CAUSE OF WORMS- A CURE FOR WORMS .-Worms are formed from the load humors which soutle in the stom ch and in the intestiges, because whose matters have acquired, by their degeneration, a strong slimy nature proper to the concentration of those insects. They are variously named—the the maw worm, a me-t troublesome insect; and also the long thread worm, the tenes or tape worm, &c., &c. They exist under different forms, sometimes they k it together and go out into balls ; oftener they divide and go out one afer another When they acend the ugh the intestinal canal, they may be exected by the mouth, and even by the mose When this happens the patient is in much danger, such symptoms being strong evidence that his system is dangerous'y encemb red with the corruption, and its re-union and these two affictions when united, may cause instant des t, or a short illness, ending in idevitable death.

Brand eth's Pills remove not only the worms of whatever kind, but also the hum es which form them, and upon which they feed. Besides, they have the property of evacuating every substance which might favor a new formation of worms, by regenerating the mass of humor.
