

POETRY.

TO MY WIFE.

BY REV. G. W. DETHUNE.

Afar from thee! The morning breaks,
But morning brings no joy to me;

Afar from thee! 'Tis solitude,
Though smiling crowds around me be.

Afar from thee! The words of prayer
My listless ear unheeded greet;

Afar from thee! The night is come,
But slumbers from my pillow flee;

Together in His loved embrace,
No distance can our hearts divide;

Indian Eloquence.

The following is one of the finest samples of Indian eloquence we have ever seen.

Speech of Col. Cok, Head Mingo of the Choctaws, East of the Mississippi, in reply to the Agent of the United States.

Brother—We have heard your talk as from the lips of our father, the great white chief at Washington, and my people have called upon me to speak to you.

Brother—My voice is weak; you can scarcely hear me; it is not the shout of a warrior, but the wail of an infant.

Brother—Two weeps have passed since we heard your talk, and we have thought upon it. You ask us to leave our country, and tell us it is our father's wish.

Brother—Our hearts are full. Twelve winters ago our chiefs sold our country.

Brother—We do not now complain. The Choctaw suffers, but never weeps.

Brother—It is this truth! But we believe now that our great father knows our condition, he will listen to us.

Brother—You stand in the meadows of a great chief, you speak the words of a mighty nation, and your talk was long.

Brother—You stand in the meadows of a great chief, you speak the words of a mighty nation, and your talk was long.

Brother—You stand in the meadows of a great chief, you speak the words of a mighty nation, and your talk was long.

Little girls, after all, are the most beautiful things in the world, maidens of seventeen not excepted—(that last sentence may be taken in two ways, and the reader can therefore select the one which pleases him best—a great desideratum in composition).

"A little girl, playing with two little dogs, left them for a few moments, and on her return saw the marshal approaching them gun in hand.

"The marshal had now approached within shooting distance, and took deadly aim at the dog. For one instant the sweet child hesitated, and the contending emotions of personal apprehensions and love for her playmates, were legibly depicted on her beautiful face; it was but for one moment—the next, with a bound, she had reached her friend, and clasped him round the neck, forming a complete shield to him from the messenger of death, and exclaiming all the time, in the most thrilling accents of supplication, but still with the look of a youthful Poesionian, 'he's not mad, Mr. Marshal—he's not mad!'

"The marshal bro't his gun to the shoulder, came to the about face and marched off, remarking to a gentleman, that he would not kill that dog for all the mayors and aldermen in christendom."

Popular Remedies. THE most popular remedies of the present day are those which cleanse and purify the blood, and which are known to be innocent in their qualities. Such remedies as Antimony, Mercury, Zinc, and having recourse to bleeding, are now, it is hoped, going out of fashion, and Vegetable remedies will be soon the popular medicine. Then Brandoth's Vegetable Universal Pills will be used and appreciated. They are known to act beneficially on every part of the body, being taken up by the chyle they pass into the blood, which they purify, and it should be remembered that they only remove those parts from the blood which were the cause of inflammation or disease of any kind. Nothing is equal to ridding the vitiated humors with a vegetable medicine of this kind, which eighty-four years have proved never to do injury, but always good.
