DEATH OF GEN. JENKINS.—Jenkins is dead. We mean our Jenkins—the Jenkins who this day last year introduced us into the realms of Jeff. Davis—whose name for the time was applied to our own beautiful town—whose ignorant ragsmuffians scoffed at the statue of Franklin on our Court House and deridingly called it "Pete Lincoln"—whose glories were in glowing colors, murdering in true Guerrilla style friends or even suspected friends of the Union and trying to outvie in his vandal acts vandalism itself, this is the Jenkins who is gone—"gone the Lord knows where." We had rumors in the beginning of the present campaign of Jenkins' death but according to Richmond papers it was turned out to be some other Jenkins—not our Jenkins—not the Guerrilla Jenkins. But now we have authentic intelligence that our Jenkins has shuffled off his mortal coil—that he is dead! dead! and with the record of the foulest treason resting on his memory. We find a letter in the New York Times, dated Charleston, West Virginia, June 2d, which says:

The widow and three children of Gen. Albert Galatin Jenkins, of the rebel army, arrived here yesterday, passing our lines under a flag of truce. A rebel chaplain was allowed to accompany them here. Gen. Jenkins was wounded three times at the battle with Gen. Crooks at Cloude Mountain, near Dublin. The wound causing his death was in the arm near the shoulder, and was necessary and made. He was removed to a place near Dublin, where his family joined him, and was doing well until one night the army, which had been impatiently taken up, began to flow, and ere those in attendance discovered it he had bled so profusely that recuperation was impossible. He was 35 years of age, and owned a splendid property in Virginia, on the Ohio, a few miles below the Kanawha, valued at $300,000. In view of his confiscated a standing offer is made to the government for it, parties in Cincinnati, of $200,000. The children of the General, on reaching this place, were wretchedly clad, and destitute of shoes and stockings.

When Jenkins and his horde entered this town on the 15th of June, last year, it appeared as if he was on a reconnaissance. They were about here for some days, carrying on for themselves, without regard to the comfort or anxieties of our citizens. Jenkins was of course the controlling spirit, and seemed to be in good repute with his men, who, as we have intimated, were nothing more nor less than guerrillas, having carried on that mode of warfare in Western Virginia from the beginning of the war. Our people are all familiar with Jenkins' visit, so that details here are unnecessary; but there are some portions of the history of that eventful period not generally known, and which may be of interest now. Jenkins had been a member of the same Congress with the Hon. Wilson Reilly. It was also said that he had graduated in the same class at Chambersburg College with J. McDowell Sharp, Esq. We believe he made very kind inquiries about these two gentlemen. One of his Staff, an aid we think, who called himself Murphy, claimed to be a native of Fulton county, and alleged that he was a graduate in the printing business from the FRANKLIN REPOSITORY office. He admitted that he had an assumed name, said that the countenances of many of our citizens were familiar to him, and indeed several persons with whom he conversed, he called by name. At the breaking out of the war he resided in Martinsburg, Va., was a practicing lawyer, and at the time District Attorney of Berkeley county. He was an intelligent, prepossessing fellow, and evidently a favorite with Jenkins. In his personal appearance Jenkins might be called handsome; it is certain at all events that he was smart, shrewd and keen, realizing completely our idea of the true type of a guerrilla chief, proud of his position, and an unmitigated traitor. In his expressed opinions of the war he was incorable; no compromise or submission was admissible. It was the independence of the Southern Confederacy, or death. One afternoon, while partaking of a number of glasses of ale, and evidently feeling its exhilarating effects, in a certain well known eating and drinking establishment in this place, he took occasion to speak very emphatically of his position on the great question to some persons present. He placed before him two glasses of ale, and in a very dramatic manner declared that before he would yield the cause of the Confederacy, he would mix poison in both glasses and give one to his wife and children, while he would drink the other himself. He spoke of his immense wealth, of the magnificence of his property on the Ohio, of the happiness and comfort that had previously reigned in his home, of his high social standing, and of his cherished desires in years gone by, for the advancement and glory of his country. "But my riches," said he, "are all gone; not an object of value is left me but this faithful sword. My home is broken up and my family driven from it in the most ruthless manner; my hopes and desires for a united country are forever dispelled. Yankee tyranny did all this. Now we only ask to be left alone as a separate government, and a separate people, and we intend to accomplish these purposes. To our cause I have sworn my services, and for it, if required, I will give my life." This was about the style of his language. When he got through he was so full of "beer" that he could scarcely move, and was lifted upon his horse in charge of his orderly, at the door. On his second appearance in this place, his force came as the advance guard of Lee's army, and he was free to assure our people that the whole army was coming. Jenkins was afterwards detached from Lee and sent to his old business of guerrilla warfare on his old familiar grounds, and on those grounds, where his atrocities and cruelties had made his name a terror, he lost his life, dying within the lines of his victors. So this is the last of Jenkins, and his name, in infamy, is added to the long black list of Traitors' minions, who in death had gone before him.

ENGAGEMENT OF THE 21ST CAVALRY.—CASUALTIES.—We announced the departure of the 21st Cavalry from their camp near this place, in our issue of the 18th ult. The Regiment marched to Washington and encamped at Camp Stoneman. A short time after their arrival an order was issued requiring them to turn over their horses, equipments, &c., and to supply them instead with arms and accoutrements for Infantry service. On the 28th ult. the Regiment was ordered to the front, Col. Boyd in command, having instructions to report to Major General Meade. In the interview with Sweitzer's Brigade, Griffin's Division, Fifth Army Corps. On Thursday, the 3d inst., the Regiment was at Bethesda Church, in close proximity to the enemy, and engaged busily in throwing up defenses. While at this work the enemy kept up an almost uninterrupted fire upon them, and among the casualties was the almost instant death of Lieutenant Richard H. Waters, by a shell. On Friday the brigade moved on the enemy's works, and the Regiment was in the thickest of the fight. It was their first encounter with the enemy, but they advanced fearlessly under their gallant Colonel, and obeyed with alacrity every order given them. Their full purpose they were unable to accomplish, but they punished the enemy to a degree that must have convinced him of their prowess and unflinching courage. The enemy's sharpshooters seemed to have a peculiar spite at Col. Boyd. He was in rather an exposed position, and the bullets flew around and about him like pelting hail. Finally a ball struck him on the side of the neck near the shoulder. He continued for some time to give his orders, but was at last removed from the field, almost completely exhausted from loss of blood. With night the contest closed. The following list of those wounded in the Regiment during the day we copy from the New York Herald of Saturday last. We learn that the full number killed and wounded is about thirty.

Col. W. H. Boyd, wounded in the neck; J. W. Vancamp, neck; Thos. Prosser, foot; J. Andrews, thigh; J. Clark, shoulder; D. Koppo, hand; Corp. H. A. Edmonston, shoulder; W. A. Dunn, head; J. H. Mingo, shoulder; Corporal G. W. Douthett, hip; J. Rodgers, G. Hupp, hip; Jno. Clark, face; Capt. Wm. H. Phillips, side; T. Dear, leg; W. Foot, side; John Shunolt, hip; W. T. Shuler, leg; Lieut. M. P. Doyne, elbow.

We will publish a list of the killed as soon as it is furnished us. Col. Boyd has been brought to his home on "Federal Hill," near this place. His wound is very severe, though not dangerous. Excursions to find the ball in his person have thus far been unsuccessful. He speaks in rapturous language of the conduct of his brave command, and earnestly trusts for his speedy recovery, that he may rejoice in it.

Since the above was in type we learn that a careful examination of Col. Boyd's wound shows it to be of a very serious nature. The ball is lodged under the spine, and cannot be extracted. Grave fears are entertained that it may prove mortal.

THE LADIES' FAIR—SURPRISING SUCCESS.—According to previous announcement, the Ladies' Fair for the benefit of the United States Christian Commission, opened on Monday evening last. Both Franklin Hall and the Court House are occupied for the purpose. The display in the various departments is certainly the grandest and most extensive ever witnessed in this part of the State, and tells of the industry, zeal and patriotism which possessed our ladies in carrying out their noble undertaking. We have not sufficient space this week to make more than a general reference to the Fair, but shall give a detailed and as we hope a satisfactory description in our next paper. Both Halls are very tastefully decorated. Franklin Hall is the main feature. Here are offered for sale useful and fancy articles, in great variety, toys, confectionery, trophies from the battle-fields, &c., &c. The Court Hall is used for the cake and ice cream department. The museum is arranged in one of the large rooms of the third floor of Franklin Hall. During the continuance of the Fair meals will be served citizens and strangers at regular hours in the Court Hall, and at Hotel prices. Music during each evening will be furnished by our Band. On Friday and Saturday evenings the Old Folks' Concert will take place.

On the opening night the Halls were crowded, and the scene was most brilliant. The sales ladies looked their prettiest, and impudently for customers in the most irresistible style. Everybody seemed "gay and happy" and purchased liberally. The night's receipts were about $500. Yesterday the Halls were again crowded. Thus far the undertaking has proved a most astonishing success, more than realizing the expectations of its most sanguine friends. Let us urge every one from every section of our own and adjoining counties to give something to this good cause. No matter how insignificant your contribution may appear, it will add to the aggregate result. Come then with your money or whatever may be turned into money, and help swell the results of our labors for the relief of our poor maimed and sick soldiers, to a magnificent and truly liberal amount.

A NOBLE SOLDIER.—Another voice has been still in death whose utterances we were accustomed to hear in the kindest and gentlest of accents. Another soldier has surrendered his life true to his God; his country and himself. If ever a man lived with nobility of soul, with a generous feeling for his fellow man and who believed in the holiness and eterna for the vindication and success of his country's cause, it was Lieut. Dick Waters, who fell instantly killed at Bethesda Church on Thursday last week. This noble soldier enlisted in the 12th Indiana, a one year Regiment, and at the expiration of his time came to this town. He was one of the first to enlist in Capt. Miles' Company of the 126th Regiment nine months' service and performed his duty faithfully. When the call was made for six months' troops he was quick to respond and before he was mustered out of that service he assisted in raising a Company and was appointed 2d Lieutenant, Co. E, 21st Regt. Pa. Cav., three years men. Lieut. Waters was yet a young man. He was generous and kind to a fault. His intelligence was of a high order and his conversational powers always to be appreciated. With these qualities he possessed honesty, sobriety, and gentility, and a courage, if not of a dashing order, was yet always sure. He leaves a wife whom he had only married last winter. May the ravages of war never desecrate thy resting place good soldier, nor the example of thy good deeds ever be lost for imitation.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RESERVES.—J. R. Sypher, of Lancaster, will publish, in September next, a History of the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps, from its organization. The work will contain a minute description of all the battles, skirmishes, marches and expeditions of the whole corps, with biographical sketches of the officers and a personal record of each man, during his term of service. These details will be correct, as they are to be compiled from official sources. Mr. Sypher is fully competent for the task he has undertaken, and will make his work one of deep interest, not only to soldiers and their relatives, but to the civilian. Capt. Geo. W. Hengy, of this Borough, is the accredited agent for the book in Franklin county and is now prepared to take the names of all who desire to possess the work. It will be published in one volume, and the price will be $3 in cloth, and $3.50 bound in leather. This history of as gallant a body of men as the country can produce, should be in every library in the State.

PRESENTATION.—Gen. E. B. Tyler's boys of the nine months service always feel an interest in anything with which his name is connected. We made a statement recently, which has since proved to be erroneous, that he had gone to the front. He commands a brigade of the 8th Army Corps, and has his Headquarters at the Relay House, near Baltimore. On Thursday last the officers of the Brigade presented him with a magnificent sword, and snash, belt and spurs of the finest workmanship, as a testimonial of their regard.

CAPTURED BY THE ENEMY.—Capt. David B. McKibben, of the 14th United States Regular Infantry, was captured by the enemy in one of the engagements down in the front last week. The Captain was commissioned Colonel of the 158th Regiment of drafted nine months' men from this section and was greatly beloved by his command. At the expiration of the term of the Regiment, he resumed his position in the Regular Army. A brave officer and a model soldier, we trust his captivity may be of short duration.

THE NEW UNION POLE.—We recorded the unfortunate accident that occurred to the new Union pole to be erected in our Diamond, last week. Another was procured and prepared, about twenty feet longer, and was successfully planted in its place yesterday morning. With the exception of the great pole 240 feet in height on the grounds of the Sanitary Fair in Philadelphia, this is perhaps the highest Union pole in the State. At 6 P. M. a splendid new flag was raised to its place amid the cheering of our people and the music of our Band.

THE DISCHARGE OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RESERVES.

The following orders were issued by their commanders: HEADQUARTERS FIFTH ARMY CORPS, May 31, 1864. Soldiers.—With this is the order for the return of the Pennsylvania Reserves, whose term of service expires to-day. The General commanding begs leave to express to them his great satisfaction at their heroic conduct in this arduous campaign. As their commander he thanks them for their willing and effective efforts, and congratulates them that their successful engagement of yesterday, closing their term of service, and being the last of many battles bravely fought, is one they can ever remember with satisfaction and pride. By command of MAJ. GEN. WARREN. (Signed) A. G. MANN, A. G.

HEADQUARTERS THIRD DIVISION, PENNSYLVANIA VOLUNTEER CORPS, FIFTH ARMY CORPS, June 1, 1864. Soldiers of the Pennsylvania Reserves.—Today the connection which has so long existed between us is to be severed forever. I have no power to express to you the feeling of gratitude and affection that I bear to you, nor the deep regret with which I now part from you as a division which you have so faithful and devoted soldiers, and you have nobly sustained me in the many trying scenes through which we have passed with an unwavering fidelity. The record of your service terminates gloriously, and the Wilderness, Spottsylvania Court House, and the Bethesda Church have been added to the long list of battles and triumphs that have marked your career. Go home to the great State that sent you forth three years ago to battle for her honor and to strike for her in the great cause of the country.

Take back your soiled and war-worn banners, your thinned and shattered ranks, and let them all show you performed your trust. Take back those banners sacred from the glorious associations that surround them, sacred with the memory of our fallen comrades who gave their lives to defend them, and give them again into the keeping of the State forever. The duties of the hour prevent me from accompanying you, but my heart will follow you long after your return, and it shall ever be my pride that I was once your commander, and that side by side we fought and suffered through campaigns which will stand unexampled in history. Farewell. (Signed) W. CRAWFORD, Brig. Gen. Commanding Division. R. A. McCoy, Lieut. Col. and A. G.

THE Richmond Sentinel, of the 31st ult., thinks Grant a most obstinate and contrary military man. It says: "Operations at the front have frequently confounded calculations, and turned speculation lither and thither with short turns and little ceremony. Now Grant has been retreating on Fredericksburg, and anon he is at Spottsylvania. C. H. Now again he meets with a disaster that would have sent a reasonable man back to Lincoln, but quickly he is flank marching for Richmond. Now he crosses the North Anna and confronts Lee, apparently for battle; but night comes and the steels away, and starts for the Peninsula. Now he crosses at Hanover, in his supposed flight to his new base; but last and latest we learn that his face is again turned toward Richmond, and that he confronts Lee on the Toltopotomoy Creek, with prospect of immediate fight. "It is time for us all to cease speculations as to Grant's movements and attend to the facts." He has been offering fight when we thought he was retreating, and retreating when we thought he was offering fight; he has been advancing when he was whipped, and heading up stream when he had every reason to hurry down. He has come by the rule of military contrivance, and has always disappointed us whenever we supposed that he was acting sensibly or consistently with himself. We suppose that he has come to the final fight at last; though, warned by experience, we express the opinion with becoming doubt."

HISTORY OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RESERVES.—Elias Barr & Co., respectfully announce that they have in preparation a History of the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps, from its organization to the expiration of their term of service. This History will contain the names of all the Officers and Privates of the Corps, their promotions, casualties and discharges—also, graphic descriptions of their camp life and their gallant achievements in the many battles in which they have taken part—also, a list of all the names of the officers and privates who have fallen in the service of their country. The History of the Pennsylvania Reserves will be in ONE VOLUME of 500 pages, octavo size, neatly printed on good paper, and substantially bound in black cloth, containing a Steel Engraving of the Regimental Colors, and one of Gov. Curtin, (who first recommended the formation of the Pennsylvania Reserves). It will be ready in August next. Price—Three Dollars per copy.

The Publishers feel confident that this price will be a great inducement to our countrymen to purchase their brave men whose gallant achievements and patriotic self-devotion it records will secure for "The History" a generous and appreciative reception. It is published by ELIAS BARR & CO., No. 6 East King Street, Lancaster, Pa. A. C. HOFFENBERG, General Agent, York, Pa. Capt. Geo. W. HEAGY, Chambersburg, Agent for Franklin county. jun15-6t
