

A communication in the Newark Advertiser, which the editor says comes from a perfectly responsible source, confirms the rumor that a great number of Bibles were recently burned by the Catholic priest near Chazy, in Clinton Co., N. Y., as stated from the Journal of Commerce. It states that efforts have been made within the last year to introduce the Bible extensively among the Catholic population, and that they have been successful. Quite a number, in consequence, have left that church, and this so enraged the resident priest that he resorted to the outrage alluded to. The people generally of Chazy condemn it strongly, and are engaged in making up the loss to those who suffered — N. Y. Tribune.
