MR. STEVENS' SPEECH.

We invite the earnest candid attention of all to the speech of Hon. Thaddeus Stevens, given on the first page of to-day's paper. It is, like all Mr. Stevens' efforts, characterized by masterly ability, and as an exposition of the true policy of reconstruction may well be read with interest and pleasure.

TRIBLE-RIGGING.

The "Beaver Argus" contrasts the 2d resolution of the "Democratic National Convention" of August 1864, and the 2d resolution of the "Democratic State Convention of Pennsylvania of August, 1865, in a way that ought to make the face of Buchanan's Attorney General, Jere S. Black—who is the author of the last resolution—tingle with shame to the end of his days.

magnanimity of a great government would dictate, looking to the attainment of the greatest good to the greatest number, and guarding against wrong to any.

Accepting the South as conquered States the grave question arises as to the best method of bringing them within the reach of just government in obedience to the accepted results of the war. That Slavery must be a crime of the past, all confess; but its legal extinction, and the social revolution necessary to wipe out its cancerous roots, are still issues which must reach positive settlement at an early day.

On the 23d of June the Senate modified the bill and a committee of conference was appointed, which agreed upon a bill, retaining the oath above given, and it passed the House without a division and the Senate by a vote of 27 to 8.

We have well weighed the grave question of sustaining our public credit and liquidating our debt. It must be diminished, or it will be practically or wholly repudiated. It could be carried from generation to generation, but its repudiation is the darling object of the traitors of the South and the Democracy of the North, and we therefore cannot resist the conviction that unless there shall be certain measures devised for its rapid extinction, we shall fail to maintain our faith with the creditors of the government.

SHALL REBELS RETURN TO POWER?

The citizens of the rebel States are preparing for the election of representatives to Congress, Governors, Legislators, &c., and the requisite qualifications for admission into the Senate or House of Representatives are worthy of consideration.

the Constitution of the United States, be forever hereafter rendered ineligible to hold any office under the Constitution and laws of the United States. It was adopted on the 4th of June following the House passed a bill by a vote of 78 to 47, declaring that any person elected or appointed to any office of honor or profit under the government of the United States, either in the civil, military or naval service, excepting the President, shall before entering upon the duties of such office or receiving any of the emoluments thereof, take and subscribe to the following oath or affirmation:

"I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I have never voluntarily borne arms against the United States since I have been a citizen thereof; that I have never given aid, comfort, counsel or encouragement to persons engaged in armed hostility thereto; that I have neither sought nor accepted, nor attempted to exercise the functions of any office whatever, under any authority or pretense, that I have not yielded a voluntary support to any pretended government, authority, power or constitution, within the United States, in opposition to the laws thereof."

—We notice that in the Southern States, and especially in Virginia where candidates are canvassing for Congress, there are but few candidates who can take the oath, and the few who could take it have just no show whatever for an election.

—Is it not time for the loyal people of the Nation to declare that the power of this government shall not pass into the hands of blood-stained traitors? Does Stuart ever when he assures his insolent fellow traitors that when the Democracy triumphs, the penalties for treason will be forgotten? Will the Democratic journals explain?

The President has pardoned Mr. Mengel Reed, of Bedford, who was recently arrested on the charge of treason and conveyed to Pittsburg for trial. It is worthy of notice that he was not discharged from arrest by the legal authorities of the government, nor liberated by taking the oath of allegiance, as must have been the case had Mr. Mengel Reed applied for relief as a citizen of the North whose fidelity was unjustly assailed; but he sought pardon under the act of Congress as an enemy—one who had taken up arms against the government, and the pardon recites that he is pardoned as a traitor—nor, in other words, that he is justly charged with treason and the President generously relieves him of his fearful penalties. Thus while the Democratic papers of Bedford, Fulton and Franklin have been promulgating all manner of falsehoods to save Mr. Reed from punishment—insisting that he had no sympathy with the rebels and was their unwilling captive—when the question is about to be tried in the United States Court, before a Democratic Judge, Mr. Reed sends Gen. Coffitt to Washington and applies for pardon, just as every other repentant rebel has done who wants to escape the just penalty for his crimes.

his arrest was designed mainly to establish the fact that he was a voluntary recruit in the rebel service, and as he has now yielded the whole issue and regains his citizenship by the President's clemency, it is likely that no further proceedings will be instituted. We think that he has inflicted upon himself a degree of punishment never contemplated by the most vindictive of his alleged persecutors. If he is satisfied, surely they will be content.

The Democracy of 1864, declared the war "but four years of failure" and demanded "an immediate cessation of hostilities" to enable them to save their rebel friends from their inevitable doom. They were tried at the great bar of the people, and not a loyal State sustained them. In 1865 the so-called Democratic Conventions of most of the Northern States practically declared Democracy a failure, and act accordingly. They have at last realized that treason and its sympathizers cannot win the confidence of the people, and they therefore wipe out the shattered remnants of Democracy and turn over a new leaf. The same Democracy, in Pennsylvania that resisted by all the power of party discipline in the legislature and at the polls, the extension of the right of suffrage to our heroic soldiers, and that resisted every measure designed to fill up our armies and provide means for paying our soldiers, now nominates two soldiers for State offices, goes begging for soldiers as local candidates where they cannot elect in the various counties, and to vote their ticket because they are the friends of the soldiers they have hitherto persistently vilified and of the Union they aided in every way, consistent with their safety, to destroy. In New York the administrators of the deceased Democracy went further. They not only ignored the old leaders and the old platforms, but they made a portion of their ticket Republican. Gen. Slocum, their candidate for Secretary of State, and Mr. Robinson, their candidate for Controller, are both Republicans—have never voted Democratic tickets since the inauguration of the Republican party, and do not now pretend to be Democrats. They endorse President Johnson, declare for the maintenance of our credit, and nominate a mongrel ticket. Can any of the Pennsylvania leaders inform us what has become of the Democracy that ruled in 1864?

We give into-day's paper the address of President Johnson to the delegations from the rebel States which visited him recently. It is worthy of note that just about the time the South Carolina delegates were vouching for the loyalty of their people, every Union candidate for the South Carolina Convention was defeated, in accordance with the published advice of Gen. Wade Hampton to the people to confer trust only on those who had been faithful to the traitors' cause—Hampton himself being one of the successful candidates. The President is evidently resolved to test the fidelity of the Southern people quite thoroughly by a most generous policy; but if as now seems probable, they will reward his leniency by electing to Congress and to their respective legislatures the same class of men who plunged us into wanton war four years ago, Congress will promptly reject them and the President will doubtless accept the only alternative their teaching allows him and resort to a system of government in the subjugated States that will insure republican governments and safety to loyal citizens. It is for the revolted States themselves to determine whether the palpable results of the war shall become the policy of the government by their voluntary acts or by the exercise of the strong arm of the conqueror. We must confess that so far we have seen little disposition on the part of the rebels professing repentance, to submit to the inexorable teachings of their own causeless war, and until they do, they must not be put in a position to wield the power of the government. If as President Johnson has so often and with such emphasis declared, "treason is a crime and must be punished," there must be more than empty professions of fidelity by way of atonement, when their acts persistently confront their ready professions.

The Lancaster Intelligencer assumes that the chief editor of this journal made this Senatorial district with the view of being returned to the Senate; but hereafterwards became satisfied it could not be carried by a Republican, and for that reason the nomination was conceded to Mr. M'Conaughy. The Intelligencer errs throughout. The majority of the apportionment committee first framed a Senatorial district embracing Franklin for the purpose of returning the writer hereof to the Senate last fall, and he peremptorily declined to accept the position under any circumstances, although the nomination was well assured and the Union majority very large. We protested against the district as unnatural, and did ask for Franklin and Adams because it is a fair district. We protested against the whole apportionment of 1863 as wrong to the minority and dangerous to the majority, and had we been a member of the legislature it would have been modified if we could have effected it. As it was, we merely protested against unnatural associations in our own section, and succeeded. The Union nomination being longed of right to Adams this fall, as Franklin had it in 1859 and Fulton in 1862, and at no time did any one in Franklin think of contesting it. Considering that the Intelligencer is wholly wrong in its premises, we submit that its ungenerous and vituperative deductions touching Mr. M'Conaughy are entitled to little credit. If it is not now, it some day will be a matter of grave regret on the part of Mr. Stahle and his children that his record for loyalty in the dark days of the Republic does not equal that of Mr. M'Conaughy. He has ever been faithful, and if he has ever erred it was on the side of an imperiled country.

LEGISLATIVE NOMINATIONS.

- The following is a list of the legislative nominations made in the different districts and counties of the State, as far as they have been completed by both parties.
