TERS.

BY CHARLES SWAIN.

A daughter watched at midnight Her dying mother's bed: For five long nights she had not slept, And many tears were shed .-A vision like an angel came. Which none but her might see;
Sleep, duteous child," the angel said,
"And I will watch for thee!"

Sweet slumber like a blessing fell Upon the daughter's face ; The angel smiled, and touched her not. But gently took her place; And oh, so full of human love Those pitying eyes did shine,
The engel guest half mortal seemed—
The slumberer, half divine.

Like rays of light the sleeper's locks In warm loose curls were thrown; Like rays of light the angel's hair Seemed like the sleeper's own; A ross-like shadow on the cheek. Dissolving into pearl; A something in that angel's face Seemed sister to the girl! The mortal and immortal each Reflecting each were seen; The earthly and spiritual,

With death's pale face between.
Oh, human love, with strength like thine?

From thee those prayers arise When, entering into paradise, Draw angels from the skies. The dawn looked through the casement cold-A wintry dawn of gloom, And sadder showed the curtained hed, The still and sickly room

"My daughter— art thou here, my child?
Oh, haste thee, tove, come nigh.
That I may see onco more thy face,
And bless thee, ere I die! "If ever I were harsh to thee,

Forgive me norm to mee,
Forgive me now," she cried;
"God knows my heart—I loved then most
"When most I seemed to chide;
Now bend and kuss thy mother's lips,
And for her spirit pray!"
The angel knsed her—and her sonl
"Beased kitisfinity away! Passed blissfully away !

A sudden start!-what dream, what sound, The slumbering girl alarms? . She wakes-she sees her mother dend Within the angel's arms! She wakes-she springs with wild embrace-But nothing there appears.
Except her mother's sweet dead faco Her own convulsive tears.

The Virtue of Ventriloquism ; OR, MICK MURPHY AND THE GHOST.

An incident occurred in the hotel of one of the picturesque marine villages which skirt Lake Ponchartrain, on a certain occasion last summer, that effectually served to dispel the listless ennui too how soft and tender! Do you hake, Miss? prevalent in such cases. Among the guests there, for the time being, was one Michael Murphy, an eccentric, good-natured soul, from what used to be par excellence the land of potatoes, but which now may be called the potatoless land. He had been on a . big burst' in the city, and went over the lake to dispel the fumes of his debauch, and take salt baths and soda water at the same time

In sooth be was a shameless wight, Sore given to revel and ungodly glee;
Few earthly things found favor in his sight.
Save concubines and carnal companie,
And flaunting wassailers of high and low degree. a flying visit to the place, and who had such coma mocume bird. Believing that Michael was just about that time, in an impressi-ble state-in a reformatory mood-he thought he would through the medium of his art, endeavor to effect a favorable change in his morals. With this view he booked his name for a bed in the same room with Michael, and about 12 o'clock at night -that hour to superstitious minds so fraught with terrore-he 'pitched his voice' outside of the doer, saying, in a kind of trombone tone-

Michael Murphy! Michael Murphy! are you seleep 1'

"Who's that I' said Michael, much startled at the sepulchral tone in which the query was put, and the time of putting it.

Ask me not, but answer, said the ventriloquist. still continuing his ghost-like accent. "Well, what have you got to say I' said Michael.

Much, of which I want you to take notice, and

Better had you continued to take tea than to break the pledge, as you have done,' said the voice outside the door. What's all this noise about ?' said the ventrilequist. speaking from the bed. ... Some dirty blackguard that's outside the door there, and Michael, 'interferin' with what's none of his business."

Why don't you drive him from it'! said the ventriloquist, speaking from the bed.

*I wish he dare,' said the voice of the ventrile quist, speaking outside the door. Be jabers I'll let you see I dare,' said Michael jumping up, seizing his hickory, and hurriedly opening the door, ready, on sight, to knock down the annoyer. 'Give him h-11,' said the ventriloquist, from the

"I wonder," said Michael, 'if there's any evil spirits in this country?

"I don't know," said the ventriloquist, but they say the ghosts of departed Indians hunt the place. O, that was no Indian's ghost,' said Michael, for it spoke as good English as I do meself."

And a little better, Michael, said the voice, as if it proceeded from one standing by his side. O, the crass o' Christ about us, said Michael, what are you, at all, at all?" . No evil spirtt, but your guardian genius, said ces will be given.

'A mortal queer genius you are,' said Michael, that can be heard and not seen.' 'Get into bed, then,' said the voice, 'I have something to say to you."

'You' won't do any thing bad to me ?' said Mich-

Nothing, said the voice. Honor bright I' said Michael, Honor bright,' said the voice; and into bed

Michael again went. 'Now, Michael,' said the voice, ' you know you ave been a hard liver?"

'That's a fact,' said Michael. You broke the pledge, said the voice,

Thrue as proychin', said Michael. And did other bad things, said the voice. · More than I iver could keep a tally of, anid

. Then will you pledge yourself to me, that you'll change your mode of life? said the voice.

· I'll do any thing you ask me, said Michael. . Then you promise never to drink a drop again, eard the voice.

· Not as much as would bathe a wren's bill, said Michael...

Then I'm off,' said the voice, . but, remember, f you ever attempt to breek it, I'll be present and punish you through life."

Who is that with whom you are holding conversation?' said the ventriloquist, speaking again from the bed.

Devil a one at all, said Michael, barin some mighty polite, invisible gintleman, that seems to take a great interest in me welfare."

'O, you're dreaming, and the ventriloquist, coninuing to speak in propria persona. 'Faix, it's like a drame, sure enough,' said Michael.* * * * * The next morning a friend asked Michael to ake his bitters. He consented, but just as he took the glass in his hand the voice of the ventriloquist, who was present, was heard above his head, in the air, crying out- Touch it not, Michael Murphy-remember your promise. It was enough-

'The pleasure of wine with you, Mr. Murphy,' mid a genileman, at dinner.

Michael would thate not.

"With pleasure, sir," said Michael, but just at that moment a voice was heard to issue from the corner of the room—it was that of the ventriloquist who sat by his side, uttering his admonition.

Thus the thing went on for a week, until Mich ael was then and forever made a testotaller of.-He now industriously minds his business, enjoys; good health, and prospers. In relation to the circumstances under which he became a tectotalter. he says, he never had the pleasure of seeing his
