LOCAL ITEMS. Gossip with our friends. This not quite so hot as it was two weeks since. The nights are coldish, and we will soon have frost. King Cotton is giving place to Gen. Wool. Ice is no longer in demand, no one signs for ice cream, the grass is dying—Fall has come. Fall with its lovely frosts and tinted woods, with its chills and frosts, its decayed and decaying vegetation; its fruits and corn huskings. Welcome fall!

his neighbors. Our neighbor of the Spirit, Mr. Hamsber, was one of the lucky drawers of a prize, and the crowd, pleased at having one of the chief and peculiar defenders of the "constitution as it is and the union as it was," enrolled under the "Starry Banner," evinced their pleasure by three hearty cheers. The drawing of the Provost Marshal's name also brought forth cheers. Our reporter was likewise astonished by hearing his name called out, but as he was a nine-months' man, he didn't seem to mind it much. In the Borough lodge seemed particularly to run against the Printers, Druggists, Lawyers, and Butchers. There were eight printers, every druggist that was in the first class, seven lawyers, and eight butchers drafted. Through the district the ministers seemed to suffer. In one township in Fulton County, of the eighteen names that were drawn, six were Mellett's. There were twelve colored persons drawn in Chambersburg, and twenty-three in Antrim Township. Though we have often heard objections made to the enlisting of colored men, at the drawing, everybody seemed pleased when they were drawn, and seemed to think their chances so much the better for it. In some districts two, three, and in our borough, four brothers were drawn. Everything passed off agreeably, and we never saw a more jolly crowd assembled together.
