

TRUST IN GOD AND PERSEVERE.

Brother, is life's morning clouded, Has the sunlight ceased to shine; In the earth in darkness shrouded, Wouldst thou at thy lot repine? Cheer up brother, let thy vision Look above: see light is near; Soon will come the next transition, "Trust in God and persevere!"

ELLEN JAYNES' RESOLUTION.

A STORY FOR WIVES.

"Why don't you ever clean your boots before you come into the house?" said Ellen Jaynes to her husband. I had just nicely arranged the room, and settled down to my sewing as you came in; now there it is all to do over again. Just look at the dirt— from one end of the room to the other, and I suppose it is the same thing in the hall. Dear! dear! I am so discouraged and tired out with brushing!

is genteelly "nervous." Well, Ellen Jaynes was very nervous; she had also a great regard for trifles, and very little power to adapt herself to circumstances. She had, too, a vivid imagination, and having but limited opportunity for studying her husband's character before marriage, she had invested him with all possible excellence; thought she had found a man to reverence, lean upon, look upon, look up to in all things. Of course she was bitterly disappointed.

HON. JOSEPH HOLT ON EMPLOYING SLAVES AS SOLDIERS.

The following is the chief part of a letter addressed to Secretary Stanton by Mr. Holt: The right of the Government to employ for the suppression of the rebellion persons of African descent held to service or labor under the laws of the States, rests upon two distinct grounds: First, as property. Both our organic law, and the usages of our institutions under it, recognize fully the authority of the Government to seize and apply to public use private property, on making compensation therefor. What the use may be to which it is to be applied does not enter into the question of the right to make the seizure, which is untrammelled in its exercise save by the single condition mentioned.

sons" that they are represented on the floor of Congress, and thus form a prominent constituent element alike in the organization and in the practical administration of the Government. The obligation of all persons—irrespective of creed or color—to bear arms, if physically capable of doing so, in defence of the Government under which they live, and by which they are protected, is one that is universally acknowledged and enforced. Corresponding to this obligation is the duty resting on those charged with the administration of the Government, to employ such persons in the military service whenever the public safety may demand it. Congress recognized both this obligation on the one hand, and this duty on the other, when, by the 12th section of the act of 17th July, 1862, it was enacted that the President be and he is hereby authorized to receive in the service of the United States, for the purpose of constructing intrenchments, or performing camp service or any other labor, or any military or naval service, for which they may be found competent, persons of African descent, and such persons shall be enrolled and organized under such regulations, not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws, as the President may prescribe.

THE LATE COL. S. W. BLACK.—There has recently turned up a sad but interesting memento of Col. Black. It is now in possession of his respected wife. A rebel officer who witnessed the engagement in which the gallant Colonel lost his life, and no doubt intensely admired the bold dash and chivalric spirit which characterized his movements at that memorable occasion, saw him fall and die on the battle-field. He was so much interested in the man, although an entire stranger and an enemy, he caused a photograph to be taken of him when dead, and endorsed on it, "A Brave Soldier." The photograph happened to be shown in a group of rebel officers, and one of them at once recognized it to be the image of Colonel S. W. Black, of Pittsburg, Pa. This simple and brief tribute to the bravery of the Colonel, elicited from a stranger and an enemy, is not recorded here.—Pittsburg Commercial.

the same open manly, fearless look; their faces always mantled with a smile, as of peace within. Every Sabbath unfailingly have they made their way to the elder's splendid mansion on "the avenue," apparently as invisible in their home affections as in their business and their princely charities, even to scores of thousands at a time, and that too for these many years past. But what a void there would be when one of the great and noble-hearted twins shall come to the church alone; the "one" brother "taken, the other left," to be lamented as well as missed by a Church which numbers half a million of communicants! And not for long shall he who writes sing the last hymn, bow in the last benediction, and turn his back upon the earthly altar to come in again no more forever; for like those before, we too are passing away—"One by one."

Musical.

MASON & HAMLIN'S CABINET ORGANS, WITH ONE OR TWO SETS OF KEYS, CONTAINING THE AUTOMATIC SWELL, DOUBLE BELLOWS, KNEE-STOP, AND COMBINATION VALVE. Every Instrument warranted for Five Years. Price from $70 to $450. The Cabinet Organ is the only instrument which combines the requisites for church and parlor music; for the school room and the social festival gathering. For while it possesses sufficient power for the accompaniment of large choruses, it is from its capability of all shades of expression, and its wonderful crescendo and decrescendo, most effective as a solo instrument. It is capable of orchestra effects, and rapid music, as trills, arpeggios, etc. From its sustained tones, it has a decided advantage over the Piano-forte, for the rendering of many of the choicest morceaux of the masters, such as symphonies, quartets, etc. R. A. McCLURE, Chambersburg, Pa. General Agent for Pennsylvania. N. B. The undersigned will sell and deliver, in good condition, Cabinet Organs and Pianos for cash at a factory price. From Hall's Journal of Health.

ONE BY ONE. "One by one the leaves are falling, One by one the moments fly, Thus to thoughtless mortals calling, They may soon be called to die." As our minister was ascending the pulpit on a beautiful and bright Sunday morning of the mellow autumn, the thought occurred to us: "Will he ever die?" He had been doing the same thing for many, many years; and in all that time had not seemed to have become any older; yet we knew there was a fatal canker at the root; the next summer he died! And there was the mother of Isabelle Graham. She sat in the same pew with us. Time passed on. Neither did she seem to be getting any older; and when her minister would come down from the pulpit at service she would make her way through the crowd to shake hands with him, as if to say: "I have been fed to-day." One day she was seen to be at unusual pains to greet him; but it was for the last time on earth, for they met soon thereafter in heaven! And there was elder G. He was in the prime of life; we were in the same life, met him many a time in the course of years; never spoke to him never knew his name; and there was holiness and meekness and a high intelligence in his face, which at the first glance or two caused us to put him down in the book of remembrance, as a sainted man. And so it came that, having scattered for the summer and coming back in the autumn, this and that familiar face was seen in the accustomed pew; but the weeks wore on toward winter, and still the gentle, unpretending, unpresuming elder was not there; he had gone to heaven! Just before us there used to come an old lady, only of a Sabbath morning; so decrepit, so feeble, that each day we thought would be her last in the earthly sanctuary; but she came on. Winter and spring and summer and autumn came, and she did too; as if years ceased to make any further impression on the frail and tottering frame. But we never saw her again.

Not a month ago a mother in Israel sat behind us; no summer's sun, no winter's snow ever kept her away. The petted child of fashion and fortune from earliest infancy, she still knew no deeper joy, and considered it a duty and a privilege, as it was her delight, to mingle her songs and prayers with the Church on earth and in heaven, as a token of her being one of the children of the Great King. Who shall say that she has not met with her for the last time? And there too, are the reft brothers. As for many years ago, they walk side by side to the Sabbath sanctuary with the same quick step,
