'HOME, SWEET HOME."

(BY THE VOLUNTEERS IN MEXICO.) The fund of liberty' -not here! The very name calls forth a tear.

Ah! how fond memory travels far.

Where shines our own dear native star. rushing stream and prairie flows is Recall out youthful happy hours

But duty calls her sons away. Remote we never go buttny; Hearts no er leave home, they clim; to home. And cluster cound their inther's tomb. Ah! native land ! when shall we see. That blessed home of liberty!

Ye fair ones! for whose loving smiles. We wonder o'er these weary miles. And gather glory on the field Where thousands to our hundreds yield; Keep us in memory awhile--Our-best roward is woman's smile.

And ye, who dead to honor's voice, r own country's ills rejoice; In your own country's ills rejoice; Who know no touch of patriot fires, Degenerate sons of wor Wait till another deed of fame Shall blast the cringing traitor's name.

"Ye patriot bands, who e'er uphold Your country's flag, he true and bold; Let not vile faction win the prize, While freedom's sons brave foreign skies : But marching onward, even as we Win, even at home, a victory!
