[From the Hamilton (C. W.) Spectator 1 A Female Lothario.

Appearances are often very decaistul, but neor more so than when a lady assumes male attire, and in that disguise visite one of her own erx, and pours into her willing ear a portion of the soft, sweet strains of never-ending love. There is something strange and rematic about the practice of the ladies making love to each other, for which we could never account. Whethat it is done through mischievous playfulness from a mere curlosity to know the excrets of her hearts; or whether it arises from a dere to be revenged on the sex, by a portion of it who have never themselves been favored with a lover, they only know who practice it. We make the foregoing remarks by way of introducing a series of courting adventures which lately fell to the lot of a buxom young trish girl residing in this city. This maiden of the would-be macculine gender rejoices in the tame of Eliza McCormick, and for the last two or three years has manifested such a carticular regard for a gentleman's cost and pantaloons that she eften promenaded the streets of Hamilton in a full dress, even to a cigar and a crooked cane. Thus equipped, next object was to and out for a sweetheart; a business, in which she seems to have been exceedingly fortunate crobably because the was better acquainted with the strength of the citadel and the method conducting a successful attack than of those whose dress and appearance she assumed. Be that as it may, we have been made acquainted with six of her pretended courtships, and all with dressmakers.

How many more she may have been engaged in we know not, but to three of these she 'popand the question" of marriage-was accepted, and one of them indulged so far in the pleasing dream of matrimonial bliss that she actually prepared her wedding dress. During the time that this female Lotherie was carrying on her Butations, she was living as a servant in the caty, and she invariably played her pranks upon such girls as were acquainted with the families in which she lived.

She assumed all manner of characters, and had as many names as a member of the London s veil mob. Sometimes she was a student of medicine-sometimes a limb of the law-in one place she was a book keeper in a dry goods store -in another a gentleman of property lately arrived from Ireland, and was exceedingly hard up for a wife. When she determined on a nocturnal visit to any of the dear creatures whose hearts she had so skillully charmed, she always went in her real character and dress, a day or two previous, and after sounding the depth of the young lady's affection for Mr. Me-Kenzie, or Fitzpatrick, or whatever name she and assumed, she would inform her that she had been sent by this gentleman to say that he would visit the object of his heart's foncest solicitude, at a certain hour of a certain night. This was playing a double game. It enabled in her real character to find out the state of the girl's mind, and in her assumed one, to use that information for her own advantage.

The most recent love making anventure that this brenker of ladies' hearts was engaged in, | City Bank terminated rather tragically on Sunday last. She was engaged as a servant some two months | Farmers' & Mech'es' Bank ago by a lady in the city, and at her master's | Harmony Institute house she became acquainted with a young girl | Huntingdon Bank who was occasionally employed there as a sempstreas. When the acquaintance had ri- Northern Bank of Pa. pened into something like confidence she told the girl that a clerk in a certain store in tewn was deeply in love with her, and that he had walked several nights in front of her father's residence whistling a peculiar tune, in order, if possible, to get one glimpse of her pretty face. The bait was swallowed.

To be loved so ardently, and by a clerk, too, made the young girl's heart beat high, and when she was informed that Mr. Crawford, (the name the heroine had assumed.) would mass her dwelling whistling on a certain night, she awaited his approach with a kind of feverat axiety, shaded with love. The night came, and so did Mr. Crawford, alias Miss Eliza Mc-Cormie, dressed in a suit of her master's clothes He a histled his little tune—the door of a certain Louse was noiselessly opened as he passed, and the young sempstress, blushing at her boldness, stood gazing on his receding figure. In a few minutes he had returned, and in a few more he commenced operations. He was in lovedeeply, distractedly and incurably.

She listened to his avowal, gave him some encouragement, and told him that she was free from any engagement. This seemed to revive his love-lorn spirits, and after making an appointment for another interview, Mr. Crawford leparted. The parties met several times subsequently, but the young girl was not so green as her pseudo lover had expected. She suspected that Mr. Crawford was an animal of the feminine gender, and she communicated her suspicion to a young man of her acquaintance, who, with a trusty companion, was ready to pounce upon the unfortunate lover the next day ne would make his appearance. Last Sunday night gave the desired opportunity-Mr. Crawford was seized, but like a gennine Irishman, he up with his fist and knocked down one of his intruders. When the scuttle was ended Mr.

She was taken to the police office and locked up during the remainder of the night. On Monday evening, as no person had appeared against her, she was liberated and resumed female ature. We hope that the shame and mortification of a public exposure will have a salutary effect upon her future conduct. Miss McCormick is said to be the same person who figured for three weeks in the neighborhood of Galt a -hort time since, under the disguise of a sick ther counterfeit or eltered notes of the various de-

DEPURATIVE SYRUP. THE estuplie properties of Oakley's Deputs. tive Syrup of Narseparitie, as a purifier of the blood, is so well known to the public generally, that it is unnecessary to occupy much space in set-ting forth the advantages to be derived from its use; wherever the medicine has once been introduced, it takes precedence over all others; every one that has taken it, have derived so signal bene-ficial results from it, that it is recommended by them with the utmost confidence. Physicians of the highest standing in the profession, prescribe it to patients under their care; containing nothing deleterious, but being composed of the most mild, yet efficacious vegetable materials, it is offered with confidence, as the cheapest and most efficient puriver of the blood now known. The use of a few bottles, especially in the spring months, will be at-tended with a most decided improvement in the ge-neral strength of the system, eradicating any seeds of disease that may have been generated, besides giving health and vigor to the body .- For the cure d Scrofula or Kings Evil, Rheumatism, Tetter, Pimples or eruptions of the Skin, White Swelling, Fistula, Chronic Cough Asthma, &c. The numerous certificates in the possession of the subscriher and his agents, from physicians and others, are sufficient to convince the most skeptical of its superiority over all preparations of Sarsaparilla. Mu. Oakter:-I believe it the uty of every one to do whatever in their power lies, for the benefit of their fellow man, and having had positive groof in my own family, of the wonderful properties of your Depurative Syrup of Sarsaparilla, I most conscientiously recommend it to the afflicted. We had the misfortune to lose two of our children, by the bresking out of ulcerous sizes that covered the face, head and neck, although we had some of the mest scientific physicians to attend them and had tried all the known remedies, including Swaim's Panacea, without avail. Another of my children was attacked in the same manner, her face and neck was completely covered; the discharge was so offensive, and the disease at such a height, that we despaired of her life. Seeing the wonderful effects of your Depurative Symp of Sersaparits, we were induced to make trial of it, as the last resort; it noted like a charm; the ulcers commenced healing mmediately, a few bottles entirely restored her to her health, which she has enjoyed uninterruptedly ever since.
