

WHERE ARE THE COPPERHEADS?

Go look upon the battle-field, Where the shot and shell fly fast— Where Freedom's stirring battle-ory Is heard upon the blast; Go where the lifted sabres flash And fall on traitor crests, Where Southern bayonets are dim With blood from Northern breasts; Go search amid the loyal ranks— Among the glorious dead— Among them all you will not find A single Copperhead.

THE REBEL SPY.

The other day I met a friend who was formerly one of the Red Devils. During the conversation which ensued he asked me whether I remembered Bill—, who deserted the regiment at Fortress Monroe. "A slender, dark-eyed young fellow, was he not?" "The same," replied my friend. "We became chums from the first moment we met at Fort Schuyler; and if you will give me your attention a few moments you shall hear how he came to desert the regiment, and a few other facts that will surprise you."

both himself and the quadron had deserted the apartment! "I shouted his name aloud, but there was no response; at that moment a gust of wind swept through a broken pane of glass and blew out the candle, leaving me in total darkness. "Again I stopped to the window and looked out. The horsemen had halted a few yards from the house, and were dismounting. Presently I saw three of them advance to the stoop, and heard the clattering of their sabres and the noise of their heavy boots as they ascended the steps. I could also hear some of them coming up from the cellar; so there was now left to me but one way of retreat from the apartment, the same by which the old negress had made her exit. As I passed through the doorway, I stumbled against the bottom of a staircase. This I immediately commenced to ascend as noiselessly and as swiftly as possible. Arriving at the top, I discovered a door which I pushed open without ceremony, and found myself in a small apartment half lighted by the rays of a lamp which streamed into it from another room connected with this one by a door which had been left open. The murmur of voices, coming from the other apartment, fell upon my ear. I looked through the open doorway, and beheld a sight which surprised me. Seated upon a sofa at one end of the room were three figures. One was my chum Bill—, with his arm around the waist of the quadron, and her head upon his shoulder; while the other was a tall figure in the uniform of a rebel lieutenant of cavalry. "So Magruder doesn't want the village burnt yet?" remarked Bill, as he stroked his whiskers. "There's an excellent opportunity to do it, if he does; for the pickets are very small around Hampton at present."

HISTORY OF A SOLDIER WOMAN.

The Grand Rapids, (Michigan) Eagle says: Mrs. Frances Clayton called at the Provost Marshal's office, in this city, Thursday, with letters from officers, to procure a pass to her home in Minnesota. Mrs. Clayton enlisted as a private, with her husband, in a Minnesota regiment, some two years since. She was in Rosecrans' army, and did full duty as a soldier nearly a year, before her sex was discovered. While in the army, the better to conceal her sex, she learned to drink, smoke, chew and swear with the very best, or worst of the soldiers. She stood guard, went on picket duty, in rain and storm, and fought on the field with the rest, and was considered a good fighting man. At the battle of Stone River, while making a charge, her husband was instantly killed by a ball, just five paces in front of her, in the front rank. She charged over his body with the rear line, driving the rebels with the bayonet, but was soon struck with a ball in the hip, and conveyed to the hospital, where her sex was of course discovered. On recovering sufficiently to travel, she was discharged on the 2d of January last, and sent North. On the way between Nashville and Louisville a guerrilla party attacked the train, and robbed her of her papers, money, &c. After reaching home and recovering from her wound, Mrs. Clayton started for the Army again, to recover the papers belonging to her husband, but was turned back at Louisville and ordered home. By mistake her pass carried her to Kalamazoo instead of Chicago, and she was compelled to apply to the Provost Marshal there, who sent her through this way. She is a very tall, masculine looking woman, dressed by exposure to the weather, and attracted universal attention by her masculine stride in walking, erect and soldierly carriage, and general appearance. Some soldiers following her rather too familiarly, Thursday evening, she drew a revolver and promptly scattered the crowd. She was recognized as an old acquaintance by the keeper of an eating house on Monroe street, who knew her before her marriage, and knew of her disappearance when her husband enlisted, and who provided shelter for her Thursday night. GRAPE, CANISTER, SHRAPNEL, AND SHELL. Grape consists of nine shot arranged in three layers, which vary in size according to the calibre of the gun; they are held together by two plates of about one-fourteenth of an inch less diameter than the calibre of the gun, two rings, a bolt, and a nut. The canvas bag arrangement is too old for this war; it is not so simple or durable, and has not been used for years. Canister for a gun contains twenty-seven small cast-iron balls, arranged in layers, the top of six, the remainder of seven each; for the same calibre you will see that the case for canister is a tin cylinder, closed at the bottom by a thick cast-iron plate or a wooden sabot, and at the top by a sheet-iron plate with a handle attached; the interstices between the balls are closely packed with saw dust to prevent crowding when the piece is fired. Shrapnel consists of a very thin shell which is filled with musket balls; the interstices are then filled by pouring in melted sulphur; a hole is then bored through the mass of sulphur and bullets to receive the bursting charge. Now, to explain the difference between a "shrapnel" or "spherical case" and a "shell." The destructive force of a shrapnel is what receives from the charge in the gun, the powder in the shrapnel being only to break the envelope and spread the balls; they still moving forward by force of the impulse they receive from the charge in the gun. A shell is made very much thicker than the envelope of a shrapnel, and is nearly filled with powder, and will do great execution if it explodes on the ground, it having destructive qualities in itself, aside from the discharge of a shrapnel shell has only half of the charge of powder that a shell proper has; thus a twenty-four pound shrapnel contains twelve musket balls and six ounces of powder. A twenty-four pound shell has twelve ounces of powder. A sixty pound shrapnel has thirty-nine musket balls and twenty-five ounces of powder. OUR DUTY IN THE WAR.—Concluding an eloquent speech in the Convention which nominated Governor Andrew, Hon. Richard H. Dana, Jr., said: Our duty to the country is, in my judgment, to have a short and simple creed. That creed is to stand by the Administration in prosecuting this war to the final extinction of the rebellion, and to make no political concessions to rebels in arms. On this we can unite the people—all but the few I have referred to, who never will sustain the war—for the people do not believe, and cannot be made to believe, that their liberties are in danger. The questions of modes and means and their settlement, and the doctrines on which they rest, should be matter for reflection and study—to some extent of public discussion, but not made in advance conditions of loyal co-operation, and even in their public discussion we may well use prudence and self-restraint. Our duty to others is to do that which in our most solemn applications we ask may be done for us—to strengthen those who stand, to comfort and help the weak-hearted, to raise up those who fall, in the hope that thus, at last, Satan may be beaten down under our feet. While the war lasts, let us have, if it be possible, one heart, one voice, and one hand. A New York correspondent of a London journal, in a recent letter, takes in hand the rebel aristocracy and ignorant white trash of South Carolina, in the following style: "The part of the population which is familiar either with the usages of good society, or even of civilized life, does not exceed twenty families, who owe their culture and refinement to the ability to visit the North every year; the rest are semi-barbarians, the like of whom can perhaps now only be found in the remote parts of Russia or of Asiatic Georgia, and who would be almost as great a curiosity to a New England farmer as a Zulu Caffre or a Maori to an English parish clerk." A poor law guardian in the north of Ireland is said to have addressed his audience: "Mr. Chairman, and gentlemen on the board: the eye of Europe is upon us—the apple of discord has been hung into our midst—and if it be not nipped in the bud, it will burst into a conflagration which will deluge the world!" The joke, we suspect, is cis-Atlantic. A Dutchman was relating his marvellous escape from drowning when thirteen of his companions were lost by the upsetting of a boat, and he alone was saved. "And how did you escape their fate?" asked one of his hearers. "I did not go in the potts," was the Dutch man's placid answer.
