Curious Facts in Natural History.

It is but little more than forty years since the first crow crossed the Genesce river westwardly. They, with the fox, and hen and confidence, in thus recording what we lucks, &c. hawk, the swallow, and many other birds cannot but consider as truly prophetic, and insects, seem to follow civilization.

It commenced its Times and Organ, are all earnestly advorayages in the east side of the Genesee cating the adoption of the Senate Comproriver in this city, in 1830, and it was sev- mise bill. en years before it crossed to the west side.

The grain worm, (cccydomyia tritica,) of wevil, as improperly called, began its course of destruction in Vermont about the year 1828, and it progresses, in the course it takes, from ten to fifteen miles a year. It has not yet reached western N. York in any great amount; but the destroyer is on its march, and desolation will follow in its track, in this great wheat-growing re-

Rose bugshave been so common in some of the eastern states that on the seashore they have floated in windrows on the sands, having been driven into the esa by winds and drowned. They have only made their appearance in this region, in any quantities, within the last two years.

The cedar or cherry bird (bombycyllus carolinensis) was first noticed west of the Genesce river in 1828, and now it is so great a pest as to induce many to give up the cultivation of cheries, especially if near

The plumb wevil, or curculio, which is indigenous to America, being unknown in Europe, was first discovered by Mr. N. Goodsell, the first editor of the Genesce Farmer, and described by the learned Dr. Samuel L. Mitchell-since which time it has disseminated over the whole continent.

The gopher, a species of ground squirrel with pouches on the outside of its cheeks to carry the dirt from its hole, is very plenty on the west side of the Mississippi, in Missouri and Iowa, but has never yet sin. It only works at night, burrowing holes not descending to personalities or appeals and sunways in the ground—subsisting to prejudice, yet always without any baon roots of trees, grass and vegetables. There are persons who have suffered by plete independence. We are Democrats their depredations for 20 years, who have never been able to catch, or even to see one of these nocturnal depredators.

The cut worm of recent origin; the first it was noticed as doing much damage, was during 1816 and '17, noted as the cold years, when the whole northern country approached the very brink of famine. They are now universal.

Great Discoveries yet to be Made.

Review, is an article on the British mines. The writer thus lifts the vail of the future, yet in store for mankind, the accomplishment of which will attract the energies of ble honors:

"We have a confident hope, however, or rather a firm belief, that long before our coal-fields are thus really exhausted, discoveries will be made, both of new motive powers and new sources of heat or caloric, which will make all future generations independent of these clumsy and dingy resources.

Motive power, we think, will probably be supplied, either directly by such omnipresent and inexhaustable elements as electricity and galvanism, or by the employment of some gas far more elastic than steam, and capable of being called into action and again condensed by the slightest mechanical impulses, or by changes of temperature inculcably less than are now necessary for the management of that The EVENING POST, issued comparatively attractive substance.
