PRESIDENT JOHNSON.

The public will thank Little, Brown & Co., of Boston, for issuing at this time a most carefully compiled volume of the Lite and Speeches of President Johnson. The work is issued in the very best style, and has a steel portrait of the President that is singularly accurate. Some fifty pages of the book are devoted to a well written biography of Mr. Johnson, giving in brief a history of his life from his humble birth in North Carolina, in 1808, and detailing the various vicissitudes of his eventful life until he became the Chief Ruler of the great Republic of the world. With Mr. Johnson's personal history most people are familiar, as his prominent position in public affairs before the war commenced, his relentless war upon traitors from the time treason developed its perfidy in the Senate until it was overthrown in the field, his election as Vice President and his subsequent succession to the Presidency, have made his actions and his history a matter of widespread study.

We quote from the volume before us a number of extracts from his leading speeches which will be re-read with interest. They show his devotion to the government and to the great industrial classes in the clearest possible light:

GIVE EVERY MAN AN INTEREST IN THE COUNTRY

In his speech on the Homestead Bill in the Senate, in 1858, Mr. Johnson said:

"There is no man so reliable as he who is interested in the welfare of his country; and who are more interested in the welfare of their country than those who have homes? When a man has a home he has a deeper, more abiding interest in the country, and he is more reliable in all things that pertain to the government. He is more reliable when he goes to the ballot-box, he is more reliable in sustaining in every way the stability of our free institutions. * * *

"I know there are many, and even some in the Democratic ranks, whose nerves are a little timid in regard to trusting the people with too much power. Sir, the people are the safest, the best, and the most reliable lodgment of power, if you have a population of this kind. Keep up the middle class; lop off an aristocracy on the one hand, and a rabble on the other; let the middle class maintain the ascendency, let them have the power, and your government is always secure. Then you need not fear the people. I know, as I have just remarked, that some are timid in regard to trusting the people; but there can be no danger *from a people who are interested in their government
