The commerce of the U. States has so much increased, that we are now second to but one power in the world, and shall at no distant day be second to none

The income of the General Post Office is next tures, this year, between one and two millions of collars. The message says :

interests of the people demand, that the lowest rates be adopted which will produce the necessary revenue to meet the expenditure of the department. I invite the attention of Congress to the suggestions of the Postmaster-General on this subject, under the belief that such a modification of the late law may be made as will yield sufficient revenue without further calls on the treasury, and with very little change in the present rates of postage.

Proper measures have been taken in pursuance of the act of the 31 of March last, 'or the to any extent in that body. establishment of lines of mail steamers between this and foreign countries.

The message concludes with a beautiful tribute to the memory of Gen. Jackson, and closes with the concluding remarks of his first message Congress.

OF THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE -We received this important document on Thursday morning. through the Philadelphia Ledger, and had intended to issue it entire the same day. Its great length, which would make about 13 columns of our paper, precludes us giving more than the sed by the great supply. half this week, which embraces, however, his views on the all-important questions of Texas and the Oregon Territory. We have added also a condensed statement of the remainder, which we will publish, in full, next week. The message is a plain, sensible, explicit and well written document, moderate in its tone and conciliatory in its sentiments. With the exception of the President's views on the Tariff of 1842, which he thinks should be modefied, it would meet with a hearty response from every Pennsylvania demacrat. These views will, however, surprise his election.

CP THE WAVES CORE - Our readers will find, on our first page, an interesting article from the New York Tribune, on the subject of Hydropathy or the Water-Cure, now practised with such eminent success on the continent of Europe. Bulwer, the eminent English novelist, having been recently entirely restored to health by this process, has added his powerful testimony to its great benefits and important results. It is cortainly a subject of immense importance to this -country and to the whole world. If diseases are curable by the simple remedy of cold water. which the Almighty in his providence has so bountifully bestowed on us, physicians must eventually diseard from their practice the whole - category of poisonous drugs, which, while they afford no pogrishment, certainly add nothing to the comfort of the patient. These have long since been our sentiments.
