GEN. HUNTER'S CAMPAIGN.

When rebel sympathizers and other copper brigades are reminded of the burning of Chambersburg, they invariably refer to the previous campaign of Gen. Hunter in the valley as a partial justification for McCausland's brutality.

Little by little, however, the truth of history is vindicating itself, and Hunter's campaign will stand the test of all rules of war relative to the burning of Gov. Letcher's house and the Lexington Military Institute.

It will be remembered that Gen. Rhodes had burned a somewhat similar Institute at Carlisle the year before, and the fact that McCausland persisted in using the Lexington Institute as a fortress from which to fire on our troops fully warranted Gen. Hunter in burning it to the ground.

Col. Halpine (Miles O'Reilly) who was an officer under Gen. Hunter, gives the following account of the burning of Letcher's house and the Lexington Institute in a later number of his spy paper, The Citizen.

We commenced it with the consideration of those who have labored industriously to find some excuse for the atrocities of McCausland.

BURNING OF EX-GOV. LETCHER'S HOUSE. The West Virginia troops, forming, with some remnants from Maryland, the elite of our little army, were furious beyond measure against John Letcher. He had been a Union man; they said, who had sold his principles for promotion in the rebel service; and, as was the case with all opposites of this kind, had then signaled his devotion to his new faith by unfeeling oppressions and cruelties against all of his former friends.

to permit his name to be presented to the people of his country or State as a candidate for an elective office. He crawls to the feet of the appointing power, who may be King, or so that he may still be Vicar of Bray; and to that end he chafers with and corrupts weak and needy members of Conventions and the Legislature of

I need not recite the disagreeable facts attending his several canvasses for the United States Senate. Their numerous odors in your nostrils to this hour. In the first he bought the votes of three Democratic members, and in the last but twenty he bought the votes of the one or two who would have elected him. This transaction was so flagrant that the Legislature was compelled to take cognizance of it, and, if justice be not done as well as blind, the law and honor of our State will be vindicated.

The evil report of his deeds pervades the country as a reproach to our State. Yes, unhappily for Pennsylvania and her great interests, the buzzard-winged fame of Simon Cameron is national. By means of object solicitation and corrupt bargaining he procured a mass of letters, and two resolutions, that imposed him upon President Lincoln as the representative man of the Keystone State. That was an evil hour for Pennsylvania. You all remember how he organized the Navy, and how he and his associates in a mercenary and business man. In the course of his imprudent and ill-judged harangue he made time a member of Congress from Philadelphia, and had sufficient influence to have carried his point (the establishment of a Naval Station at League Island) without a dissenting voice. It is that the assertion of a sober man and of sober men, made it forget that our country was the oldest nation in the world, to create a government workshop at Philadelphia, had not the terrible reputation of Simon Cameron, the Fagan of the Harrisburg lobby and ex-Secretary of War, to contend with us, and, therefore, had some chance for success. My colleagues and I were less happy than they in this respect.

As I have said, he begged and bargained for the influence which induced Mr. Lincoln to invite him to the Cabinet. It was a fondly hoped, by those who had not seen the details of his depravity, that, being old and rich, he would take advantage of so distinguished an opportunity to prove that he could be honest, and could administer to the public good. But he was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived.

Less than one year from the day on which Simon Cameron was installed as Secretary of War, Congress—though at that early day it had before it but partial evidence of his crimes—indignantly reprobated his conduct. He was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived.

He was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived. He was not to be so easily deceived.
