smiling aloft, To keep watch o'er the lite of poor Jack."

"God in heaven bless him!" ejaculated

When the first cry had arisen, Arthur bit the blackest dye, thrust his 'hand be- so suying, the lady continued 'her way, figure, and queen like grace, which won But it cannot be! no, no-love!-no.- as he met Alice, "I am very happy to see dashed overboard and swam towards her. "Why Miss Gweyson," said Randolph, pausing a moment, for her appearance, he dashed overboard and swam towards her. of the blackest dye, thrust his 'hand be- so suying, the lady continued 'her way, figure, and queen like grace, which won But it cannot be! no, no-love!-no.- as he met Alice, "I am very happy to see dashed overboard and swam towards her. "Maiss Greyson, keep your hands under the best still holding the sailor's arm, leaving the the admiration of every beholder. Al- Doubtless he is, as I know he must be, a you-weally, I did not antwispate the "Miss Greyson, keep your hands under the admiration of every beholder. Alfearful glances into every comer unvisit gentleman, parse in hand, aghast. They though she was a brunette, there was a noble spirited young man, he looks it in pweasure of meeting you on deck but I be- water-I'll be with you in one moment-but come and see them catching 'men o' ed she.

"One moment more-do not be frightwar,' sa id the laughing girl, as she seized his arm and led him to the lee-gangway, encd and we will be saved---do not seize A few days had clapsed, and favoring where Emily stood, dip-net in hand me thus-be cool, miss Emily, and all will be well."

winds had wafted the ship far on her watching the nautilus as they sailed by. "Save me-O, save me, Arthur." "I will, or die !" cried he, proudly, she had early learned to look upon pride been sailed over, and all were expecting she brushed the curls that shaded her while he upheld her sinking form, and soon to be greeted with the heart stirring face back beneath her broad leghorn, and strove to reach a hen coop that was floatcry of 'land ho!' The Misses Greyson, pointed to a nautilus that was riding on the ing near. After a few minutes strugnot being troubled much with sea sickness, waves near the bow of the ship, "what gling, during which he endeavored to had passed much of their time on deck, brilliant colors ! O, if it would but sail a calm the fears of the half drowned girl, now grateful 1 am—now much 1 am your ness, semsnness and ignorance. True enjoying the beauties of their voyage.— Inthe nearer, continued she, as she pre- and unite her chorts systematic with his, debtor, and shall have to beg you to favor pride,' she said, 'weighs the moral and in- First watching the receding land as it me with a call to-morrow, when perhaps tellectual worth only, it views deeds, not sank like bright visions of the poet into er-do little mariner." The next instant seize this and it will surely save us," saynames, titles or lands,' and this pride slie dim obscurity, then enjoying the sublimi- a pierceing shriek rang in the cars of ev- ing which he buoyed her up and placed the induces of langes, and this price she take obsectively, and the price of the desert sea; inhaling with delight cry soul on board. The fair girl had floating wood securely under her, and "No thanks, fair lady, are due me; I and her sister Alice differed essentially on the pure, bracing air, and interesting them-reached out to throw her net, and a lurch watched the coming seas with a practised have but done what overy true sailor or these points, and held many spirited dis-Meanwhile on board the ship, conflict-"Sister-sister-Em-overboard?" shri- ing hopes and fears filled every breast, and eked Alice, as she fell fainting to the deck. every cheek was alternately flushed and "Overboard !" cried the captain, as ev-pale. The captain alone preserved upon mweet wowdies. Oh, gwacious, what the sailor, gazing with modest admiration pleasantly chucking her under the chin to see him spring with dignity and maj-ery one, with blanched checks, rushed to his embrowned features the unvarying pleasantly chucking her under the chin is see him spring with delight, from his wate-and calling her his 'little democrat.' [csty mingled with delight, from his wate-A week after the conversation, as re-lated in the first part of this chapter, a large look as he sank beneath the west; they raise tacks and sheets—jump aft the lated in the first part of this chapter, a large look as he sank beneath the west; they raise tacks and sheets—jump aft the lated in the first part of this chapter, a large look as he sank beneath the west; they raise tacks and sheets—jump aft the lated in the first part of this chapter, a large look as he sank beneath the west; they raise tacks and sheets—jump aft the lated in the first part of this chapter, a large look as he sank beneath the west; they raise tacks and sheets—jump aft the lated in the first part of this chapter, a large look as he sank beneath the west; they raise tacks and sheets—jump aft the lated in the first part of this chapter, a large look as he sank beneath the west; they raise tacks and sheets—jump aft the lated in the first part of this chapter a large look as he sank beneath the west; they raise tacks and sheets—jump aft the look as he sank beneath the west is the light. weather main braces-let go to leeward boatswain's locker, he viewed the progress -let go the weather fore brace the booms of every life saving effort-he saw Ar--come, jump, jump, heroes. Clear a thur's gallant efforts to save his daughter way the starboard quarter boat, some of —he saw them rise triumphant over the ye, while others throw over the hen coops waves, and his heart beat quick; again he saw the angry waves dash over and enand other dunnage." "Great God! She's gone!" cried sev- velope them, and his heart's current ceasgame-lun alive; "said one of the row-glance, and presenting him at the same spiencid carriage drove rapidly down the ny unxious gamees towards the young "Great God: Sne's gone : crica sev-velope them, and ins neart's carrient ceass diverses to a structure of the row-glance, and presenting him at the same spiencid carriage drove rapidly down the ny unxious gamees towards the young eral, horror struck, as they looked to ed for a moment, until they rappeared; dies in advance, to his companions; there's moment her card, they will be kind e- pier, and threading its way among drays sailor who had been of such invaluable eral, horror struck, as they looked to ed for a moment, until they rappeared; Two gentlemen alighted and assisted out ment as he walked around the deck per- "Seize him !" cried the captain, point- waves, and the hardy crew bending with two young indices. The tall, elderly gen- forming his duty, and when she saw him, ing to Colonel Greyson, who at that mo- strained sinews to the oars, and he bent Count de Banwhang or van Amburg the "rair lady, you value too nightly my two young mores. The fait, enterry gen-portning instance, and when she saw man, ing to Cotonel Greyson, who at that mo-strained sinews to the joars, and he bent lion tamer," The couple endeavored to poor services, the offspring of chance as theman attended the two ladies to the gang-to fulfil some order, run up the ratines ment had rushed from the cabin and was his body and knit his nerves as if to assist non tamer. In couple endeavored to poor services, the onspring of chance as deman allended the two ladies to the gaug- to form some order, tun up the failures ment had rushed from the cabin and was his body and have have been been been been and balance preparing to leap overboard francic with their efforts. while the other remained to attend with the aginty of a squarter and online preparing to leap overboard manne with there does not be a squarter and baggage. the servants and baggage. 'Wook out, Tom,' said he to his negro single rope only, her heart throbbed wild-daughter ?--shrieked the despairing father, cried, with upraised hands and streaming servant, wook out faw that bwox on top; ly with fear. But when he took his posi- as he struggled to escape, "O God have eyes, " save them-O, in mercy save tion at the wheel, to steer the ship, then mercy!" "Sec-sec-the boat draws near them, 'Yes, massa Randolph, I looks out for she had opportunities for conversing with "Cut, cut the lashings!" said the cap-Heaven speed the boat ; but no they sink, him, and if she had been before pleased tain, rapidly, to the men engaged in clearwith his appearance, she was doubly inter- ing the boat, "meet her with the helm, they're gone alas !-- that monster wave modesty in his reception of the thanks ex- "My gwacious ! another spwecimen of the boat's crew look around in dispair ! way nome instance companion, causing initiation. A new moments and, inc, inc, paused may require men. several prior with the agility of a in the light of a street lamp and read on 'Yes, massa, I looks out; ki, ki, massa pressed by herself and her father, a brev-dancing-master. The moment must achies the card in his hand, 'Emily Greyson.'- Randolph look'ce here; here's sumfin ity, yet comprehensiveness in his remarks, son estate," said Randolph, as he hid him-rese in every heart. The father dashed 'O, destwuction my bwacking bottles While Col. Greyson and his daughters the ship had rounded rapidly up into the boat, and was borne on the breeze to the a g'hal in tow of a monkey—Lizzy, my nough to give me your address my father and boxes was soon alongside the ship.—

turned to leave. around and barred their way.

"But your address-or your name-"Aw, fwellow, let me pwass; do gwood surely you will let me have the satisfaction honor,,' whined the whiskered gentleman. of knowing to whom I am indebted," said it ewontains all my sea stwores.' men, and I'll give you a dollar; I will 'pon the lady, slightly reproachful. "Ha! ha! say, Bill, shake der feller a-

"To Arthur Burton," said he, while his way; he can't go home wid the g'hal no how," said one, while another caught the eye lingered for a moment upon her form, gentleman by the arm, and jerked him a- then turning he walked slowly down the

the night, and ligening to the sound of a box.

mercies of the rowdies. "Ah! Lizzy, my g'hal; you're a trump his departing footsteps. 'Arthur Burton,' -hain't yer say?" ty name.'

"For heaven's sake, let me pass-I beg -beseech you, let me go." "She's a comin' the high flown ; duz it up brown, duzn't yer old ghl; yer couldn't "So soit, so delicate, so sweet she camo, come the high-strikes, (hysterics) could Youth's damask glow just dawning on her check." Meanwhile, the ladies, assisted by the WYE DED ches, in it. the Mr b. to manufair yer, that would be high," said one in a HAIRS.

icering tone. in'," cried another, as the rapid tread of of thine; he deserves no thought, thus ca- in hauling the ship. footsteps were heard near by.

PBELL

d againsi ( D' ENTY DOL ey, as I have am therefere

WAPLE.

ns purchased erty, vis: heat in the res of Ry his right, 🗰 nprovements. property Ϋ URXTHAL deceased. ing been grift ip, Clearfield aims or de nt them doly whom he had collected. escawpe from the wobbers?" he asked. make f4F dy, a little coldly. For a moment this Ad'en but his assurance was not so easily overthrown, and he again said:

home or to a place of safety?"

CHAPTER II.

'um.' 'And my pistol kwase in the carriage---wook out for the hair twiggers, Tom; I ested by his conversation. There was a there-steady' tound himself at interty, he ran np the This act was not unobserved by the hady broke for sarih, and his county priz took- a sweeness in his tone and a maniness self in his state room. street crying, "Watch, watch," quite lus- who still lingered on the portico, watching ed horror struck as he pointed at a stream in his bearing, that enchanted her as well of its lashings, and the mate with six stur- my daughter, "he cried. The next inst-tily, leaving his companion to the tender his receding figure through the gloom of of black liquid issuing from the bottom of as interested her lather, and she exclaim- of its lashings, and the mate with six stur- my daughter, "he cried. The next instfound himself at liberty, he ran up the This act was not unobserved by the lady broke for sartin, and his ebony phiz look- a sweetness in his tone and a manliness self in his state room.

shipped the rudder!

will but retard them.,'

"You had better not, sir-no-you

"Lower away and God speed you-

"All ready, sir," said the mate.

around him.

have bwoken and wuined my stwores- were holding a conversation regarding wind, and had lost all headway. "Are you all ready ?" asked the capmy linen will wook like the dwevil and this young sailor, the captain of the ship my cigwas are pwobably saturated-O, drew near, and Col. Greyson turned to tain, anxiously. "In a moment," replied the mate as he gwacious what will the wadies say to my him, saying-"You shipped your crewin New York?" "Yas, sir; all but one," was the capain's reply.

"Ah! which one is an exception on oucl Greyson, as he struggled with those that point ?" "Young Burton; the young man at the wheel: he is a townsman of mine." "Indeed! he some a superior young o see one so intelman. I am surp

'O, I was so frightened, Emmy, I tho't education, and intended him for the bar, to discern, if possible, some traces of the

you would fall !' said one.

feeling grew to strength as well as his dis- to obtain better views. 'Odd! strange! what's odd & strange, gust for a professional life. His father wieves wonderingly. Charlotte Butler.'

Why, sister Alice, how can you talk be any other than an adventurer - a sai- see which one of them was thus risking buildings, romer, you mound not to go the impassioned so foolish; said Emily; reddening with an-lor; and now that she learned that he was his life for the maiden, and his searching mount to ship. "What can it be?" said one.

Again that shout arose, and louder, manlier than before, and the sound thrilled like an electric shock upon every nervo. A moment of startling stillness followed, 'Let me go-for heaven's sake; captain, let me go in the boat !" implored Col. and each looked at the other. "Hurrah ! hurrah ! hurrah !- they are safe !" arose from every mouth, with a shout that rivalled the tempest's roar.

'God in heaven I thank thee!' murmured the exhausted father, as he sonk sensless on the locker before him.

valuable chain around the lady's neck, valuable chain around the lady's neck, "and not before I have a buss, pretty one," the continued, catching her in his arms,— The next moment a severe blow, dealt by The next moment a severe blow, dealt by The next moment a severe blow, deat by found who was search near the window sand who had been standing by the main similarly, "model it is sentent one can the man that saves my daughter !" cried daring the larrest form of South Carolina's and boast of as liberal an education as he can." the father with outstretched arms; the beat daughters, the following notice was very an agile young man, prostrated the mis-viewing the crowds that hurried up and rigging unobserved, sprang forward and boast of as liberal an education as he can." the father with outstretched arms; the beat daughters, the following notice was very an agile young man, prostrated the mis-viewing the crowds that hurried up and rigging unobserved, sprang forward and boast of as liberal an education as he can." the father with outstretched arms; the beat daughters, the following notice was very put the cowardly gang to flight, and the nad an opportunity of presenting nim with instantity the rady torned at the sound of with much surprise in ins took as well as alyzed a majority of the passengers for a daugner of Coloner Greyson, M. C. We moment; but as soon as the boat was dishear that the fair lady, the reigning bells moment; but as soon as the boat was dishear that the fair lady, the reigning bells moment; but as soon as the boat was dishear that the fair lady, the reigning bells moment; but as soon as the boat was dishear that the fair lady, the reigning bells moment; but as soon as the boat was dishear that the fair lady, the reigning bells moment; but as soon as the boat was dishear the voice, and as here eye met his, the rich his tono. It is little watch which I purchased pur-the voice, and as here eye and check with a "Yes it was his choice. His parents patched all seemed to recover their of the South, was bravely wooed and won block in pursuit.

situated. They gave Arthur a superior eagerly round upon the waste of waters, them. It was whispered for a time in the scanbut he early conceived a strong predilec- unfortunate. Many had ascended the 'How odd, how strange, Alice, said the tion for the soa, and as he grew old that rigging in various places, to enable them dal-loving circles of Charleston, that had been supplanted in the fair lady's af-"O, heavens! she must be gone !" groanterrogated upon the point, by some of his

"No-I twought of the mwatter, but I

The total amount of the Emmy ? asked the other, opening her sely determined him to follow his inclina- ed one, after all had gazed for a moment fections, and was intending to call out the tion in that respect, and intrusted him to in silence. Why Ally, that is he--the sailor who my care, and such has been his proficien- "No, no--look there--directly to windprotected me the evening that I called on cy during the two year's voyages he has ward-there she rises on the breast of the friends he repliedmade, that I shall make an officer of him sea !" cried one. "An ! that is the Adonis, is it ? how rod soon, and I doubt not that he will walk the "Yes-I see, I see !" replied several, am fwearful if I should chwallenge him, An i mat is the Adoms, is it i now to- soon, and a doubt not that in white the lapse of speaking in one breath ; "and look-a that he would'at know we nough i fuse."

'He is no brother of mine, thank heav- turning and looking forward among the two years, as proud and responsible a po- sailor is swiming to her-brave fellowen! the coxoombical coward that fied at crew where the sailor was busy, tho is sition as an honest man need wish." The look, look, now he sinks-alas !-- no--- no scawpe from the wobbers?" he asked. en! the coxoombical coward that nea at crew where the sanor was busy, no is shon as an nonest man need wish. The look, look, now he sinks—aias !---no The total amount of the Girard Estates the Girard Estat

"Why that sigh, sister mine? art weari- captain, had ascended the ship's side and ed with disappointments? O, he's a were stepping down a plank to the deck, naughty, cruel knight, that valiant sailor the gangway steps having been removed sily to forego the bright smiles of reward 'There Emmy, I am down safe,' said that await him; nay, nay, Emma dear, no one, as she reached the deck and turned.

(plunder) said one, as he snatched at a frowns; ah, cast that shadow from thy As she spoke, the other who was follow-

"Do not be frightened, lady, you are chance threw him into a martime life? ward. This scene which I have endeavosely for nim-sectivity, is it not pretty i blood mainted not brow and check while it is it was his choice. This parents patched and sectice and sectice to recover ineit of the south, was blavely voced and while it is it was his choice. This parents patched and sectice and sectice to recover ineit of the south, was blavely voced and while it is it was his choice. This parents patched and sectice and sective to recover ineit of the south, was blavely voced and while it is it was his choice. This parents patched and sectice and section to recover ineit of the south, was blavely voced and while it is the section of the south, was blavely voced and while it is parents patched and energies, and each looked by Yankee gallantry-success attend 's Beautiful, and does credit to your taste, scarlet hue. The sailor reddened, bowed are very respectably and comfortably thought and energies, and each looked by Yankee' gallantry-success attend other, absently, as she turned aft.

But, Emily, he's to be nearer, than a

Emily, as she arose from her seat and ger and pride.

at the approach of danger," replied the la-) disown him." cutting reply discomfitted the valiant man, brother, you should not forget that.

the nearest companion of the reman. At the intervent, may, a with comess that I am safe,' said he, as he released the fair form. for it could hardly have been his choice!" ored to describe briefly, completely par- Captain Arthur Burton, to Miss Emily, for it could hardly have been his choice!" ored to describe briefly, completely par- Captain Arthur Burton, to Miss Emily, few vigorous and skilfully applied raps disappointed, for 1 noped at least to nave sue, said ne, as no released the fair form, for it could narrity nave been his choice!" ored to describe briefly, completely par- Captain Arthur Burton, to "Miss Emily, adapter of Colonel Greyson, M. C." We had an opportunity of presenting him with Instantly the lady turned at the sound of with much surprise in his look as well as alyzed a majority of the passengers for a hon that the fair lady the reigning helle with much surprise in his look as well as alyzed a majority of the passengers for a hon that the fair lady the reigning helle with much surprise in his look as well as alyzed a majority of the passengers for a hon that the fair lady the reigning helle with much surprise in his look as well as alyzed a majority of the passengers for a hon that the fair lady the reigning helle with much surprise in his look as well as alyzed a majority of the passengers for a hon that the fair lady the reigning helle with much surprise in his look as well as alyzed a majority of the passengers for a hon that the fair lady the reigning helle with much surprise in his look as well as alyzed a majority of the passengers for a hon that the fair lady the reigning helle with much surprise in his look as well as alyzed a majority of the passengers for a hon that the fair lady the reigning helle with much surprise in his look as well as alyzed a majority of the passengers for a hon the basen determines the term of the basen deter young man, in a modest and respectful sistor; and this is his name here engrav- low, and hurried forward.

tone, as he assisted the lady in arranging ed, 'Arthur Burton,' 'lis very pretty,' said her bonnet and cloak; "shall I sco you Alice.

lady could reply as she took her defender's arm, who, she now perceived, was curiosity, myself to see this Adonis of dressed in the garb of a sailor. After pro- thine, notwithstanding Charley saysceeding up the street for a few minutes, 'Tut. tut,' softly, sister; know you not they met the valiant knight of the whis what the good book says about-calling kers and mustachios, with a huge club, and accompanied by several of the watch such names; Whosoever calleth his bro-

'Yes, and father feels such an interest ""Thank you," was all the frightened and curiosity about him!" 'A perfect shame, it is; I have a great

'Charles Randolph is a fool.'