OFFICE, 429 CHESTNUT STREET, PHILADELPHIA.

The Eaton and Aurora Silver Lodes, the property of this Company, are situated on the Rattlesnake Creek, a never failing mountain stream, which empties into the Beaver Head River, a tributary of the Jefferson Fork of the Missouri, in Beaver Head County, in the Territory of Montana, and contain twelve hundred feet each.

The width of the Eaton Lode is five and one-half and of the Aurora three and one-half feet, running to unknown depths, and increasing in richness as they go down. These two lodes are only forty feet apart, and probably run together at some distance from the surface.

An estimate hereto appended, based upon actual assays made in the ordinary form, and in bulk, will show the immense yield of these mines and their great value as Silver producing Lodes. These assays were made by Prof. A. K. Eaton, Prof. Forrey of the New York Assay Office, and Prof. Gunth, of this city.

NEW YORK, January 21, 1865.

PROF. A. K. EATON:—DEAR SIR: The sample of ore that you left with me, marked "Discovery E," gave by assay, in Silver $164 56-100 Silver per ton.

Yours truly, JOHN TORREY.

PHILADELPHIA, April 3, 1865.—The sample of silver ore from Montana Territory examined at your request, contains 172,22 ounces of Silver in 2000 lbs. of ore; value $234,22 Gold per ton. The above ore is said to come from the Eaton Lode. F. A. GENTH.

Messrs. Adelberg and Raymond, mining Engineers, New York, say:

"We assume that the Lead ore will yield $75 in Silver to the ton, and the Silver ores $500. These figures are moderate enough, since, according to our assays, the Silver ores contain from $913 to $2040 specie value."

From the above assays, some idea may be formed of the immense value of this property, and of the certainty of a large yield. But even that idea will be merely approximative, without a due consideration of the following facts: The celebrated Comstock Silver Lode, in Nevada, worked by the "Gould and Curry," "Empire," "Yellow Jacket," "Ophir," "Crown Point," "Savage" and some other companies, sold on the 8th of April, 1865, at prices averaging over Two Thousand Dollars per foot.

These mines yield an average of about $65 to the ton, which includes first, second and third classes of ores.

Now, the average yield of the three classes of ore of the Eaton and Aurora Lodes will certainly be more than $65 per ton; indeed, from the large number of assays thus far made, not only here, but in the actual workings of the mine, it will probably reach $75 or $80 per ton. The 2400 feet owned by the Company would, therefore, be worth, at the price of the Comstock Lode, nearly Five Millions of Dollars.

The Company have sent a mill of twenty-four stamps to the mines, and expect returns in silver in September. This will be able to crush thirty tons of ore per day, at an expense for mining, crushing and smelting of ten dollars ($10) per ton. Then, taking the yield at only $60 per ton, the result would be as follows:

30 tons per day, at $60	$1,800
Cost, $10 per ton	300
Net daily profit	$1,500

or $450,000 per annum, payable, not in currency, but in the coin itself.

The property of the Company is amply sufficient for a dozen companies, and could not be exhausted in a lifetime. Prospectors are also engaged by the Company, taking up other Lodes for them.

The operations at the mines are under the superintendence of the Hon. Samuel McLean, Delegate to Congress from the Territory, whose thorough acquaintance with mining renders it certain that the interests of the Company will be pushed in the most energetic manner.

Only Twenty Thousand Shares for sale.

[BY REQUEST.]

QUERIES.

"If a person feel a person treading on his toes,
Need a person ask a person how a person knows.

Is it any body's business,
If a gentleman should choose
To wait upon a lady,
If the lady don't refuse?
Or, to speak a little plainer,
That the meaning all may know,
Is it any body's business
If a lady has a beau?

Is it any body's business
When the gentleman does call,
Or when he leaves the lady,
Or if he leaves at all?
Or is it necessary
That the curtain should be drawn,
To save from further trouble
The outside lookers-on?

Is it any body's business
But the lady's, if her beau
Rides out with other ladies,
And doesn't let her know?
Is it any body's business
But the gentleman's, if she
Should accept another escort,
Where he doesn't chance to be?

Is a person on the side-walk,
Whether great or whether small;
Is it any body's business
Where that person means to call,
Or if you see a person
And he's calling anywhere,
Is it any of YOUR business
What his business may be there?

The substance of our query,
Simply stated would be this:
Is it ANY BODY'S BUSINESS
What ANOTHER'S BUSINESS IS?
If it is, or if it isn't,
We would really like to know
For we're certain if it isn't,
There are SOME who MAKE IT SO.

If it is, we'll join the rabble,
And act the nobler part
Of the TATTLERS and defamers,
Who throng the public mart;
But if not, we'll act the teacher,
Until each meddler learns,
It were better in the future
To mind his OWN concerns.

GREETINGS.

We have arranged a few examples in alphabetical order. For instance, the Arabs are very ceremonious. If persons of distinction meet, they embrace, kiss each other's cheeks, and then kiss their own hands. Women and children kiss the beards of their husbands and fathers. Their greetings are marked by a strong religious character, such as "God grant thee His favors," "If God wills, thy family enjoy good health," "Peace be with you," etc.

Bengalese call themselves the most humble slaves of those they desire to salute.

Bohemians kiss the garments of the persons whom they wish to honor.

Burmese apply their noses and cheeks closely to a person's face, and then exclaim, "Give me a smell," attributable to their great use of perfumes.

Ceylones, meeting superiors, prostrate themselves, repeating the name and dignity of the individual.

Chinese are most particular in their personal civilities, even counting the number of their reverences. Of equals they inquire, "Have you eaten your rice?" "Is your stomach in order?" and, "Thanks to your abundant felicity."

Egyptians kiss the back of a superior's hand, and as an extra civility, the palm also. Their fevered country is strikingly portrayed by asking "How goes the perspiration?" "Is it well with thee?" and "God preserve thee."

English.—An old salutation was, "Save you, sir!" an evident abreviation of "God save you, sir!"

Ethiopians take the robes off the friends they meet, place them round their own waists, leaving the new-comers half nude.

French.—Comment vous apportez vous? which literally signifies, "How do you carry yourself?"

Germans.—In some parts of their country they invariably kiss the hands of all the ladies of their acquaintance whom they meet.

Greeks.—The salutation among the ancients was, "Rejoice!" Among the moderns, "What doest thou?"

Hollanders, with their proverbial love of good living, salute their friends by asking, "Have you had a good dinner?"

Italians, on meeting, kiss the hands of ladies to whom they are related, with the strange inquiry, "How does she stand?"

Japanese remove their sandals when they meet a superior, exclaiming, "Hurt me not!"

Laplanders, when they meet on the ice, press their noses firmly together. Why?

Mahomedans.—"Peace be with you!" to which the reply is, "On you be peace!" to which is added, "And the mercy and blessings of God."

Manillas bend their bodies, place their hands upon their cheeks, raise one leg, and bend the knee.

Moors, of Morocco, ride at full speed toward a stranger, suddenly stop, and then fire a pistol over his head.

New Guinea people place on their heads the leaves of trees, as emblems of peace and friendship.

Pelew Islanders seize the foot of the person they desire to salute, and rub their faces with it.

Persians salute by inclining the neck over each other's necks, and then inclining cheek to cheek, with the extravagant greeting, "Is thy exalted high condition good?" and "may thy shadow never be less!"

Poles bow to the ground with extreme deference to friends they meet, with the significant inquiry, "Art thou gay?"

Romans, in ancient times, exclaimed, "Be healthy," or "Be strong," when it was customary to take up children by the ears and kiss them. The Pope makes no reverence to mortal, except the Emperor of Austria, by whom he is kissed.

Russian ladies permit, not only their hands, but their foreheads to be kissed by friends. The men salute by inquiring, "How do you live on?" "Be well."

Siamese prostrate themselves before superiors, when a servent examines whether they have been eating anything offensive; if so, he is kicked out; if not, he is picked up.

Spanish Grandees wear their hats in the presence of their Sovereign, to show that they are not so much subject to him as to the rest of the nation. When the royal carriage passes, it is the rule to throw open the cloak to show that the person is unarmed.

Swedes are by no means demonstrative in their courtesies; on meeting they simply inquire, "How can you?"

Turks cross their hands, place them on their breasts, and bow, exclaiming, "Be under the care of God," "Forget me not in thy prayers," "Thy visits are as rare as fine days," an ancient greeting, as it is by no means applicable to their present country.

Washoe.—People here no longer say, "How'd ye do?" when they meet. It's "How's your suit progressing?" and the reply, "Pretty well thankee—how's yours?" A man without a lawsuit is looked upon as a vagrant in the State of Nevada.

HOW TOM CORWIN RID HIS SISTER OF AN OBNOXIOUS LOVER.

Every one has heard of the eloquent, pathetic, and humorous stump orator of Ohio. He was pronounced by Mr. Clay (a most competent authority,) to be the finest stump speaker he had ever heard; and in this opinion I most heartily coincide, after having heard Clay, Crittenden, Jones of Tennessee, Polk, Benjamin, Soule, Randall, Hunt, Tom Marshall, Gen. Lamar, Bates, Douglas and a host of others.

Well, this great orator carried his love of fun into every department of life. In the private circle, where he knew every person, and where he unbosomed himself fully, he was the most delightful conversationalist I ever listened to. I do not know that he now, as age and infirmity are creeping on, indulges this proclivity to humor so much as he used to do. But some twenty years ago he used to tell with great gusto, the following story:

"In early life—so early that I cannot remember the removal—my father "pulled up stakes," and carrying with him the household goods, went from Bourbon county, Kentucky, where I was born, to Ohio. Notwithstanding a rough and tumble struggle with the world, he had a hard time to get on, owing to a numerous and rapidly increasing family. Well, family matters had not much improved when I had reached my thirteenth or fourteenth year.

"At this time there lived in the neighborhood a young man by the name of Pickering. He had inherited a well stocked farm, was good-looking and made a strong profession of religion. This latter qualification caused him to find peculiar favor in the eyes of my father, who always was blinded by professions of extra piety.

"This fellow had a strong hankering after one of my sisters, who was a very pretty girl. To her he was peculiarly distasteful. She seemed always annoyed at his presence. Yet he was ever at her side. She dared not dismiss him entirely, for fear of the paternal anger. Things went on this way a year or two, and as I partook largely of my sister's hatred to him, I resolved to get rid of him in some way. I cast about for a plan for some time, but nothing occurred which gave me the slightest hope of being successful.

"At last returning home late one summer night from mill, I found the family at their nightly devotions. Passing by the windows of the room in which they were assembled, I saw that Pickering was there, and pretty soon discovered that he was nodding, and finally his head dropped. Now was my opportunity. I stole slily into the hall, and reaching the hall door, which was slightly ajar, and close by which Pickering was "on bended knee," I reached in, and quickly pulling his chair from under him, he rolled heavily, as a sound sleeper would upon the floor. The noise alarmed all. The old gentleman stopped in the midst of his almost interminable prayer, and saw the position of Pickering. All the family laughed outright; even my mother smiled.

"Pickering endeavored to pick himself up as rapidly as possible, but he had touched the old man upon his tenderest point. It was evident, from his rubbing his eyes, that he had slept under the old gentleman's ministrations; and had not my father a reputation far and wide for the fervency and strength of his ministrations, and was not Pickering his professing brother? Slowly yet most dignifiedly did the old man approach him. "Begone hypocrite!" he cried, in thundering tones. "Never enter my house again."

"Pickering was thunderstruck. He felt that he could make no apology which would not add to insult. He had no suspicion of the extra force which had aided him in his fall. He at once found his hat, took up his line of march, and completely crest-fallen, passed by me as I stood grinning in the shadow of the porch.

"At a suitable time I entered, got my supper, was told by a brother in hurried whispers, what had happened, and then I stole off to bed, affecting ignorance, and laughing most heartily, as I ensconced myself in the sheets, at the complete success of my plan.

"Next day I cautiously imparted my secret to my sister. She was in her own room at the time, and she threw herself upon the bed and rolled in agonies and convulsions of laughter. She had been emancipated forever from the obnoxious lover. The old gentleman did not hear the real state of the facts for full twenty years afterwards; but when he did he laughed heartily."

THE 7-30s AND THE END OF THE WAR.

The greatest war of modern history has ended in triumph. The country has demonstrated the vastness of its power. We knew it was great; now all the world knows it. Our neighbors across the water, who said our very greatness was our weakness—that we should never hold together,—that we must fall to pieces, and very small pieces at that—now take off their hats and beg to assure us of their "most distinguished consideration." Verily! a young nation that can raise two millions of fighting men and two thousand millions of money, just for the asking, is worthy of being "considered." They told us we could not carry on the war six months without begging for loans in European markets. We did carry on such a war as they never dreamed of, for four years, and never asked for a dollar; and they now wish to buy our bonds at an advance of fifty per cent. over last year's prices. Government stocks are quoted as brisk and in demand, and well they may be, for the time will soon come when no more will be offered. The national expenses will soon be down to a peace footing, and, instead of a Treasury budget of nine hundred millions, Secretary McCulloch will ask us for about a third of that sum. And how much easier it will be to raise this in peace than in war! The millions of soldiers who have so long made it a business to destroy life and property will return to pursuits of industry, and the now ravaged fields will whiten with new harvests. Instead of reading every morning that so many miles of railroad have been destroyed, it will be that "so many new avenues to material wealth have been opened." The South itself will be compelled to bear its share of the burden it imposed on the country, and its cotton—so much greater than gold, and still so much less than king—will have no attribute of royalty but what it pays into the revenue. A tax on Southern cotton will be quite as easily collected as on Northern petroleum or manufactures, and besides the article must be had—the world wants it.

It would take but a fraction of our property to pay our national debt now; but if we do not pay a dollar of the principle in ten years, that fraction will be reduced one half—by the development of the national resources. We shall doubtless wind up the war and square all accounts with a national debt of less than three thousand millions on about 18 per cent. of the present national wealth; but, according to its rate of increase (127 per cent.) from 1850 to 1860,—in 1875 this debt will be less than nine per cent. But our ability to pay the national debt needs no demonstration; but as some of us have looked upon the dark side, we may as well have a glance at the sunshine.

The national loans will soon be out of the market,—but for a short time the Government will need money to pay off the army and settle up the expenses of the war. Only about two hundred millions more of the second series of the 7-30 Loan remain to be taken, and when it is finally withdrawn, there is no doubt that it will rise to a handsome premium, and at the rate it is now going, some time within the next sixty days will see the last of this series. Mr. Jay Cooke, the subscription agent, announced in February "that the first two hundred millions of 7-30's will probably be taken in at par from three to four months"—but they were taken in less than two. So that parties who desire to invest at par in the U. S. Loan, bearing seven and three-tenths annual interest, and in three years convertible into a 5-20 six per cent. gold interest bond should make their preparations accordingly. Many of the financial authorities believe that the Government will be able to fund such portions of its debt, as it may not be ready to pay as it falls due, at 4½ per cent.

WHAT AN EDITOR MIGHT HAVE BEEN

Holland, the editor of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, has been up in Vermont, to "where he came from," and thus sketches what he should have been if he had not left home and become an editor:

Your correspondent would have grown stalwart and strong, with horny hands and a face as black as the ace of spades. He would have taught school winters, worked on the farm summers, and gone out haying fifteen days in July, and taken for pay the iron work and running gear of a wagon.

At two-and-twenty, or thereabouts, we would have begun to pay attention to a girl with a father worth $2,000, and a spit curl on her forehead—a girl who always went to singing school, and "set in the seats," and sung without opening her mouth—a pretty girl any way. Well after seeing her home from singing school for two or three years, taking her to a Fourth of July, and getting about $100 together, he would have married and settled down. Years would have passed away, and the girl with the spit curl would have eleven children—just as sure as you live—seven boys and four girls.

We should have had a hard time to bringing them up, but they would soon be able enough to do the milking and help their mother wash days, and I getting independent at last, and feeling a little stiff in the joints, would be elected a member of the legislature, having been an assessor and a school committeeman for years. In the evening of my days, with my pipe in my mouth, thirteen barrels of cider in the cellar, and a newspaper in my hand, I should sit and look at the markets through a pair of gold mounted spectacles, and wonder why should such a strange silly piece as this be published.
