the Speaker appearing to sustain the call]-Can I | posed it was in the beginning, he thought it terminot, said Mr. F., refer to a precedent ! The Spea- nated in what the faculty call neuralgia. There ker said, certainly-but without going into the merits of the case, Mr. F. resumed,-In the N. Jersey cace, Sir, this House was as much excited as it is now; and then, as now, the Committee were ordered to report forthwith; but, Sir, notwithstanding the interes feeling that pervaded the House and the country, that committee retained the report four or five days; and although it had been peremptorily demanded from them, the House refused to enforce the demand except in the regular order of business.

I call upon gentlemen to pause now-(here Mr. F. spoke with much solemnity, amidst the stillness that increased this solemnity)-I call upon gentlemen to reflect what will be the consequence of thus breaking down all the rules of this House, At any time, it will be competent for a 'bare majority of this House, to pass and repeal laws, without debate-without giving to the minority the smallest opportunity to express their opinions. In all the violence that accompanied the action upon the N. Jersey case the House still remined and enforced its rules-will it now break down and disregard that I am unworthy, but I trust in the mercy of them !

I know, said Mr. F., (with great feeling.) that this is a doomed question in this House; but, sir, the best I can do under the circumstances, and as can it not be reached soon enough, without thus was Gen. M'Kean's desire, I have only to request trampling upon all the forms, and rules, and dignity of this Legislative assembly. Once more I ask of hish on the occasion of his death, gentlemen, on all sides, to consider the seriousness of the act which they are called upon to perform.

After Mr. F. sat down, great confusion prevailed; numerous questions were asked of the Speaker, and Mr. WISE was loud in his calls to order.

When the House next proceeded to action, it found itself taking the yeas and news upon a motion to lay the appeal from the Speaker's decision upon the table. There were ayes 101, noes 98.

Mr WINTHROP contended here that the order of business could not be changed but by a vote of

A new question arose as to the fact whether the Bill had been received. Not having been presented by the Chairman of the Fusiciney Committee, its reception was regarded as not in order.

Mr. BARNARD now rose and said that under the peremptory order of the House he felt called upon to Report the Bill, and the Bill was accordangly amidst general confusion sent to the Speaker's table.

Mr. WINTHROP of Muss. sail he objected to the reading of the Bill, and as a question of order the contended that the order of the House had been executed in the Report of the Bill. Action upon it was exhausted unless the thouse suspended its Tules.

The SPEAKER after a long posses so decided .-Mr. WISE took an appeal from the decision of the Speaker, which he briefly argued amidst a general approar. Having closed, the previous question was anoved.

A motion was here renewed to adjourn.

Wir. PROPPIT asked the year and mays, which being ordered, the adjournment was carried, 166 to 102,-The vote was announced in general tamult and received with a clapping of hands and a general feeling on one side. Upon the other side a strong opposition feeling was manifest, and Mr. Proffit declared the vote upon the adjournment to be a legislative fraud. The adjournment, nevertheless was ordered after an exciting session of six hours, and with the understanding that the business will be renewed on Monday where it closed this evening.

A Generous Act.

On Sunday last, a scene of exciteing nature took place at the pond in the vicinity of Schuylkill Second and Market streets. A number of boys were amusing themselves with skating on the ice that covers the pond, and a numerous crowd of standers by were locking on, when suddenly a shout of starm arose from one and all, as they beheld one of the skaters, a boy, struggling in the waters, amidst the broken ice, which had given way under his feet. Two well dressed young men plunged in, in "the attempt to rescue the drowning boy, but in consequence of the intense coldness of the water, as well as the intervention of the ice, they became exhausted very soon after they entered the water.

The horrible prospect was before the spectators of seeing three human beings perishing before their eyes, without being able to turn a hand to save them. Shouts of alarm and horror arose on every hand, and in the midst of confusion, a stout brawny and robust person, was observed to dismount from the horse with which he had just been seen crossing Market street bridge, and rushing through the crowd, he plunged without a moment's delay into the water, and in a moment be emerged, bearing self. in his manly grasp the unfortunate skater .-- He followed up his benevolent work by rescuing the two young men, whose humanity had brought them into the difficulty, and not satisfied with this, the generous stranger did not stay his efforts, until he had saved the hats and caps of the sufferers. We are sorry to state, that we are unable to give the first name of the generous individual alluded to. He merely left his name as Mr. Marshall,-Phil. Spirit of the Times.

The Bradford Porter has appended to the chituary notice of Gen. S. M'Kean, the following interesting statement of Col. James P. Bull relative to his last moments:

Mr. Goodrich .- Some time ago, but after Gen. M'-Kean's confinement to his bed, I had a full conversation with him about his disease, the distressing wound which he inflicted on himself, and the state of mind generally, which at his suggestion I committed to paper, suon after it occurred, with a view to its publication with any nonce that he thought proper to take of him after his death. To my great mortification I have mislaid the paper, so that after a different search I cannot find it. I must, the blood. There will be no doubt of this when it therefore, undertake to supply it as well as I can, is considered that they have gained their present which will be very imperfectly, because, depending on the paper, I have soffered the details to go from my mind.

I had known that his mind had been for a long time awakened to the subject of religion. He had beer skeptical, but he told me that his doubts were entirely ramoved, that he thorough believed the trith of divine revelation; that he had intended in the spring of 1840, after making a tour to the Western States, to make a public profession of religion, and unite with the church. But before the time arrived which he had fixed for leaving home, the was seized with a new strack, and confined to his bed. I have, said he, no fears of death-I know God through the Savious.

Legislation in Ohio.

We find in the regular report of proceedings in the Legislature of Ohio the following account, which reflects great credit on the wisdom of the law makers of the West:

Tuesday, Jan. 4. Numerous petitions were presented, and various bills were considered in committee of the wholeof no interest to the general reader, if we may except the bill, changing the name di the Crow fami-

House bill No 43, to change the name of Joseph Crow, John Crow, Caroline B. Crow, and several others, including the reporter supposes, the whole Crow family.

Mr. Cooke moved to amond the bill by inserting the word "Chapman," before the word Crow, so that the liftl would read "Chapman Orow," which smendment was not agreed to.

On motion, the bill was then reported back, with- delphia. Also at the store of out amendment.

Mr. Jenkms then moved that the bill be indehwhelv postnored.

Mr. Streator opposed the motion; he said it was hard task for him to be compelled to rise and endenvor to prevent the breaking up of the Crow's rrest. Mr. S., after some further remarks, read the following few lines of poetry in support of his argu-

The motion offered by my worthy friend, late an indefinite posiponement this bill to send, I shall for reasons now oppose, Unless be some good reason shows, Why this motion should prevas, And give his reasons to detail.

I ask the aid of every friend, That he will his assistance lend, To keep this bill in statu que, To change the murky name of Crow,

Each member, then, on his return To his consittuents, will learn A truth that they will not disdain, The session was not spent in vain-

If speculators were neglected, The Farming interest was protected, For by our well directed blows, We killed, outright, a flock of Crows.

Mr. Jenkius said he was satisfied with the gentleman's argument, and withdrew his motion. The bill was then ordered to a third reading on

Why is'lt that these medicines are taken repeatedly by the sick without removing the complaint in question ! The reason is plain and simple, viz :-Because they are composed chiefly of opium and its spiritual preparations which acts on the system as a powerful stimulating anodyne, and by using repeatedly, the system becomes habituated to its narcotic influence, as of those who are given to intemperance. This fact has become apparent to thousands who have experienced the fatal effects of such medicines, ly, the proceedings on which we copy from the and commenced using Or.
