so doing I have arrived at conclusion which, to these who have never looked closely into the subject may seem too marvellour for belief.

"Passing, then, from the story of the wrong to look into the remedy, I have touched upon that inquiry in its various legal and constitutional aspects: as, the connection of slavery with the Constitution; how far that instrument admits, and how far it abstains from admitting, the existence of such a system; further, the character of what is termed slave-property; the right of emancipation in the loyal slave States; the jurisduction of the Supreme Court in the premises; the elimidation of the Supreme Court in the premises; the elimidation of the Supreme Court in the premises; the elimidation of the Supreme Court in the premises; the elimidation of the Supreme Court in the premises; the plurisduction of the Supreme Court in the premises; the elimidation of the Supreme Court in the premises; the lens and the force of that Prechamition as well upon slaves within our lines as upon slaves still in the enemy's lands; and the force of that Prechamition as great measure of national policy, essential to the preservation involute of the Constitution, indispensable to the re-establishment of peace, inseparable from the future maintenance, north and south, of domestic transplity.

"Finally, after having traced the connections of the two races in the past, and set forth the duty of one race loward the other in the present, I have sought to look forward and inquire how they are likely, when both shall be free, to live together in the future; whether we shall have a race among us unwilling or unable to support itself; whether admixture of the neces that a base prejudice of race shall diminable and disappear; and lastly, whether, in case the shall call the chances that a base prejudice of race shall diminable and disappear; and lastly, whether, in case the shall call outlies that a base prejudice of race shall diminable and disappear; and lastly, whether, in case the shall call outlies that a

CHAMEREBURO, May 17, 1864.

Robert Black, Erg.—Dear Sir: I have thoroughly tested the Tread-power in running all kinds of Machinery isbout the Barn, and I have held the most approved Leverpowres tried at my Barn also, and I unhesitatingly, recommend the Tread-power. I run all my machinerys—Bresher and cleaner, cours-sheller, chopping-mill, forder-cutter, and circular saw, with a two-bone Tread-power, and the power is ample, and two horse-geng give the same. If not greater power than four ena-with the lever-power, and the labar is no more severe on the horse-k. In short, I regard the Tread-power as baring every advantage over the Lever-power, and it must soon be universally adopted by Lamers.

Very Respectfully Youns, &c.
