Rebel Raids on the Border.

Extraneous Rumors—Rebels Reported Everywhere—Summary of Rebel Force According to Reports—Rumors and Operations in Franklin County—Defence of Chambersburg—Skedaddling Officers—Rebel Occupation of Hagerstown—The Town Ransomed—Southern Secesh Disgraces Northern Secesh.

Our reporters gave in last week's issue a graphic account of rebel movements on the border, and the various and fearfully exaggerated rumors related thereto.

Our reports have summed up the reports of rebel force crossing the Potomac from day to day, according to positive statements of frightened citizens and stragglers, about as follows:

Table with columns for date, location, and number of rebels. Includes entries for Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, with sub-headers for 'Total reported across' and 'Error in reliable reports'.

The day that actually did cross on Thursday—the day the main force entered Maryland—may have reached 20,000; but of that our reporters had no definite information.

INLAND OPERATIONS REPORTED. Our reporters have had an exhausting time in running down the ubiquitous rebels.

It was some compensation for the absurd rumors of thousands of rebels constantly advancing upon us, that the reliable reports of the advance of the Union army were manufactured and magnified with equal ease and earnestness.

A FALSE ALARM IN TOWN. Chambersburg was on the point of being thrown into convulsions by several excited citizens reading a general order imperfectly.

been ransomed for $20,000, and the amiable free-booters had declared themselves content. They did not take unto themselves the women of "My Maryland" nor did they get drunk with much wine.

DEFENCE OF CHAMBERSBURG. As soon as the rebels were reported on the Potomac, Gen. Couch announced his purpose to hold Chambersburg at all hazards, unless driven from it by an overwhelming force of infantry and artillery.

HEROIC OFFICERS. Individual bravery as developed in this war has made the personal achievements of history pale, and it is but natural to expect that a trying occasion like this should develop instances of rarest heroism.

RUMORS OF THE UNION ARMIES. It was some compensation for the absurd rumors of thousands of rebels constantly advancing upon us, that the reliable reports of the advance of the Union army were manufactured and magnified with equal ease and earnestness.
